SOMERSET CO. SCHOOLS EXHIBIT

Handiwork of Pupils on Display at First Annual Show at Somerville.

GIRLS MADE DRESSES

North Plainfield Borough Schools Take No Part In the Event, Which Will Become An Annual Affair.

The first Somerset County school exhibit and field day held at Somerville last Saturday, attracted hundreds of people from all sections of the county. Every school was represented in the exhibit except North Plainfield borough and a few small remote rural schools.

The Somerville school had five classrooms filled with excellent articles in all forms of handwork, such as woodwork, sewing, weaving, mechanical drawing and free hand drawing. Bernards Township filled two rooms, Bound Brook and Bridgewater each one room, while other rooms and the halls were used for the rural schools.

Among the features that deserve special mention were the eighth grade graduating dresses of the girls of the Bernardsville School, each dress made entirely by the girl who will wear it. The price of these dresses ranged from 85 cents to $2.50.

Special interest was shown in the exhibits of the small rural schools. There were a number of cakes and loaves of bread made by pupils ranging from ten to sixteen years. One boy made a one-pound hammer and handle of superior finish. The quality of the work of these schools was a revelation, inasmuch as they have no assistance in the way of special teachers, and little material is furnished by boards for the purpose.

It is poposed to make this exhibit an annual affair and the success of the first occasion gives reason to believe that next year the amount of work will be much increased.

FOUR GENERATIONS AT FAMILY REUNION

Four generations of the family were represented at a reunion Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Sarah Kline, 21 Sandford avenue, to celebate the eighty-sixth anniversary of her birthday. These out of town people were among the guests: Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Ramsey, Mr. and Mrs. John Ramsey and son, Mrs. Joseph Ramsey and George L. Ramsey, of Lebanon; Mrs. Lucer Voorhees, of Pottenstown; Mrs. Ann Van Syckle, Mrs. Robert Moore, Miss Hilda Moore, of High Bridge; Mrs. Richard Coriell, of Pen Argyle, Pa.; Mrs. E. W. JR. O. U. A. M. PAYS TRIBUTE TO DEAD

EXERCISES IMPRESSIVE

Role of the Departed Brothers Read and Their Graves Are Decorated With Flowers—The Complete List.

The members of Franklin, Somerset, Benevolent and Plainfield Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., to the number of about one hundred, joined in the annual memorial day service which was held yesterday afternoon at the Plainfield Avenue cemetery. They met at Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall and marched to the cemetery, where the service was held at the grave of James Vail, who was a member of Franklin Council for many years.

Guy Thomas, of Somerset Council, No. 104, as master of ceremonies, conducted the service according to the ritual of the order. The memorial address was read from the ritual by Past State Councilor William LaRue, of Bound Brook. Then followed short addresses appropriate to the occasion by Rev. W. A. Knox of Dunellen, and Rev. Royal A. Stout, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, in which both speakers dwelt on the principles of the order, and drew many helpful lessons as an aid to right living.

During the service the Juniors sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and "Nearer My God to Thee," and the service was concluded with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." It has been the custom of the Juniors for the past few years to set apart one Sunday in the year for such a service, going on each different occasion to the grave of a departed member.

An impressive part of the service was the reading of the names of the departed members of the four Councils. They were as follows:

Franklin Council—James Martin, J. R. Dunn, W. C. VanWinkle, W. E. Beekman, George W. DeMeza, Robert Pound, C. M. Wilson, George E. Rogers, Henry Kliner, Dr. O. L. Jenkins, Harry Knight, Frank Titus, George Newmiller, H. B. VanAlstyne, Harry Carey, Frank Hand, Theodore Liable, Harry Lance, W. F. Chamberlin, Clinton Ianson, Percy Ross, George VanNest, J. T. Long, Albert Mills, William Neuman, Garret Schenck, Robert Tunison, Chester Conover and H. N. Heideloff.

Plainfield Council—Charles McNabb.

Apgar, Percy M. Rose and J. G. Staats.

MRS. HOLLIWELL MAY SERVE HALF A YEAR

Mrs. George Holliwell, of 208 Spooner avenue, who has been arrested eight times and has served over 120 days in the county jail for intoxication and disorderly conduct, cried and pleaded for leniency before Judge DeMeza this morning, when arraigned on a similar complaint. In deferring sentence, until Saturday morning, the court order the prisoner and her husband, who was present to remove from the neighborhood of their present home within four days, which the couple agreed to do. The Judge announced that if they failed to comply with this order he would send Mrs. Holliwell to jail for six months, less one day. He also stipulated in the order that she take the pledge before a priest.

Michael Sareeni, a butcher, who appeared as complainant against Mrs. Holliwell, claimed she came into his shop Saturday, demanding the pay of her boy who is employed in his establishment. Upon being refused, Mrs. Holliwell threw a piece of meat in the butcher's face, ran from the market and threw a brick through a plate glass show window.

BUT TWO MORE DAYS BEFORE THE START

"Time is Fleeting" and the Live Ones Should Be in Readiness.

Just think of it, June 2 is here and in two days the big contest of The Daily Press will start. Just as quickly as the time passed from the time the announcement "ad" was made so quickly will the time pass in the period which closes June 18.

In these days it is a question of say and do. One cannot linger and be successful. Take into consideration the big business men of the city of Plainfield. Look backward to their start in life and it will be seen that a constant hustle has placed them where they now stand in the business world. Just so in the big contest now in operation on The Daily Press. Opportunity beckons, are you going to close the door?

Sure to Win.

Every candidate who enters must win a prize provided he secures $50 in subscriptions. This surely should be an easy manner to secure a $20 vitaphone. Send in the name and a representative of the contest department will call and explain matters in detail.

THOMAS H. SEAMAN DEAD, AGED 74 YRS.

Thomas Henry Seaman, aged 74 years, formerly of Brooklyn, but who has been living at 72 Summit avenue, North Plainfield, for the past three years, died of a complication of diseases at his home, Saturday night. He had been in failing health for several years. The funeral and burial will be at Greenfield cemetery, Hempstead, L. I., tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. Seaman was born at Hempstead, L. I., and spent the greater part of his life in Brooklyn, where he was engaged in the jewelry business until about six years ago, when he retired. He was a member of Stella Lodge, F. & A. M., and the Masonic Veteran Association of Brooklyn, in which he took an active part. He was a member of the Methodist church and while living in the borough attended Grace M. E church.

Beside a wife there survives two sons, Herbert H. Seaman, of this city, and Benjamin Seaman, of New Bedford, Mass., and one daughter, Mrs. Virgil Heath, of North Plainfield.

CHOIR AT ITS BEST IN 'THE CONVERSION'

First M. E. Singers Render Cantata Under Mr. Braider's Direction.

The quartet choir of the First M. E. church, under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist and director, gave the final musical service of the season, last night, presenting the cantata, "The Conversion," by Harry Alexander Matthews and Rev. Francis Yarnall. This work, which is comparatively new, was given in a finished and pleasing manner by the quartet, comprising Miss Gabrielle Drosse, soprano; Miss Alice C. Berning, contralto; Aleck MacGowan, tenor, and Edgar A. Cole, baritone. The assisting artist was Clarence Larsen, violinist.

The first selection for organ and violin was "Meditation," by Thais, and as an offertory the selections "Berceuse," Godard, and "O Rest in the Lord," Sullivan, which added much to the enjoyment of the service.

The rendition of the cantata occupied the whole service, and the congregation thoroughly enjoyed the work of the quartet, which is especially well balanced. Miss Drosse had considerable solo work, as did also Miss Berning and Mr. MacGowan and their singing was appreciated. Mr. Cole's singing also called forth commendation. Especially noteworthy was the aria for soprano, "The Power of the Convert," which was effectively sung by Miss Drosse.

APPROACHING WEDDING.

Miss Lucie Roberts Budlong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Budlong, of East Seventh street, and James Edward Pinkney, of Brooklyn, will be married Thursday night, at 8 o'clock at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie officiating. A reception will follow at the home of the bride-elect's parents.

CARNIVAL CROOKS IN POLICE COURT

HAD WORKED GAME

Five arrests were made by the local police at the carnival grounds Saturday night, several hours before the Johnny Jones shows left this city after appearing here for one week. William Van Horn, who said he came from Belleville, and whose friends claimed he was a nephew of the late Amos H. Van Horn, of Newark, was charged with conducting a gambling game, and Joseph Millinery, of Newark, was arrested for picking the pockets of James Ellis, of 951 Arlington avenue. Van Horn was fined $20 and Millinery was held in $500 bail to await the action of the grand jury, when arraigned this morning before City Judge De Meza. Both men were apprehended by Roundsman Andrew Saffron.

John Smith, of Belleville, arrested by Saffron on a disorderly conduct charge, received a suspended sentence. Allen Jones, of Westfield, apprehended by Patrolman Kelly and charged with carrying concealed weapons, was fined $20, and Alexander Taylor, also of Westfield, and a friend of Allen, was fined $10 for "interfering with an officer in the performance of his duties."

In Van Horn, Judge DeMeza said he recognized a professional gambler whom he declared had worked games in this city before during the horse show and therefore did not believe his story told on the witness stand that he had hired out his stand at the carnival to an unknown person and was in ignorance of any violation of the law. The gambling game alleged to have been conducted by Van Horn was of the "lucky number" type which attracted many "easy marks." James Watson, of Grant avenue, said he lost $15.

Although Millinery managed to get Ellis' pocketbook the leather case contained nothing except cards of value to the owner only. Ellis said he caught the alleged pickpocket in the act and that when he confronted Millinery with the offense, the latter returned the wallet without comment. The defendant claimed he never saw Ellis or his wallet until arrested.

Taylor got in trouble when remonstrating with Patrolman Kelly for arresting his friend Allen, who was caught while carrying an open penknife up his sleeve. The blade of the instrument was over three inches long.

TETANUS FATAL TO PATRICK HARRINGTON

Patrick Harrington, of 670 West Fourth street, died in Muhlenberg Hospital last night after suffering untold agony from the time he entered the institution on Saturday night for the treatment of a case of tetanus which had developed beyond all medical aid. Harrington was employed by the Plainfield Ice and Supply Company as a driver and while unloading a quantity of lumber three weeks ago the horse attached to his wagon slipped and fell, and when the driver went to the animal's assistance he was kicked in the knee. Nothing more was thought of the injury, which was little more han a scratch, until Harrington contracted pneumonia about ten days ago. Symptoms of tetanus developed.

When removed to the hospital the victim's jaws were locked and food had to be administered by force. All of Saturday night and yesterday he suffered terribly and his death was only a matter of hours from the time he entered the institution. Harrington leaves a wife and four children, the youngest of whom is one year old. The funeral services will be held at St. Mary's church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock and interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Harrington was a member of the local lodge of the A. O. H. of which he had been treasurer for the past twenty-five years and also of the order of Foresters, No. 1144.

BECOMES BRIDE OF NOEL EVANS

Marriage of Englishman to Miss Violet. Truell Johnston This Afternoon.

AT QUIET CEREMONY

Rev. Edward Shaw Officiates at Seventh-Day Baptist Church and Reception Follows at W. C. Hubbard's Residence.

Mrs. Violet Truell Johnson, of this city, and Noel G. Evans, son of Mrs. Lucy E. Evans, of London, England, were married at the Seventh-Day Baptist church this afternoon. The ceremony was a quiet one, the invitations being limited to intimate friends. Rev. Edward Shaw, pastor of the church, officiated. There were no attendants. The bride wore a travelling gown of champagne Chantung pongee and carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas and roses.

The church was elaborately decorated for the occasion with spring flowers and greens, the prevailing colors being green and white. Immediately following the ceremony a small reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hubbard, of West Fifth street, the guests including intimate friends. The couple will leave for a two weeks' trip. They will live at Truell Inn on their return for a short time.

The decorations at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard, where the reception was held, was chiefly white, while the table in the dining room was garnished with pink sweet peas. The bride was the recipient of a large number of gifts. Many of the details for the wedding and reception were arranged by friends of the bride and her mother, the late Mrs. John R. Truell, and they included Mrs. William C. Hubbard, Mrs. David E. Titsworth, Mrs. Charles P. Titsworth, Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard and Mrs. Henry M. Maxson.

The bride has been making her home at Truell Inn since leaving Truell Hall. For several years she was associated with her mother in the management of Truell Hall, Truell Inn and Truell Court. She has also been prominent in musical circles, being a talented violinist. On numerous occasions she appeared at entertainments and other social functions in this city and vicinity.

Mr. Evans has been living in Plainfield for the past few years. He is manager of the New York office of the Internatiional Banking Corporation, and has traveled extensively around the world. At different times he has been in charge of the company's business in Japan and San Francisco.

HERBERT W. TURNER BECOMES A BENEDICT

Miss Teressa Brackebush, daughter of T. S. Brackebush, and Herbert William Turner, formerly of Winthrop, Mass., but now of Plainfield, were married at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Susan Benedict, in Cranford. Rev. Dr. G. F. Greene, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Cranford, officiated. The affair, a very quiet one was attended by near relatives and a few intimate friends. Following the ceremony and wedding luncheon, the couple left for Atlantic City, and later will spend some time in Canada. Upon their return they will reside in Plainfield.

The bride has been a resident of Cranford for several years. She is a niece of Benedict Brothers, of New York, and is a favorite in a large circle of acquaintances. She was the recipient of many beautiful wedding gifts.

Mr. Turner, who has resided in this city for the past four years, holds the position of superintendent of Proctor's theatre on West Front street, where he has made many friends by his genial manner. The employes of the theatre gave him a lively send-off Saturday night when he left the theatre. He planned to go to Cranford in Charles Dutcher's automobile and friends appropriately decorated the car with a sign which read: "I am to be married." Old tin cans, etc., were also fastened to the car. When Mr. Turner left the theatre he was showered with rice. The employes of the playhouse presented him with a handsome cut-glass pitcher and tumblers.

OUT ON A STRIKE FOR BETTER PAY

Journeymen Electricians Ask $3 More a Week and Apprentices Double.

EMPLOYERS ARE FIRM

No Likelihood of Settlement Say Bosses—One Declares He'll Go So Far as to Reduce the Present Wage Scale.

Journeymen electricians as well as the apprentices, to the number of about forty, went on strike today failing in their demands of an increase for journeymen from $4 to $4.50 per eight-hour day and from $6 to $12 a week for the apprentices. The bosses decided not to grant them the demands. One of the employer's, when seen today, declared that he would never grant the raise, preferring to retire from business.

According to a former agreement, in case of this kind of trouble, the bosses were to name two men and the journeymen two, they to select a fifth person to comprise an arbitration committee. It is alleged that the journeymen declined to abide by this agreement.

The new agreement presented to the "bosses" for adoption, carrying with it the demand for more money, is said by them to be very arbitrary. It provides, it is alleged, that the men shall be paid for time used in going from the shop to the place of work, that the "bosses" shall do no work unless accompanied by a journeyman and that the apprentices are not to report for work in the morning until the hour appointed for the journeymen to go to work.

It was reported today that a majority of the six electrial contractors of the city are in a position to stand a strike for an indefinite period, that in most cases the work is in such shape that they do not require many employes. One of the contractors in discussing said that he thought the men were being well paid and that outside of such places as New York and Newark electricians are not drawing $4.50 a day and such a rate could not be paid here with profit. He further stated that if his men return to work their wages will be at the rate of $3.50 a day instead of $4 as heretofore.

BORO HIGH PLANS COMMENCEMENT

A final meeting of the North Plainfield senior class was held at the Somerset School this afternoon to complete the arrangements for commencement week. The class is composed of ten boys and seven girls, eight of whom have pursued commercial courses and nine have completed an academic course.

Instead of engaging a professional speaker to deliver the address, the Board has arranged to have the entire program in charge of the pupils. Miss Ruth Miller is the valedictorian and Miss Helen Hughes the salutatorian. The North Plainfield High School chorus, which was organized at the time the Interscholastic musical concert was held in the Westfield theatre some months ago, will render three numbers. Dr. J. H. Cooley, president of the Board of Education, will present the diplomas.

Special parts have been assigned to the following: Miss Clara B. Smith, "Class Poet;" Thomas N. A dance and reception will take place in Debele's Hall, Friday night, June 6, and will be attended by the class, with the alumni and undergraduates as their guests. Dancing will continue on this ocasion until 12 o'clock.

TWO WOMEN BANISHED.

Mary Vleit, 24 years old, and Ida McCreedy, 22 years old, whose apartments at 128 Central avenue were raided Saturday by Detective Sergeant John J. Flynn and Roundsman Andrew Saffron, were ordered to leave town when arraigned before City Judge De Meza this morning on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. If they fail to comply with this order a suspended sentence of $100 fine and 59 days in the county jail will be imposed.

A Money-Saving Boiler

Note the nearness of interior water-holding sections to fire—upward trend of surfaces and capacious feed door and square firepot.

Second to them will come the two-a-day debut of Francis McGinn, the original Officer 666, in a screaming travesty on existing police exposures, "The Cop," an offering said to be so full of laughs that even District Attorney Whitman would laugh. Bunched in the race are Sam and Kitty Morton, without the younger Mortons, Sidney Jarvis and Virginia Dare, a handsome juvenile and a beautiful woman in songs, dances and repartee; Milton Pollock and Company in George Ade's playlet, "Speaking to Father," and Adler and Arline in a marvelous melange of mimicry. The remainder of the entertainment will be furnished by Mullen and Coogan in "Odd Nonsense;" Wilber C. Sweatman, ragtime clarinet viruoso; The Stanleys, silhouettists and the Alexander Brothers, juggling equilibrists.

FIRST BAPTISTS AT A MUSICAL SERVICE

Last of Series for the Season of an Exceptionally High Order.

The quartet and chorus choir of the First Baptist church gave its last special musical service of the season last night, singing the cantata, "Penitence, Pardon and Peace," by Maunder; "Sanctus," from the Messe Solonelle, Gounod, and as an offertory, a selection from the oratorio of Eli, by Costa. The service was attended by a very large congregation and the music was greatly enjoyed.

The service began with a selection, "Adagio," Mozart, by Miss Florence Wohlfert, violinist, and Howard Case, organist. The solo parts were taken by Miss Elizabeth St. Ives, soprano; Miss Jessie Haynes, contralto; William Holmes, baritone, and George Smith, tenor. During the special numbers the congregation joined in singing "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," and "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand."

The work of the soiotsis was especially pleasing, Miss St. Ives being in excellent voice and her singing was delightful in the solo parts. This was also true of Mr. Holmes, who had considerable solo work. He sang with much expression and feeling. The singing by Mr. Smith and Miss Haynes was also of a high character. The chorus was up to its usual high standard, the singing showing great care in training.

IMPRESSIVE ILLUSTRATION OF POPULARITY OF RACING WHEN 30,000 ATTEND FIRST REVIVAL OF THIS SPORT IN N. Y. STATE.

IMMENSE THRONG WATCHING THE RESUMPTION OF RACING AT BELMONT PARK

New York has demonstrated that the "sport of kings" is truly the king of sports. The revival of horse racing, even in the opinion of disinterested persons, has the approval of the public. There was no mistaking the sentiment of the populace at the revival of the sport at the Belmont Park course, where a crowd variously estimated at 30,000 and 35,000 watched the scenes with animation and cheered with wild delight as the thoroughbreds, the best in the land, raced around the course.

Men who like baseball as well as horse-racing said the attendance at Belmont Park, the enthusiasm, the interest and the joy of the throng, indicated to them that baseball, with all its popularity and the uncertainties which add to its attractiveness, is not on a par with horse racing with the public.

Men of prominence in all walks of life were free to assert that there will never again be struck a death blow to racing, merely for the reason that the public had shown its approval of it beyond question. Many noted persons were present, including Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont, Mr. and Mrs. August Belmont, Justice and Mrs. Pendleton, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr.; James Regan, Mr. and Mrs. William Willcox, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Richard Harding Davis and other society leaders.

CANADA WOULD EXPAND.

Not to find the pole but to ascertain if possible the existence of a large body of land within the arctic circle, which many scientists believe surrounds or includes the pole itself, is the mission of Vilhjalmur Stefansen. In the course of a few days the intrepid explorer will join the other members of the expedition at Equismault, B. C., and they will sail in the steam whaler Karluk for Nome, the rendezvous of the expedition. The entire expenses are to be borne by the Canadian government and if the unknown land is found formal possession will be taken in the name of Canada.

Although two other expeditions with similar objects in view, the Amundsen expedition under the Danish flag, and the McMillan expedition under the American flag, are preparing to start for the far North to find the "unknown continent," there will be no race between the three expeditions, only friendly rivalry. As the three expeditions are taking different routes, many hundreds of miles apart, they will in no way interfere with one another and may not even come in contact with each other.

If Commander Stefanssen should find the continent, he will first establish a base of supplies before starting for the inteior on an exploring tour. The expedition is well provisioned for several years, but expects to help out the larder by shooting musk oxen, caribous and other animals which are believed to be plentiful in those regions. Even if everything goes well, it is not expected that the expedition will return to civilization before the end of three or four years. The smaller vessel will make an annual trip to Alaska to keep up communication between the explorers and their friends.

Former President Roosevelt has suffered little from slanderous tongues in comparison to the late President Cleveland. The latter, however, evidently considered it beneath his dignity to take notice of the outrageous falsehoods of which he was made the victim and in consequence there are some today who may give some credence to the lies. Mr. Roosevelt, on the other hand, probably had the conviction that it was due to him to disprove the stories while he is living and thus when he he is dead and gone to have no man reflect upon his character.

The open air service inaugurated yesterday by Grace Episcopal church is a wise innovation. There are many good people who do not care to attend a service during the heated season but who would welcome an opportunity to do so when the service is held out of doors. The open air service also attracts those who seldom if ever attend religious meetings.

Six cents damages was entirely adequate considering the source of the slander against T. R. The obscure editor hardly could do him that amount of harm.

The tenth annual horse show of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club to be held at its park on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, promises to eclipse all previous exhibitions. That is saying a good deal for the local show has a national reputation as being among the very best in the country.

Japan proposes to reply to Secretary of State Bryan's note, but is not Japan rather inconsistent? A foreigner is not allowed to own land in the Flowery Kingdom, and Japan's ally, Great Britain, has similar laws against such ownership and yet Japan has never made any protest to London.

"We have no farmers in this country; they are clod-hoppers.—Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters.

And we have some ministers who ought to be at the head of a circus.

Stokes and Fowler have thrown their hats in the ring, but the two pieces of headgear don't seem to be attracting much attention.

The "Antis" plan to effect an organization here this week. Now wouldn't it be real fun to have a joint debate?

AGED CLERIC IS IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Rev. Dr. Whitney's Hip Dislocated by Fall and He is Still Unconscious.

Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney, of First place, president-emeritus of Centenary Collegiate Institute, is critically ill at his home, the result of a fall a few days ago when he dislocated his hip. He remains in an unconscious condition most of the time and owing to his advanced years and weakened physical condition, much anxiety is felt concerning the outcome of the injury.

Since resigning the presidency of Centenary Collegiate Institute, Dr. Whitney has lived more or less in retirement, devoting his time occasionally to preaching and literary work. He gave up the greater part of his life to educational work and his mind has always been a fund of knowledge on various topics of general interest.

TWO PLAINFIELDERS TO GET YALE SHEEPSKINS

Murray Rushmore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Rushmore, of Stelle avenue, and William Lyman Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Campbell, of Grove street, will be graduated from Yale University this month. They prepared for college at John Leal's School.

Mr. Rushmore won the local Yale Club's entrance prize. He is a member of Wolf's Head, A. D. Phi Sigma Xi, the high stand society, rowed on the sophomore crew and was on the freshman football and crew squads. He is a member of the Corinthian Yacht Club.

Mr. Campbell will enter Boston "Tech" in the Fall.

OPEN AIR SERVICES AT GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Following the English custom, the Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, inaugurated open-air religious services on the parish house lawn yesterday afternoon. There were over 125 persons present. Rev. E. C. Chorley, of Garrisons, N. Y., was the special preacher. He spoke on the subject of "Daniel." Mr. Stevenson read the Scriptures and offered the prayers. The service was made of special interest through the presence of the vested choir, singing several familiar hymns in which the congregation joined heartily.

The rector announced that these meetings would be continued every Sunday afternoon throughout the summer months, weather permitting. In England this custom has been in effect for many years and has proved a success.

Warning the younger generation against surrendering to temptation, Rev. Douglas McLellan, F. R. G. S., pastor of the Everton Valley Presbyterian church, of Liverpool, England, a son-in-law of Mrs. I. W. Cochran, of Watchung avenue, preached an eloquent sermon in the Crescent Avenue church yesterday morning, taking "Temptation," as his subject.

OFFENDER UP AGAIN.

James Turner, colored, of West Fourth street, who has served one year in the county jail for forgery, was held in $300 bail to await the action of the grand jury this morning, when arraigned before City Judge DeMeza charged with stealing a bicycle belonging to Joseph N. Moore, of 920 Hillside avenue.

Final announcement has not been made as yet concerning the presentation of diplomas but the class has an enrollment of eighteen, a majority of whom will be graduated.

The commencement exercises will be held either in the Fanwood school or the Baptist church at that place, Thursday evening, June 19. The class roster consists of Frederick and Charles Herbst, Bradley Barret, Lillian and Hilda Hodgson, Walter VanHoesen, Allen Davis Louis Corrona, Bessie Sargent, Ida Farley, George Manning, John Morel, Gabriel Groletto, Carouso Lewis, Gertrude Head, Catherine Kinney, Russel Johnston, William Beeken and Walter Anson.

MISS McCUTCHEON ENGAGED.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Dorothy McCutcheon, formerly of this city and now of Washington, Conn., to George Grandy, of this city and Norfolk, Va.

CHASE TRADED.

Hal Chase, star first sacker of the Yankees, has been traded to the Chicago White Sox in exchange for Bill Borton and Rolli Zelder, two infielders.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperatur ereport from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 66 degrees; 11 a. m., 74 degrees; 1 p. m., 80 degrees.

A Substitute.

According to a Cincinnati banker, who lives at the Plaza hotel in New York, an English guest at that hostelry was recently presented with a bunch of handsome roses. He took them to his apartments and found no suitable receptacle. So he placed them on the table and wrapped them in a wet newspaper while waiting for the boy to answer the bell. When the youngster came the Briton said, "Bring me—aw—a rose jar." The boy saluted and went away. After a lapse of time he returned. "Beg pardon, sir," said he "but what was it you wanted?" He didn't understand. "I want a rose jar—aw"— said the Englishman very distinctly. "A rose jar—aw. Quite so." The boy went away again. In due time he returned bearing something in his hand. "The bartender," said he "thinks mebbe you've got mixed on the names of these American drinks. He says he thinks you meant a mint julep."

Disinclined to Matrimony.

Among the non-Burmese tribes that live in Burma women are not thought much of. The Banyak or Banyaugs, for instance, will not marry unless they are ordered to do so, and the prospective bridegroom often has to be dragged to the bride's house. It is left, however, to the Was to reach the depths of ungallantry, for with them marriage is a question of sale or exchange. A prepossessing bride is estimated at a few buffaloes. One who is ill favored may be had in exchange for a pair of fowls or even a dog.

The Problem Was Clearly Untenable.

Dorothy, a little first grader in the city schools, has a small brother who is considered an angel child by no one but mamma, so when teacher gave Dorothy this problem, "If your mother should give you 5 cents for keeping Jack while she goes to market on Saturday how much would you earn in six weeks?" she readily replied, "Why, Miss Hudson, I wouldn't keep that naughty boy if mamma gave me a quarter!"—Kansas City Star.

A New Experience.

"Can't beat that game," said the coal man.

"Wasn't trying to. I just wanted to see how it feels to lose money."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Where It Was.

"Why don't you get some labels on your suit case to show where it's been?"

FISH PROMISED 15 YEARS AGO HAVEN'T ARRIVED YET

Paterson, June 2.—For fifteen years Edward Acker, a Greenwood Lake guide, has been trying to fulfill a promise to deliver a mess of fish to Charles Robinson, acting clerk of the police court, but the toothsome morsels are still to come.

In that time Acker has frequently had the fish, come to town, met fish lovers who had money and later landed in court. He always received a suspended sentence. This was true Saturday, when he once more appeared in the presence of his intended beneficiary. This time Sergeant Ryan got the fish for a consideration.

The pledge was made by Acker, who wanted to show his appreciation of the efforts made by Robinson, then a policeman, in getting him released from prison. The clerk is still hoping that the pledge will be carried out.

The President's MEMORIAL DAY WREATHS

The Man who Makes the President's Memorial Day Wreaths

A Memorial Day Wreath

Entrance to the White House Conservatories

Cultivating the President's Memorial Day Posies

THE President of the United States has his own special Memorial Day custom and a very pretty custom it is, expressive of sentiment as kindly as it is eminently appropriate.

The President's unique Decoration day responsibility is nothing less than the furnishing of beautiful wreaths on this significant day for the graves of some of the nation's best-beloved residents, especially those who were identified with our great Civil War, which, of course, furnished the inspiration for Memorial Day.

In spirit, the ruler of the republic on this momentous day lays a superb floral wreath in grateful tribute on the tomb of each of his most notable predecessors. Actually, of course, the Chief Magistrate cannot perform this labor of love with his own hands, for the tombs of our Presidents are in widely separated localities and furthermore the President is a very busy man on Memorial Day, what with the requests that come to him to review parades of veterans and the pleas that he address this and that Memorial Day gathering. But the wreaths are prepared in accordance with the President's personal orders and are dispatched by special messengers whose arrival at the various destinations is so timed that the floral offering may be deposited in the President's name in the morning of this day of sad but grateful memories.

It should be observed, too, that this distribution of the President's floral tributes is conducted most unostentatiously. Although the custom has been followed for many years it is safe to say that only the smallest fraction of our population has ever heard of it heretofore and the pictures accompanying this article are from the first and only photos which have ever been permitted to be made of the Memorial Day tokens that are made up of the President's most precious posies.

Executive chronicles at Washington are a trifle hazy as to the exact circumstances of the origin of this thoughtful Memorial Day custom at the White House. It seems to have grown out of the Presidential custom of placing flowers on the tomb of George Washington at Mount Vernon. History indicates that all our Presidents, following the Father of Our Country have thus shown remembrance of the nation's first ruler but during the first half of the last century it seems to have been the custom to send flowers to Mount Vernon on the Fourth of July. In some instances flowers also went from the Presidential Mansion to the vault overlooking the Potomac on the anniversary of Washington's birthday, but generally speaking Independence Day was made to serve as a memorial day for the first President.

However, when, after the Civil War, the Memorial Day of May 30 became a national institution the propriety of sending the floral tribute to Washington on that date naturally suggested itself and President Grant accordingly made the amendment to the time-honored custom. Gen. Grant at the same time inaugurated the custom of sending a floral wreath to the last resting place of Lincoln, in Illinois, as a Memorial Day token so that Grant is probably entitled to credit as the real originator of this custom as we find it in vogue today.

President McKinley, another Civil War President, always made it a practice to send a floral wreath to the tomb of Grant, on Riverside Drive, New York, each Memorial Day, and it is possible that this annual White House tribute to Grant dates from an earlier date although the records do not show that the great Union leader was regularly remembered in this manner before McKinley's occupancy of the Executive office. Since our last martyr President manifested his sympathy with this form of Decoration Day tribute it was eminently appropriate that President Roosevelt should, during his first year in office, add McKinley's name to the list of those who are honored in this way. Now this distribution of the floral wreaths at the end of each recurring May has become a White House custom, rather than Presidential habit, solely dependent upon the individual, and henceforth wreaths will probably go not only to the tombs of Washington, Lincoln, Grant and McKinley but also to the graves of the two other Civil War Presidents—Hayes and Garfield.

President Wilson, the present incumbent of the Presidential office, far from manifesting any disposition to abridge the plan has indicted an intention to extend it. Thus, a few weeks after assuming office, the new President had prepared the first of his memorial wreaths and sent it, on the anniversary of Thomas Jefferson's birthday, to be placed on the grave of the founder of the Democratic party at Charlottesville, Virginia. But, for that matter it would be strange indeed if the Wilsons did not adopt in the fullest degree the now established system of sending floral tributes and gifts from the White House for the present Chief Magistrate and his wife are great lovers of flowers. Indeed it is probable that Mrs. Wilson has a greater fondness for flowers than had any other First Lady of the Land, not even excepting Mrs. McKinley.

There are no set and enduring fashions as to the composition of the President's Memorial Day wreaths but it is a sort of unwritten law at the White House conservatories that these Decoration Day tributes shall be just about the handsomest floral pieces that are ever sent forth with the President's card. Mrs. Roosevelt, who always took a keen interest in such matters, personally selected the flowers for the memorial Day offerings that were prepared during her regime, but as a rule the President leaves all such details to his advisor in these matters—the chief florist, and there have been some instances when the President did not even see the wreaths ere they were dispatched, yet had every confidence that they were worthy expressions of a Presidential remembrance of the occasion.

However there are certain hard and fast rules that are almost invariably observed. For instance, the size of the wreath is almost always the same—say, about three feet in diameter and the foundation is almost invariably copper beech leaves, for, be it explained, the White House wreaths are not the solid masses of flowers that are sometimes seen. It is considered that merely clusters of flowers arranged on a foundation of leaves is not only more appropriate but also affords a floral piece that will preserve its appearance for a greater length of time.

There is a disposition to adhear rather rigidly to that color scheme—white and purple—which is so much favored for all manner of floral tributes to those who have passed to the beyond. Thus, in some instances, Presidential wreaths have presented a combination of white and purple orchids on the foundation of neutral tone whereas in other cases white rosebuds and violets ahve been utilized. In deference to the late President McKinley's taste in flowers the White House wreaths sent to the tomb at Canton have usually been heavily laden with fragrant carnations.

The President's Memorial Day wreaths do not require more than a day for their preparation but they are completed and dispatched at different times because of the varying intervals required to reach their respective destinations. In some instances the wreaths have not been sent by special messenger but have been shipped by express to some person with whom arrangements have previously been made to act as the President's proxy in placing the wreath on the tomb. In each instance there is attached to the wreath a specially engraved card, prepared expressly for this purpose and which bears, in addition to the written inscription, a small steel engraving of the White House.

The general public,—even that portion of it which journeys to Washington on sightseeing tours, has not heard so much about the White House conservatories since these bowers of beauty were removed from the immediate proximity of the Presidential Mansion. In the old days when the floral establishment adjoined the dining room and the kitchen at the White House it vied with those two domestic centers in popular feminine interest but when the White House was reconstructed during the Roosevelt administration the conservatories had to give way to the Executive Office Building and the "wing" whereby it is connected with the White House proper.

Removal of the White House conservatories was made to the open space adjacent to the Washington Monument and here they have undergone an expansion that would never have been possible on the old site. To be sure, the White House floral annex is now merged, in a sense, with the interests of the U. S. Government Propagating Gardens—an institution which supplies plants and flowers for the parks, government reservations, etc., at the national capital.

The latter part of the month of May, the time when the Memorial Day wreaths must be prepared is likely to see heavy demands upon the White House conservatories, for all that so many flowers are blooming in the open at that season. But whatever the demand the White House florists seldom have to confess to a condition approximating a scarcity much less a famine of flowers. Such are their resources that it is nothing unusual for the President's flower gardeners to have, say, 3,000 to 4,000 carnations in bloom at one time. The orchids which, as above mentioned, have been utilized in the prepartion of some of the most beautiful of the Memorial Day wreaths sent forth from the White House are derived from one of the finest collection of orchids in the United States. Orchids constituted the floral hobby of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt during her years in the White House and under the spur of her interest the florists gathered together a notable collection of these rare flowers. U. S. Army officers stationed in the Philippines and government officials in Panama having contributed a number of rarities.

RALLIED IN NINTH BUT LOST THE GAME

North Plainfield High School Dropped Close One at Somerville High's Field.

Somerville High School diamond performers evened up matters with their North Plainfield High School rivals Saturday afternoon when the boroughites appeared in an exhibition contest in connection with the demonstration of Somerset county school work, by revenging the early season beating at the hands of the North Plainfielders with a reverse count of 7 to 6. As the score indicates, the game was close and interesting to the large crowd of spectators who witnessed it and both combinations put up sterling games. Kershaw was in better form than when he appeared on Hyde Oval and held the N. P. H. S. clan to three scattered bingles, while his teammates were pounding Stahl and Spencer's offerings for eight of the life-giving kind.

A run rally in the last trip to the plate netted the visitors three runs, giving them a lead of two runs over the Somerville troop when it came to bat, but the latter willow wielders overcame his advantage by pulling over a couple of more counters in their session at the bat.

The score:

HOPE CHAPEL TAKES ANOTHER KEEPING ITS RECORD UNBLEMISHED BY DEFEAT

By virtue of the victory they were awarded by Umpire Simmons in their game with First Baptist at Probasco Field, Saturday afternoon, the Hope Chapel representatives still hold fort on the top of the Sunday-school Baseball League ladder, and have yet to suffer their first reverse. Monroe defeated Park Avenue over the week-end, crawling into a tie with First Baptist, each of the contestants having won and lost one to date.

The Park-Monroe game was a speedy exhibition of baseball and was attended by a fair-sized delegation of rival cohorts who were supplied with the necessary excitement during the battle. The untimely ending of the Hope-First Baptist clash was the result of an argument arising over an umpire's decision, and this is one of the same things that blurred the workings of the same organization last season, protests becoming numerous toward the end of the schedule. The losers have not announced their intention of protesting the game but a kick of this kind brings back remembrances of the struggle the league had to finish up its season last fall.

Two contests, one decided by a single tally in the ninth stanza, and the other by the slim margin of two counters, featured the week-end play in the City Baseball League, the Spicer team going down to defeat at the hands of the West Ends and the Royal Giants falling a victim to the Saurers' baseball prowess.

By virtue of their defeat over the Royal Giants, the Saurer team still holds undisputed possession of the top story, with two victories and no defeats. Both games were well attended and interest does not seem to wane an atom over the recently organized league. The followers are many and of the loyal brand, who attend the games regularly and follow the movements of their favorites minutely.

High Bridge continues to lose in the Central New Jersey League race and the other trio of contenders are gaining ground at the Highlanders' expense at every meeting. Baseball luck seems to be against the High Bridge nine who are being pursued by a jinx that they cannot shake. Saturday's game was dropped to Plainfield in the tenth inning after an overtime contest had been ordered when the teams finished deadlocked at 6 to 6.

At Dunellen probably the largest crowd that ever witnessed a game in this league turned out to see the "Corn-Huskers" take the field against Somerville and the greatest exhibition of baseball seen in the little suburb of Dunellen in many moons, was on the bill of fare. Dunellen won in a brilliant finish after the teams had run neck and neck for eight and two-thirds innings and won by a score of 3 to 2.

Both of the contests Saturday were won in the last innings played and the pair of games were perhaps the speediest that has ever been pulled off in the organization. Dunellen now holds first place in the team standing and looks like a pretty stiff defender of the top rung position. Plainfield has won two and lost the same number, placing it third, next to High Bridge, which has played one less contest.

DUNELLEN WON IN THE NINTH

Held Hitless for Five Innings the "Corn Huskers" Flash a Wonderful Spurt.

VICTORY FOR WARRY

Veteran Twirler's Hit Scores Tying Run and Coyle Running for Him Brings Winning Counter to Dunellen—Kraft's Great Twirling Feats.

For eight and two thirds long innings Bob Bogardus' Dunellen baseball team, of the Central New Jersey League, was contented to trail in the wake of the Somerville aggregation of the same organization, and with the score 2 to 1 in favor of the Somervillians, the "Corn Huskers" sprung the inevitable and romped home a winner with a final count of 3 to 2. One of the greatest finishes ever exhibited on a baseball diamond turned the trick in Dunellen's favor and the largest mob of fans that ever attended a Central League game went wild with excitement when Billy Coyle, whose base running had been a brilliant feature of the game, sprinted across the pan with the winning run. For twenty-six put-outs Dunellen had been contented to lie in the rear and uphold the smaller end of the score, being entirely at the mercy of the wiley Eddie Kraft, and then took the spectators completely off their feet by flashing a hair raising spurt after McLaughlin had two strikes and three balls on him, another strike having meant victory for the Somerset county seat delegation.

In this critical position Warry paved the way to victory by smashing a scorcher over the keystone sack bringing Dixon across the home station, after the burly Dunellen catcher had got to first on a hit and to the middle station on a fielder's choice. McLaughlin's bingle was of the timely sort and happened to be the only one he got during the whole game.

For five innings Kraft held the home ball tossers completely at his mercy, not a man getting to second base during the initial quintet of rounds, and only one man got life on the first station. Not a single bit was pounded out at his expense in these stanzas and not more than three men faced him in any one of them. In the sixth Dunellen woke up after Coyle opened the round with a hit, which was neatly placed along the third base line and this seemed to put new life into the Bogardus clan. Billy went from first to third on Giddes' long hit to deep center field and tallied on Jim Wolf's bingle Dunellen managed to get another man on the sacks in the seventh when an error by Wiltse gave George Wolf life. Wolf stole second and went to third on Lindbloom's out.

With Wolf on third and a single needed to tie the score Norman Barnes went to the plate and proceeded to whiff the air for his third straight strikeout of the afternoon. In the eighth Kraft repeated his trick of the earlier sessions by disposing of the side in one, two, three order.

Somerville opened the scoring side of the contest by drawing blood in the fourth inning. In this session Grimes sent a two bagger to deep center field, the first hit of the game, after Cunningham had died on three strikes. Grimes registered the initial tally on Torpey's single. Somerville got another counter across the pan in the sixth when Grimes again led off with a hit, after one out had been recorded, stole second and third and registered on Jim Wolf's error. This constituted the Somerset county boys' end of the scoring, however, and Dunellen came into for a run in their half of the sixth when Coyle started festivities by getting his side's first hit of the contest.

In the eventful ninth Dixon singled and went to second on a fielder's choice from where he scored on McLaughlin's hard drive. Coyle, running for the pitcher, secured the winning tally when Hickey fumbled Lindbloom's scorcher in the last part of the ninth.

In the third inning McLaughlin did a stunt he has accomplished on three previous occasions this season, that of disposing of the side with three pitched balls. Both twirlers pitched masterful ball, Kraft having decidedly the better of the argument in the early stages, but gradually weakened while the old "war horse" grew stronger as the game progressed. During the nine rounds of play Kraft fanned an even dozen, Barnes three times, and Frezza and Giddes each twice, and allowed but five safties, while McLaughlin disposed of eight along the strikeout route and allowed the same number of hits.

JONES SMASHES HIS OWN WORLD'S MARK

Cornell Captain's Marvelous Running Features the Intercollegiate Meet.

John Paul Jones, Cornell's wonderful athlete, smashed the world's amateur record for the one-mile run at the intercollegiate games in the Harvard stadium Saturday afternoon and finished his career on the college cinder path in a blaze of glory.

Jones ran the classic mile in 4 minutes 14 2-5 seconds, a full second better than he did two years ago, when he first broke Tommy Conneff's long standing mark. Furthermore, Jones ran within two seconds of the world's professional record, made by W. G. George, of England, more than thirty years ago.

The marvelous running of the Cornell captain was the feature of the championship meeting, but in his record breaking performance in the mile he outdid himself and was defeated in the half-mile run by G. E. Brown, of Yale. His defeat in this race put an end to whatever hope Cornell had of winning thec hampionship cup for all time, and the title went to Pennsylvania.

The Quakers rolled up a total of 24 points and were hard pressed at the end by Harvard, which scored 21½ points. The disqualification of Jackson, the Crimson's star hurdler, in the low timbers, probably prevented Harvard from adding three points to its score and incidentally winning the championship.

LEAGUE GAME WAS AWARDED TO HOPE

Umpire's Ruling Gives Chapelites a Victory in Four Rounds of Play.

Umpire Simmons, who officiated at the Hope Chapel-First Baptist game in connection with the Sunday-school Baseball League race played at Probasco Field Saturday afternoon, awarded the game to the Hope contingent with two out in the fourth inning after a dispute had arisen over one of his decisions, the First Baptist team leaving the field of play. Overland got a berth on second in this eventful round and proceeded to pilfer third, and when he landed at that station the official called him safe, much to the disgust of the First Baptist ball tossers who openly expressed their views on the subject. The remarks used became offensive to the arbitrator's dignity and he politely requested Jack Fritts, who apeared to be the leader in the attack, to leave the field of play. This further peeved the First Baptist aggregation and they refused to play if the shortstop was benched claiming that they did not have another player on the field.

The untimely ending game at a juncture when the Chapelites were leading the race by a score of 3 to 0 and had a pretty good chance of coming out in the van anyway. By virtue of the umpire's decision the Chapelites now hold undisputed possession of the top rung and look the one best bet for pennant honors at the present stage of hostilities.

During the four innings of play but one hit was garnered from Schott's delivery by the heavy hitting First Baptist delegation and he fanned a trio in the bargain. Hope Chapel, on the other hand, managed to touch Bailey's cross fire slants to the extent of five safties, one of which took the form of a two bagger from Hub Terry's bat.

When the contest was curtailed both teams were in the middle of a stellar fielding exhibition, but one misplay being recorded during the four innings, and First Baptist was the holder of that black mark.

BASEBALL NOTES

On their first Western trip of th season, the Champion Red Sox won seven and lost eight games.

Charlie Dooin's Phillies have won 15 of their 19 home games this season, or nearly 79 per cent.

Peggy Lipe's Savannah team is setting a hot pace in the South Atlantic League. The team won 21 of the first 27 games.

With either Hamilton or Baumgartner in the box, the St. Louis Browns are able to give the best of them a run for it.

Pitcher Fred Bender, brother of "Chief" Bender, the famous twirler of the Athletics, is to get a trial with the Cleveland Naps.

Ping Bodie, erstwhile bench warmer, has found his batting eye and is helping the White Sox with a safe blow now and then.

Pitcher Card Cashion being out of the game on account of an injured arm, is a heavy handicap on the National's pennant chances.

The Roanoke Tigers, who will raise their Virginia League pennant on June 10, are fighting hard to bring home another flag this season.

Miller Huggins' Cardinals made an excellent showing during their Eastern trip. The Cards were the only Western team to break even with the Phils.

Manager Earle Mack, of the Raleigh Carolina League team, has released his young brother, Harold Mack. Both boys are sons of Connie Mack, the Philadelphia manager.

Besides being a nifty twirler, Sisler, the Michigan University pitcher, is a clever outfielder and one of the greatest batters that ever played in college baseball.

The New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox will start their tour of the world at Chicago on October 15 next, returning to the United States about March 1, 1914.

That's a great pennant chase the International League teams are putting up this season. The teams are traveling along with about 200 points separating the first and eighth position.

Toledo has obtained a promising young catcher in Rex De Vogt. Catcher Whalling's fine showing with the Braves caused Manager Stallings to release De Vogt to the Mud Hens recently.

President Murphy, of the Cubs, denies that he threatened to put muzzles on his athletes to prevent them from talking to reporters. When it comes to copping newspaper space Charles has a circus press agent gasping for breath.

Both the Detroit Tigers and the New York Giants are trying to land Eddie Roush, the 19-year-old center fielder of the Evansville Central League team. He is hitting above .400, and has not failed to reach first in 20 games.

When Manager Callahan, of the White Sox, released George Johnson, the Indian pitcher, to the Reds, it was said that the Redskin was a bloomer and that he would "blow" before July 1. Maybe so. But the Phillies have been the only outfit to get to the Indian so far.

SPICERS LOSE CLOSE GAME IN THE NINTH

One run in the ninth inning, and that one a fizzel, beat the Spicer baseball team in their scheduled game with the West End A. C. aggregation of the City Baseball League Saturday afternoon, and the Spicer lads once more had to be contented with the lower half of the tally card, which was 7 to 6. Excitement, and lots of it, prevailed throughout the whole nine stanzas of play, the junior leaguers putting up an article of baseball that savored of an organization of a higher class. Brilliant fielding stunts were pulled off at a number of different times and the starring was pretty well divided up among the eighteen participants in the struggle McClinton's hit, the third he had made during the afternoon, was the outdoing of the Spicer nine, for this started the trouble that ended in the Joint Makers defeat.

The opposing twirlers threw the pill to perfection, tightening up when hits meant runs and holding entire control of the situation at all times. Jack Denny, the former Plainfield High School moundsman, was particularly strong in the pinches and his good mound work was largely responsible for the West Ends victory. Aside from holding the Spicer men to eight hits, he whiffed ten and figured in three assists that came into his territory during the struggle. Denny is an employe of the Spicer plant and he was facing men from his own factory in the game Saturday.

Dolan, who wore the Spicer black and white funeral garb, was nearly as strong as his opponent, allowing the same number of hits and fanning eight. Dolan also did some good sticking, pounding out two of his team's hits that figured conspicuously in the run gathering. The fielding of the winners was a trifle off color, six misplays being credited to them during the afternoon, while the Spicer fielders managed to hold the error column down to a trio of black marks.

Krebs, the events in the athletic meet being classified according to ages. The affair was an entire success, being attended by about 450 guests who viewed the athletic stunts and handicraft work accomplished during the past year.

By special request the North Plainfield High School girls' basketball team played the Somerville High School feminine quintet, winning out by a score of 12 to 3. Although the weather was anything but adaptable to the playing of basketball, a speedy exhibition of the court game was displayed and the stellar basket caging of Miss Marjorie Burtis, who netted five field goals, was a feature which kept the spectators in continuance rounds of applause.

The North Plainfield and Somerville High School baseball teams indulged in a diamond exhibition in the afternoon, which was won by the home team.

CIVIC BODIES MET ON THE BALL FIELD

Twenty-two runs in five innings was the record of the Netherwood Residents' Society baseball team made on the Netherwood field Saturday when they lined up against the ball artists sporting the colors of the West End Civic Society. During the wrangle the West Ends were held to eight counters and when the game was curtailed to partake of refreshments in the middle of the sixth session they were satisfied beyond a doubt that the Netherwood aggregatin was their master in every department of the game. Ringers were used by the winners in the nature of younger diamond stars who helped materially in the run getting and preventing and to these few real ball players the West Enders attribute their defeat.

In the four rounds in which they pulled tallies across the gutapercha, the winners registered returns of two, three, twelve and five runs, while the losers scored one, six and one. Many old time diamond stars returned to the game for the sake of upholding their organization's reputation for the day at least, but kinks were prevalent among a majority of the performers and the old snap and ginger was a missing quantity in many instances. In the fourth inning every man on the Netherwood team went to bat twice and everyone got a nip out of the pellet at least.

Lewis cracked out a home run with three men on the bases for the Netherwood combination while Davis, of the West Ends, chalked up a two bagger as did also Poucher. Following the game the players were entertained at the home of A. C. Wilmerding, of the winning squad.

Score by innings:

NETHERWOOD A. C. CONQUERED FAST GOING SHAMROCK TEAM

The Netherwood A. C. stopped the fast going Shamrocks by a score 12 to 11, in a game marked by heavy hitting, yesterday afternoon. Barnes, of the Dixie Colored Giants, who started the game for the Shamrocks, was hit to all corners of the lot, while Maiden, of the Royal Giants, fared little better in his half of the game, each pitcher allowing six runs. Denny, for the Netherwoods, held the Rocks well in hand for the first five innings, after being touched quite lively but finished in fine style by fanning Miller, the Rock's best slugger, who on his other trips to the plate made two two-baggers and a triple, for the third out with a runner on second, ending the game. The batting of Maiden, of the Shamrocks, and Mullin, of the Netherwoods, and the general fielding of Netherwoods furnished the excitement for a large crowd of fans.

QUERIES, COMMENT AND ANSWERS

Sporting Editor:

Query—When does the season for Oswego bass open?—J. K. L.

Answer—It will not open again this year as it opened Decoration Day, last Friday.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Who led in stolen bases in the American League last season?—G. F.

Answer—Claude Milan, of the Washington Club, with a total of 88.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Please state the duties of the manager and captain of a junior baseball team?—O. L. M.

Answer—The manager books games and arranges all details in connection with that end of the playing. The captain has charge of the team after it takes the field and arranges the lineup generally, but these duties vary to some extent as far as junior aggregations are concerned. An understanding between the captain and manager as to their respective duties is generally reached previous to the opening of the season.

Sporting Editor:

Query—How much will it cost me to rent a canoe for the season, namely June, July and August, on Deal Lake, Asbury Park? Also can a boat be hired for these months for a family?—F. G. H.

Answer—The usual price is between $15 and $20 per month, but you may be lucky enough to land one even cheaper. Yes, you can hire a canoe for the family, although you may not all be able to use it at the same time.

Sporting Editors:

Query—What two numbers multiplied will give 5,098 as an answer?—H. I. H.

Answer—You are evidently a kidder, H. I. H., but 5,098 and 1 will supply you with the desired information.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is the time for the leaving of the special excursion boat of the Central Hudson Steamboat Company?—R. O. L.

Answer—The boat leaves at 9 o'clock in the morning for West Point and Newburg.

STEWART'S HIT WINS FOR PETS

Two-base Wallop in the Tenth Starts Rally That Ends in a Victory.

A HIT BOMBARDMENT

Final Score 7 to 6—Both Twirlers Touched For Many Bingles—High Bridge Still Champions of Cellar Berth.

Ten innings of play was needed to score a defeat over the winless High Bridge team of the Central New Jersey League Saturday afternoon when Plainfield came out ahead on the bigger end of a 7 to 6 count as the result of a whirlwind finish. "Rus" Stewart, twirling his first full game, clouted out a two bagger in the tenth inning, that eventually resulted in the winning run being credited to the Pets, for a minute later McGee connected for a single bringing Stewart across the rubber. Heavy hitting and lots of it, featured the contest which was played before a crowd of High Bridge baseball crazy fans, who were anxious to see Frederickson win his first game in a High Bridge uniform. The pitchers were clouted unmercifully at times and but for the support, which tightened at crucial moments, the score might have soared into doubled figures.

Two base hits told the tale of victory for Plainfield, and secured the majority of High Bridge's runs, for no less than three double sackers were credited to the visitors and the same number to the cellar occupants. High Bridge rang up two runs in the second round of the battle, getting a 2 to 0 lead on the Plainfielders, which set the home followers mad. In this session Henry Alberts led off with his usual two bagger, went to third on Anderson's single and scored on DeNitzio's one base wallop. The latter stole second, went to third after Howley's long fly had been caught and counted on Frederickson's timely bingle. Plainfield more than evened matters up in the third, however, when Craig led off with a single, stole second, went to third when Bergen got life on DeNitzio's error, and scored on Garretson's hit. In the meantime Bergen was forced to second when Nelson got a base on balls and went to the far station on Garretson's bingle, and later scored. Stallings had previous counted on the Plainfield first baseman's hit.

The Pets got two more in the fourth when Stewart opened the inning with a single, went to third on McGee's two station wallop and counted on Stalling's single. McGee also scored on the second base guardian's long one base clout. High Bridge made an extra inning tussle necessary in the seventh and eighth getting two runs in each bracket. In the seventh Anderson started off with a two bagger, went to third on DeNitzio's long fly and stole home. Howley got life when he connected for a single went to third on Freddy's two bagger and registered on J. Walton's hit. In the eighth session Anderson was safe on Garretson's slip, went to second when De Nitzio was safe on McGee's error and second on Howley's bingle. DeNitzio went to third on the same hit and counted a minute later on an error. The tenth inning went to Plainfield when Stewart got his two bagger, went to third and scored on McGee's single.

PARK AVENUE FALLS BEFORE MONROE NINE

Close Contest Won by a Margin of Two Runs—Hefti Stars on the Mound.

Park Avenue suffered another close reverse in their trip toward the Sunday-school League pennant Saturday afternoon, falling a victim to the slants of Hefti, who adorned the Monroe M. E. mound and won his game by a score of 5 to 3. The contest was another tight one such as Park Avenue has indulged in on every appearance this season and the fact that the Monroes were victorious was by no means discouraging to the losers, who are fast regaining their speedy stride evidenced in the early season practice contests and expect to make it lively for the other league contenders before the race gets much older.

Hefti held the strong Park batters to a trio of hits Saturday afternoon and whiffed six, while Mills was fanning the same number, and the Monroes were touching his offerings to the extent of eight clouts. Nine errors were totaled up by both teams, five by the winners and four by the losers. After the first inning, when Park scored three runs, not a man on that team crossed the platter, while the winning aggregation pulled counters across in the first, second and sixth. What little scoring was done came in bunches and the sides were both retired in one, two, three order during a majority of the rounds.

LOCAL BALL TEAM WON IN Y. M. H. A. LEAGUE

The local Y. M. H. A. defeated the New Brunswick Y. M. H. A. at Riverside Park, yesterday, by a score of 10 to 8. The defeat of the New Brunswick Y. M. H. A. was rather a hard battle for the locals but they turned the trick and added another link to their chain of victories. They have won four games and have yet to suffer a loss.

Rosenson, on first base, made a remarkable catch running into right field for a fly and nabbing it for the third out. The losers used two pitchers, Walker and Karchner, but they both looked alike to the Plainfielders. Plainfield only used Benny Rosenson, and he had the big fellows biting. Shrager clouted out three hits and scored four runs.

MONROE PLAYER INJURED IN PRIMROSE VICTORY

The Monroe A. C. journeyed to Lincoln, Sunday, and defeated the fast Primrose A. C., 5 to 3. The Primrose team was padded up by having five men who played on the first team. Healy, the speedy twirler, held the Primrose nine safe in the pinches. McClinton and Fitzgerald, the "comeback kings" of the Monroes, played their usual heady game. The only misfortune the Monroes have had this season occurred in the fifth inning when Campbell, the star fielder, was quite seriously injured by colliding with Smith due to a mixup in signals.

Fitzgerald, Morley, Healy and Smith batted hard while Cullen played a fast game at third base Rafferty, Frolic and Sofield played fast for the Primroses. The Monroes not only outplayed the Primroses but outbatted them two to one.

SCOTCH PLAINS CONTINUES TO WIN SUNDAY CONTESTS

A aggregation from Jersey City known as the Maujer X. went down to defeat before the formidable Scotch Plains combination at the latter place, yesterday afternoon, before one of the largest Sunday crowds of the season. Cliff Randolph, the local heaver, adorned the mound for the winning nine, the final score being 10 to 4.

Walton, the Somerville Central Leaguer, played second for the winners and his hitting was a bright feature of the contest. Out of five trips to the plate he returned a card containing four safe bingles.

C. M. CHURCH WINS "TOMBSTONE" CONTEST

The golfers of the Plainfield Country Club enjoyed a "tombstone" contest Saturday afternoon, which attracted a large number of competitors. Each player added his handicap to the par score of the course, which is 70, and went as far as that number of strokes would take him. C. M. Church won the event, reaching the 18th green. T. S. Wheeler recahed the 18th bunker, J. M. Middledith the 18th fairway, D. H. Rowland the 17th green, George Schoonmaker, A. M. Collens, W. W. Coriell reached the 17th fairway, and Roger F. Murray the 17th hole. About fifty players were in the competition.

There was also a golf ball sweepstakes. C. B. Morgan was the winner. The best scores:

C. M. Morgan, 78, 7-71; C. M. Collens, 87, 11-76; W W. Coriell, 103, 27-76; A. W. Kleinecke, 102, 25-77; L. H. Gates, 105, 23-82; Dr. F. E. DuBois, 103, 17-86.

WENZ SMASHES RECORD.

Ezra Wenz, the little Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. runner and holder of the United States Interscholastic two-mile record, who ran in this city last summer against the local Y. M. C. A. five-mile squad, added a new mark to his list when he covered the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. cross-country route of four and one-half miles in twenty-four minutes and forty-four seconds. His mark was made in connection with the semi-annual cross country run of the association last Saturday.

Y. M. A. A. IDLE SATURDAY.

Owing to the non-appearance of the Holy Cross baseball team on the Centre street diamond Saturday afternoon, the Y. M. A. A. baseball team was without an opponent and therefore did not play a game. Manager Conger was satisfied with the situation, however, as his players indulged in two stiff contests the day before and the calibre of the Holy Cross aggregation was not the kind sought by the Y. M. A. A. nine which is much heavier and faster.

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

By FRANCES MARSHALL

When Currants are Ripe.

Currants for hot weather and currants for cold weather—but currants often when they are in season—might be the motto of the economical housewife, for fresh currants are an economical fruit to prepare for desserts for luncheon and dinner and for breakfast, as well.

Because of their acid, they should be prepared with sugar for breakfast. Try cooking them in this way some evening, and serve them for breakfast the next morning: Stem a cupful of currants and wash them and mash them with a wooden spatula; add about three-quarters of a cupful of sugar and let it dissolve in the currant juice. Then bring it to the boiling point. Pour the fruit into a bowl and keep covered in the icebox until morning.

Shortcake and pie are two good currant dishes for cool summer days. The shortcake is made of a rich biscuit dough, baked in a layer, split and buttered. The filling is made of a quart of ripe currants into which two cupfuls of granulated sugar are stirred. The currants and sugar should stand together for an hour. Just before time to serve them put half the currants between the two layers and the other half on top and serve immediately.

Pie.

For currant pie line a pie dish with paste, cover with a sheet of waxed paper, and fill with beans. Bake until done but not at all brown, pour out the beans and remove the paper. Make a filling of a cupful of mashed currants mixed with a cupful of sugar, the yolks of two eggs and a tablespoonful of flour mixed to a smooth paste in two or three tablespoonfuls of cold water. Pour the filling into the crust and bake until firm. Beat the whites of two eggs stiff, beat again with three tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar, and pile this meringue on the pie. Brown delicately in the oven and serve cold.

With Raspberries.

Raspberries and currants combine well, for the currant excels in a quality which the raspberry lacks—acid. Cooked together, in the proportion of three parts of raspberry to one of currants, and stewed for not more than ten minutes, sweetened and cooled, they are delicious. They can also be mixed for ice cream or water ice.

To make raspberry and currant ice cream press a pint of red raspberries through a sieve with a cupful of red currants and a cupful and a half of granulated sugar. Let the fruit and sugar stand together for an hour, then add a pint of cream and freeze.

Sherbet made from two fruits calls for a quart of raspberries, mashed and strained, and half a pint of currant juice, added to a cold syrup made from a pound of sugar and four cupfulls of water boiled together for five minutes. Freeze, and when the dasher is taken out, add a meringue made from the white of one egg beaten stiff and mixed with a tablespoonful of powdered sugar.

Some Cookery Suggestions

RHUBARB PASTRIES.

PIES and tarts of rhubarb are popular in the spring. The only objection to them is that the under crust is sometimes soggy, a fault due to the fact that the juice soaks through.

Shortcake and Tarts.

Rhubarb Shortcake.—Make a dough as for any other kind of shortcake, roll thin and brush the surface with melted butter, then spread rhubarb cut in quarter of an inch pieces over half the surface of the dough, sprinkle thickly with sugar, turn the other half of the crust over this, pinch the edges together, and bake. Serve as you would strawberry shortcake.

Rhubarb Tarts.—Prepare the rhubarb and the crusts separately. Bake crisp crusts in muffin rings. Wash, dry and skin rhubarb stalks, cut them in inch pieces and stew them slowly until perfectly tender with a very little water. Add sugar when they are taken from the stove, while they are still hot. Chill the rhubarb and at the last minute put it into the crusts.

Served With Custard.

Rhubarb Cobbler.—Take a cupful of sour milk, a half teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a little cold water and added to the milk a tablespoonful of butter and enough flour to make a medium batter. Put the rhubarb, cut in short lengths, in a pudding dish and sugar it generously. Then pour over it the batter. Bake it in a moderate oven. Serve it hot with boiled custard or sugar and cream.

An Old Fashioned Pie.

Rhubarb Pie.—Wash and cut the rhubarb into small pieces, but do not remove the pink skin. Pour boiling water over it and let it stand for five minutes, then drain it off. This draws out some of the acid juice. Fill an earthen or granite plate with the rhubarb and sprinkle over it sugar in the proportion of one cupful to a heaping pint of rhubarb. Mix one tablespoonful of flour with the sugar and put one tablespoonful of butter in little pieces, here and there, on the pieplant. Cover with a rich crust, which should be pressed close to the edge of the plate. Slash in the middle and bake slowly.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Why the Fairy Thought She Would Stay at Home.

The Fairy Started to Hunt a Home.

THERE was a faraway look in daddy's eyes as Jack and Evelyn came over to his chair.

Daddy had heard a good deal of loud talking from the corner where they were working over a new puzzle. The talk had sounded something like this:

"'Tis so!" "'Tain't so!"

"Once upon a time," daddy began, with that faraway look still in his eyes, "there was a dear lovely fairy who got tired of her pink rose petal palace in fairyland and thought she would go a-visiting among mortals.

"A family of wasps had come to live on a tree near the palace, and she said that the buzzing of the wasps disturbed her.

"'Very well,' agreed the fairy queen, 'you just take a look around anywhere you choose. If you think you can find any place nicer than fairyland you are welcome to live there. There may be more disagreeable noises than the buzzing of wasps.'

"'There must be many nice children that would be glad to have a fairy live with them,' said the fairy as she started out, expecting to have a lovely time on her vacation.

"Well, this little fairy flew away from fairyland till she came to a nice white house in mortal land. She lighted on the windowsill.

"Inside the house a baby was crying. 'Come, little daughter Rosalie, and rock the baby to sleep,' said some one.

"'I don' wan' to!' a very cross little voice replied.

"'Dear, dear, I shouldn't want to live in that house!' the fairy cried and spread her wings and flew on till she came to a nice dark green house with vines growing all over it.

"'This looks nice and peaceful,' she said, and she settled down on a honeysuckle vine near the door.

"But, oh, alas, a little boy and girl were on the porch, and the little boy and girl couldn't agree at all. The little girl screamed, and the little boy stamped his feet on the porch. The fairy put her fingers in her ears and flew away as fast as she could.

"Well, the fairy looked around a good deal. But at the end of the day she made up her mind that she would go back to fairyland. She said that while the wasps did make a good deal of noise she could stand it better than the quarreling of human crosspatches, for ill temper is one thing fairies cannot and will not put up with. So if you want a nice fairy to come and live in your house you must be very, very careful what you say and how you say it."

HINTS ON FASHIONS IN THE METROPOLIS

New York, May 31.—It was to be expected that the abandoning of strict rules governing the details of style of cut, ornamentation, etc., in women's fashions would first lead to displays of originality and eventually to absurd and sensational extremes. Ever since the coming into fashion of the hobble skirt things have gone from bad to worse and now the point has been reached when an exhibition of the latest models by the noted fashion designers of Paris and other fashion centres reminds one of nothing so much as of an exhibition of Cubist "art."

One of the latest freak notions is the adoption of the Japanese silhouette as interpreted by the western originators of fashions. Only a short time ago one of the best known importers displayed a model which was so completely Japanese that it caused those who saw it gasp with astonishment. The costume was in the new taffeta, which is quite unlike the old material. One occasionally sees on the street a woman wearing a dress of changeable taffeta of the kind that was popular a few seasons ago. It is excessively brilliant of surface, while the new weaves of the fabric have a curious filmy sheen, almost like the soft bloom on a plum.

The Japanese model referred to was in light green taffeta. It had a set-on hem of the same material and the regular "obi" or broad sash which the Japanese woman wears around her waist and ties in an immense butterfly bow in the back. The material stood away from the back of the neck quite stiffly. The only trimming was embroidery of green and silvery gray floss silk in a Japanese arrangement of squares. Naturally this frankly Japanese costume is another of the extremes that are constantly submitted to public inspection. But fashion designers only too often intentionally overshoot the mark which they mean shall be their final aim. They know that the winds of popular prejudice and the resistance of the average feminine conservatism will make these exaggerated flights land eventually at some reasonable point.

It is safe to predict that in the matter of the new figure, comparatively few women will go to an ugly extreme. Of course, there are always women, vulgar in their tastes and eager for something sensational, no matter how inartistic and improper it may be, who will espouse anything freakish and absurd merely for the sake of attracting attention and gaining notoriety. But the bulk of the women, even among those who devote a great deal of their time, thought and money to fashion matters, are to a great extent conservative and not easily persuaded to adopt outre fashions.

New girdles and sashes appear as by magic every few days, and some of them are fearful and wonderful indeed. Others will be unobjectionable if they are discreetly reserved for wear with white and cream summer frocks. Of these are the new pongee sashes in Cubist designs and colors. They come from ten to eighteen inches in width and look more like crepe than pongee. The ends are gathered in tassels made of the colors shown in the printed patterns.

Shoes and hosiery become more and more striking, and such variety and novelty were never born to blush unseen, either. French fashion creators may issue edicts against slashed skirts until they are tired; with these tempting specimens of footwear spread out before them, many American women will snap their fingers at the edicts from Paris and will demand a chance to display the new finery.

Many of the shoes are really charming, and they will be especially so with summer frocks. There is nothing essentially vulgar in a colored heel. On the contrary, when it is a component part of the color scheme of a costume, it forms an attractive note. The combination of different fabrics with leather in some of the low shoes has also produced many really good and attractive effects—as well as many extremely bad ones.

Novelties in hosiery are to be adopted with much more caution than those in shoes this season. And certainly the two are not to be worn together when the "novelty" is in the least conspicuous. If the shoes are plain, one may permit one's self a departure from the absolutely plain silk stockings, although most women of good taste will confine themselves to the changeable effects, to woven stripes in a plain color, or at most to the lace stripe when worn with a lingerie frock.

Most of the stamped patterns for embroidered waists presuppose a back closing, and most of the waists this year are made with a front closing. The problem which confronts the woman who buys two or three stamped shirt waist patterns for pick-up embroidery in the warm weather is how to make a front closing right through the center of the embroidery design. Sometimes the pattern will be so open and loose that it will not be difficult to cut the waist from top to bottom either in the center front or else on the left side for a closing there. Many of the prettiest of the new waists have side closings which run either straight up and down or diagonally from shoulder to waist.

An applied hem of the material of the waist can be put on for the button holes and a facing or underlap can be made for the buttons. The hem can be in the form of a narrow, stitched box pleat. An applied hem can also be made of contrasting material. If the waist is stamped and embroidered on white voile, plaided, striped or figured voile can be used for the hem and for turnovers on collar and cuffs, if long sleeves and high collar are used, or frills about the flat, turnback collar and at the ends of the sleeves.

Ruffling suggests itself as a form of covering for the meeting place of the embroidery when the pattern cannot be neatly cut and must simply be slashed regardless of matching leaves and flowers and stems or circles, squares and twirls. Fastened under a narrow box pleat opening and turning away from it ruffling of any width can be used. If it is used on the front of the waist it forms also a good finish for the sleeves.

There is some difficulty in making long sleeves which look really well. Those made by the best dressmakers are often somewhat baggy about the waists, so the home seamstress need not try to make hers wrinkleless. They can end in frills or end in a little shirring stitch. If the sleeve is plain and comes down to the hand, it can be ended off with picot edge or Irish lace sewed on by hand.

Most of the new waists are made with a suggestion of color about them. This color can be introduced with small glass or china buttons used as trimming, as well as for the closing. They can be applied to the cuffs in a row from the top to bottom and at the corners of the flat collar.

As to belts it is a good policy not to attach the belt permanently, for fashions in regard to belts and the waistline change very frequently and it is much easier to adjust matters if the belt is not permanently fastened.

FLORENCE FAIRBANKS.

Your Fortune in Teacup.

The following rime, which is the translation of an old Chinese tea song, will prove useful in reading teacup fortunes:

One leaf alone, alone you'll be;
Two together, the priest you'll see;
Three in groups, your wish you'll gain;
Four, a letter from a loving swain;
Five, good news the letter will bring;
Six in a row, a song you'll sing;
Seven together, great fortune waits
For you. So say the teacup fates.
Tea leaves short and tea leaves tall
Bring you company great and small;
Tea leaves many and dotted fine
Are of bad luck the surest sign;
Tea leaves and clean the rim,
Your cup of joy o'erflows the brim.

THE SUMMER BEACH MAIDEN IS ARRAYED IN SILK ATTIRE

TAFFETA BATHING SUIT.

MORE picturesque than ever are the bathing costumes worn by fashionable women. Pictured here is a modish model of waterproof blue taffeta. It has a surplice collar edged with a ruching of waterproof ribbon, the elbow sleeves have turned back cuffs, and the short skirt is caught up to form a slight drapery at the side. The cap to match the dress is lined with an oyster white silk.

Scented Hatpins.

A new hatpin has a pierced ball top in enamel to match the hat, and this top is filled with a small sponge or pad of wadding steeped in the owner's favorite scent. The ball is made to open, so that the "pad" can be rescented whenever necessary. The perforations are so small that only a very delicate suggestion of scent is wafted in the air. More than that would suggest vulgarity.

Bronze Flower Basket.

French bronze novelty flower baskets three or four inches high are decorated with tiny porcelain flowers, and each little basket contains three or four small glass tubes to hold flowers.

Broken Skin.

When the skin on the heel is broken break a fresh egg, take the inner skin of same and apply it to the heel, holding it firmly in place for a few minutes. It will then adhere as closely as the true skin and will at once allay pain. A soft pad of absorbent cotton can be added, then all discomfort and pain will be gone. This applies to broken skin anywhere on the body.

Serving Ice Cream.

A novel way of serving ice cream is this; Freeze the cream as hard as possible and then let it ripen for two or three hours. Mold the cream into balls and roll each ball in grated cocoanut. Serve with whipped cream.

SUMMER HATS ARE LADEN WITH GRAINS AND GRASSES

GRASS TRIMMED HAT.

FASCINATING hats for fair maids are made with wide rims and with crowns garnished with flowers and foliage. Grains and grasses are much used and are combined with the flowers to form charming decorations. Illustrated here is a wide rimmed leghorn adorned with plaited net and with a garland of black eyed Susans combined with timothy grass. The hat shades the face well.

LUNCHEONS FOR SCHOOL PUPILS

Mothers' Association Will Provide Noon-day Meals for the Children.

AT A NOMINAL COST

Nourishing Food to Be Served—The Committee Needs $500 and Names This Paper to Receive Contributions.

The Mothers' Association in studying the needs of the school children of Plainfield has been impressed, it is said, with the feeling that many children would have better health and do better school work if they were better nourished, holding to this opinion a committee had been appointed by the association to make a careful study of the situation, conferring with the principals and teachers and getting direct information from the children. They found that there is an average number of fifty mothers for each school building who are employed during the day at service outside of the home who cannot adequately look out for the needs of their children at noon. It is the opinion of the teachers and committee that these children and also others would be greatly helped if they could obtain a warm nutritious lunch at a small price in the school building.

The association has undertaken to manage and finance the scheme. The food supplied is expected to pay for itself. The Board of Education will provide the stationery equipment which will consist of a sink, gas stove and cupboards. $500 dollars is needed for service, cooking utensils, dishes, etc, and a cart to serve the Lincoln School. The management and supervision will be provided by volunteers under the chairmanship of Mrs. O. H. Smith and Mrs. Penn.

The luncheons will be prepared after approved scientific methods, with view to nourishment and are intended for all pupils and teachers and others who live near the school who wish to buy. Each pupil will be compelled to buy the nourishing dish first. After that the choice is discretionery according to the number of pennies the child has to spend.

The co-operation of the public is earnestly solicited by the Mothers' Association and contributions of money, jelly and canned fruit may be sent too Mrs. G. O. Stevens, 931 West Sixth street, or any member of the luncheon committee, or to the Daily Press, which has been asked to receive contributions.

The school selected for the beginning of the luncheon service is the Servant School. The Lincoln may be served from the same kitchen by means of a covered push cart.

Mrs. C. G. Munro, president of the Mothers' Association has named this committee: Mrs. O. H. Smith, Mrs. Penn, Mrs. G. O. Stevens, Mrs. C. G. Henwood, Mrs. Stephen Voorhees, Mrs. James E Kimball, Mrs. G. Stuart Simons

The financial detail follows: Service for 40 weeks—Cook, dish washer, boy to push cart, $350; Equipment—Dishes, cooking utensils, covered cart, etc., $100; Extras—Stationery, towels, etc., $50; total $500.

TWO WOMEN INJURED WHEN WAGON UPSET

Mrs. Bertha Beekman and Miss Addie Opdyke Hurt Near Martinsville.

Miss Bertha Beekman, sister of Mrs. Leonce Texier, of West Sixth street, had a narrow escape from serious injury while out driving near her home in Martinsville on Sunday afternoon. As the result of an accident in which the wagon she was riding was upset, she sustained a fractured collar-bone and bruises, while Miss Addie Opdyke, a friend, who accompanied her and a nephew, who also fell out of the wagon, received several cuts and contused wounds. The injured people were assisted home where they are under the doctor's care.

Miss Beekman was driving a colt when an automobile came up suddenly from the rear without any warning and frightened the animal. Before Miss Beekman could prevent, the horse made a quick turn toward the side of the road, upsetting the occupants of the wagon. At the same time it broke lose from the wagon and ran a considerable distance before it was caught. Miss Beekman is employed at The Paris on West Front street, and usually spends the week-end at her home in Martinsville.

WILL BALLOT ON SCHOOL QUESTION

Open Session Held in Park Club to Discuss Educational Questions.

OPINIONS DIFFERED

Disposition of North Plainfield High School Pupils Will Be Decided by Ballot — Numerous Views Expressed.

A resolution was adopted at the public meeting held by the North Plainfield Board of Education at the Park Club, last night, providing for the holding of a special election to decide whether the Borough High School be abolished and the pupils sent to the Plainfield High School or whether the present system shall be continued. A heated two hours' discussion took place prior to the adoption of the resolution in which Dr. J. H. Copley, president of the Board of Education, and George T. Rogers, chairman of the committee that investigated the borough's educational system and finances, played the leading parts.

An assemblage estimated to include about seventy citizens attended the open session and it was the consensus of opinion of those who were present that the calling of such an extraordinary meeting was practically unnecessary and that it could have been held in the Somerset School, thereby saving the borough the expense incurred in the rental of the Park clubhouse.

Dr. J. H. Cooley acted as chairman of the meeting and speeches were made by County Supervisor H. C. Krebs, Supervising Principal Arthur E. Vossler, of the North Plainfield High School; W. J. Buttfield, Assistant State Commissioner of Education J. Brognard Betts and Allen Laing, a former member of the Borough Board of Education.

Mr. Krebs explained the State school laws and the responsibility placed on the State authorities in the matter of enforcing proper light and air space in the class rooms, sanitation and precautions against fire. Mr. Vossler expressed the opinion that it would be cheaper to send High School pupils to Plainfield. Mr. Betts also supported the transfer of the North Plainfield school pupils to this city because of the fact that the completion of the new High School in this city would mean a higher standard of work being accomplished.

PASTOR TO LEAVE EAST END CHURCH

Rev. Royal A. Stout, of Netherwood Reformed, Gets a Call From Philadelphia.

HERE FOR THREE YEARS

Invited to Become Minister to the Green Hill Presbyterian Church in the Quaker City and He is Likely to Accept.

Rev. Royal A. Stout, who has been pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church since 1910, has received a call to the pastorate of the Green Hill Presbyterian church, on Giraud avenue, Philadelphia. He has not yet given a decision, but he told a reporter that he would give the matter careful consideration before making an announcement to his congregation.

Mr. Stout is a graduate of Rutgers College and the Theological Seminary at New Brunswick. Prior to the year of his graduation from the seminary in 1910, Mr. Stout took charge of the work at the Netherwood Reformed church and since then has had a successful pastorate. The congregation acquired a new building, a new organ and bell and numerous other gifts from members of the Newark Classis.

The Green Hill Presbyterian church is much larger than the local church, having a seating capacity of about eight hundred. It is located in a growing section of Philadelphia and the work is said to be promising.

It is believed that Mr. Stout will likely accept the call.

TO REGULATE AUTO OMNIBUS TRAFFIC

Mayor Points Out to Common Council Need for Licensing Ordinance.

Mayor Percy H. Stewart appeared before the Common Council, last night, for the purpose of calling the attention of that body to the fact that the city has failed to provide for the licensing of motor vehicles used in the transportation of passengers. As several large auto busses have been and are being used here he thought it important that an ordinance be adopted establishing regulations, etc., for the operation of these vehicles.

In the opinion of Mr. Stewart, these busses, some of them as large as trolley cars, if allowed to multiply, will result in a problem concerning street traffic. He said that he had not issued licenses to the proprietors of these vehicles upon advice of Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, until the Council settles the question The Mayor further pointed out that there is nothing in the State laws to cover the local situation and he considered it quite important that a suitable ordinance be adopted which would also provide for routes to be used by these motor vehicles. The matter was referred to the committee on laws and ordinances.

COMMENCEMENT DAY AT THE HARTRIDGE

Eleven Young Women Will Receive Their Diplomas on Friday Morning.

Eleven young women will be graduated from the Hartridge School at the commencement exercises to be held at the school on West Seventh street, Friday morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church, will offer prayer and the address will be made by Prof. Stockton Axson, of Princeton University.

The school will give no out-door play this year, but a dance for the seniors will be given at the school on Friday evening, to which their friends have been invited. In connection with the closing of the school for the year, there will be a number of private entertainments.

PROCTOR INNOVATION MEETS WITH APPROVAL

The inauguration of an all-star vaudeville bill at Proctor's theatre, yesterday, was a success and promises well in the amusement offerings at this popular house. One of the seven acts presented yesterday did not meet with the approval of the management and today the famous O'Neill Trio will be substituted. The rest of the bill is high-class and was well received by the large audiences which attended the afternoon and evening performances

Harry Leonhardt, F. F. Proctor's personal representative, arrived in town today and will remain here for a while, the purpose being to introduce many features which have made the Fifth Avenue, New York theatre such a success.

The motion pictures which are now offered at the Plainfield theatre, were also a strong attraction yesterday for those who prefer the pictures to vaudeville. The program includes the Kinemacolor, black and white and photo-plays. That the change in policy will be a success seems assured.

THREATENED LEGAL ACTION AGAINST CITY

But Council Makes Appropriation to Comply With Skeeter Fighters' Orders.

The city having failed to remedy an alleged nuisance at Myrtle and DeKalb avenues, of which the Union County Mosquito Commission recently complained, another communication was received from the commission by the Commou Council, last night, in which twenty days was given the municipality to abate the nuisance under penalty of prosecution A similar notice was received from the Board of Health. The matter was referred to the street committee, and a resolution was adopted later appropriating $250 to comply with the orders of the Mosquito Commission.

The nuisance complained of is the swampy condition of the land at Myrtle and DeKalb avenues, where mosquitoes are permitted to bred at an alarming rate, it is said. The city recently received a note of warning from the Mosquito Commission, but apparently nothing had been done in the matter. The nuisance will now be abated under the direction of the street committee.

FIVE BIDS RECEIVED FOR AUTOMOBILE FIRE APPARATUS

Five bids for furnishing the city with an automobile fire engine were received at the June meeting of the Common Council, last night, two of the concerns, the Webb Company, and the American LaFrance Company, of New York, offering to sell the city an apparatus according to the terms of the bid for $8,500, while the latter company put in a second bid of $9,000 for an engine of greater capacity.

Robert C. Woodhouse, of this city, representing the Nott Fire Engine Company, presented a bid of $9,000, while the Seagrave Company, of Boston, offered an engine for $9,750 and the Robinson Fire Apparatus Manufacturing Company's bids was $8,650. All of the bids were referred to the committee on fire and buildings. Arrangements will probably be made for a test of the engines to see if they come up to the specified requirements.

The city advertised for bids for coal, but only one was submitted, that of VanZandt & Voorhees. They offered to furnish egg coal for $5.50 per ton, stove for $5.65, chestnut for $5.80 and pea for $4.40 for June or July delivery. This was referred to the proper committee.

EXEMPT FIREMEN FORM AUXILIARY

Will Affiliate New Organization With Paid Fire Department.

DOANE FAVORS PLAN

V. W. Nash, Sr., Appointed a Committee of One to Draw up a Plan for Adoption at Next Meeting—Will Assist Firemen.

A movement was started at a special meeting of the Exempt Firemen's Association in the organization's hall last night to effect the formation of an auxiliary to the local fire department and V. W. Nash, Sr., was appointed a committee of one to confer with the proper authorities regarding the formulation of a scheme whereby the exempts may affiliate themselves with the paid department. For some time past a step in this direction has been agitated but nothing definite was announced until last night's meeting and all of the members of the association expressed themselves as being heartily in favor of the idea. In proposing such an organization the exempts realize that the local paid department as it now stands, although it is adequate for a town of this size and in keeping with the other departments of the State, would not be of sufficient strength to cope with a conflagration of mamoth proportions and that in case of a devastating fire volunteers would have to be called out.

Because of their knowledge of fire fighting and the actual experience they have had in handling the hose, the exempts are competent to assist the firemen in their work in case of an emergency and their organized services would be of far greater value than those of a group of inexperienced volunteers. In case of a number of fires breaking out at one time the present department could not be divided up in a way that would allow them to control each of the situations and the exempts by forming an auxiliary plan to eliminate any possibility of a thing of this kind. While it is not their idea to interfere with the work of Chief Doane's men they propose to work in accord with the city employes and will not force their services on the community.

In expressing his views on the subject Chief Doane said that he was in favor of such an organization which he thought would be for the good of the city and has promised to do what he can to aid the association in bringing the matter to a crisis. Mr. Nash will present his plans to the body at the next meeting subject to the approval of the fire chief

FORMER JURIST GOES TO REWARD

Edward Sandford Atwater Passed Away This Morning at His Home in Elizabeth.

AGED SEVENTY YEARS

He Left Union County Bench When His Health Failed—Son of Princeton Professor and Was of Colonial Lineage.

Elizabeth, June 3.—Edward Sandford Atwater, until recently judge in the Union county courts, passed away at 2 o'clock this morning at his home at No. 511 Westminster avenue, in this city. General debility caused his end. The former jurist was seventy years of age.

Former Judge Atwater was born at Fairfield, Conn., Feb. 18, 1843, and was the son of Rev. Lyman H. Atwater, for thirty years a member of the faculty of Princeton University.

In 1862, he received his A. B. at Princeton, and four years later his LL.B., at Columbia College Law School. In that year he started to practice at Elizabeth. His marriage to Miss Gertrude Oakley, daughter of Dr. Louis Oakley, took place in 1876.

Judge Atwater was elected city attorney of Elizabeth in 1895. He had served also as president of the Elizabeth Council and had been a members of the Board of Education. In addition he had been superintendent of schools in Elizabeth. Moreover he had been president of the Council.

His appointment to the district court judgeship in Elizabeth was in 1896 and he served on that bench until 1906, when he was named to succeed Judge Vail as judge in Union county. In 1908 he was named by Governor John Franklin Fort for a full term. His health failed last year and in January he tendered his resignation to the then Governor Wilson, who declined to accept it until March, when he nominated James C. Connelly as his successor.

Judge Atwater was once president of the Elizabethtown Chapter of the Sons of the Revolution and at the time of his death was president of the State Sons of the Revolution. He was also a member of the Princeton Club, of New York; the Elizabeth Town and Country Club, the Suburban Club, Court Childs, I. O. F., the First Presbyterian church, the Union County Bar Association.

Surviving Judge Atwater are his wife and two children, Mrs. Herbert Farrand and E. S. Atwater, Jr., both of Elizabeth.

Elizabeth, June 3.—In court this morning, Samuel Schleimer made reference to Judge Atwater's death and Judge Connelly, as president of the Union County Bar Association, appointed a committee to draft suitable resolutions and to arrange to participate in the obsequies.

At the same time, Assistant Prosecutor Martin O'Connor spoke on the death of the judge's intimate friend, former Sheriff Houston, and resolutions were order to be placed in the court records.

He was a strong Republican. Among the fraternal orders to which he belonged was the Masonic. Since leaving the sheriff's office he had led a quiet life.

CITY BONDS SOLD TO CITY NATIONAL

Local Bank Takes a $27,000 Issue Which Runs for Three Years Only.

MANY MINOR MATTERS

George A. Megrew Present Petition to Improve Fire Fighting Facilities—Safe and Sane Fourth Ordinance.

The offer of the City National Bank to purchase the city's $27,000 street improvement bonds at par with interest was received and accepted at the June meeting of the Common Council last night. The bonds are to run for three years. The city has the right to sell its bonds privately where it can do so to advantage, and the customary procedure was followed in disposing of this issue

A communication from the Board of School Estimate certifying that it would require $100,503 to conduct the public schools for the coming year was received and approved by the Council and an ordinance as a supplement to the tax ordinance was passed on two readings and ordered advertised, setting forth that that amount be levied and collected in the usual way.

The Plainfield-Union Water Supply Company informed the Council that it had installed two two-way hydrants as directed, but at the same time called attention to the fact that the city's contract with the company expired May 1, 1912. It stated, however, that these hydrants would be charged for at the old rate of $15 a year. Later three more hydrants were ordered, one on West Sixth street, between Monroe avenue and Lee place, one on Prospect avenue, between Hillside and Woodland avenues and a third on Plainfield avenue, near the Hartridge School home.

George A. Megrew and others petitioned the Council for an improvement in the fire-fighting facilities of the city, complaining that the present equipment is antiquated and urging immediate action. The matter was referred.

The Master Plumbers' Association called the attention of the Council to the fact that unlicensed plumbers have been engaged in doing work in Plainfield and requesting that steps be taken to see that they do not receive permits. This was referred to the proper committee. A petition was received asking for crosswalks and electric lights in the vicinity of East Seventh and Richmond streets. This was referred.

E. C. Humphrey, of Hackensack, one of the unsuccessful bidders for macadam work here, wrote to the Council concerning a certified check for $300, which had not been returned. Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett stated that the check was returned a week ago.

A petition for the widening of George street and that lights be placed there was referred to the proper committees. The Public Service Corporation reported that three new lights had been located as directed. H. L. Myers and others petitioned for four new lights on Cedarbrook road, one at each end of the street and two half-way between those points. This was referred.

William A. Coddington, representing the Estate of Martha E. Dunn, protested against the widening of Sycamore street between Fifth and Sixth streets, claiming that it would depreciate property values. As the commissioners were in session at the time the matter was referred to them.

The contract between the city and Burke & Bonham in connection with street macadamizing was received and filed. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District court, reported receipts of $227.34 and disbursements of $79.56 for the past month. Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett reported the granting of twelve sewer permits and Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported the granting of twenty building permits. Overseer-of-the-Poor H. L. DeForest reported expenditures of $641.72 for the past month.

Resolutions offered by Councilman C. C. Randolph and adopted, authorized the borrowing of $7,000 for sewer extension work, the transfer of $1,000 from the general fund to the street fund, $500 from the general fund to the poor fund and $2,000 from the general fund to the fire fund.

An ordinance was introduced by Councilman F. E. Mygatt providing for the opening of Watson avenue, following a public hearing. It was adopted on two readings and ordered advertised.

Another resolution by Mr. Mygatt, which was adopted, gave permission to the Standard Sanitation Company to erect a demonstration plant at the sewage disposal farm, occupying one hundred square feet, with a capacity of 50,000 gallons a day, provided that it be made safe and harmless, that it be erected within three months and removed upon ten days' notice and that it be erected and operated to the satisfaction of the State Board of Health. This action was taken in response to a petition from the above-named company.

Carl Silbert, the West Front street jeweler, was given permission to remove an electric light near his street clock, in accordance with a motion by Councilman P. J. Reville.

The ordinance providing for "safe and sane" celebration of July 4, was passed on third reading on motion of Councilman F. J. Blatz. The Council adjourned to meet on Monday night, June 16.

IS CITY CONTACTOR VIOLATING THE LAW?

Alleged That Men Are Being Worked More Than Eight Hours a Day.

Mobus Borthers, contractors, who failed to get the city's contract for macadamizing certain streets, in a communication to the Common Council, last night, protested that the successful bidders, Burke & Bonham, who are now engaged in the work, are ignoring the State law in working their men more than eight hours a day, which it was claimed, was in direct violation of the law. These conditions Mobus Brothers declared to be unfair to competitive bidders.

S. S. Swackhamer, representing Mobus Brothers, addressed the Council on the subject, quoting the law, which says that no one employed on public work shall employ their men more than eight hours a day. He said that his clients in bidding for the work here had figured on that basis and claimed to have proof that Burke & Bonham were violating the law, alleging that their men were working ten hours a day. The matter was referred to the street committee.

Afterward, Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed advised the Council that if the conditions complained of exist, it is not up to the city, but up to the contractors. He stated that he had been informed that Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett had communicated with Burke & Bonham, warning them concerning the law, and if the firm was violating the law it was a matter for them to settle and not the city.

POSTPONE ACTION ON THE REPORT

ON MR. REED'S ADVICE

Corporation Counsel Agrees That Lawyers for Objectors Should Be Given a Hearing—Report is Somewhat Peculiar.

The question of the proposed widening of Madison avenue, from West Front street to the railroad, was taken up at the June meeting of the Common Council, last night, Councilman F. E. Mygatt moving its consideration in accordance with a previous notice. He planned to have the report of the commissioners adopted, but after several objectors had been heard and W. S. Angleman pointed out that the occupants of the Dreier building, whom he represented, had not been considered in the report, it was decided to lay the report over until the adjourned meeting of the Council on Monday night June 16.

This action was taken upon the advice of Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, who recognized the justice of Mr. Angleman's claim. Elliot T. Barrows, one of the commissioners explained briefly the work of that body in determining the benefits and damages to property owners. The total cost of the proposed improvement is estimated to be $29,967.32.

The Estate of Samuel Dreier, represented by William Newcorn, it was shown by the latter, would suffer greatly if the present plans are carried out, and the revenue from business would be materially reduced. Mr. Newcorn recalled recent sales of business property on West Front street to show the value of the Dreier property. He considered it greater because it occupies a corner. This property is assessed $7,071 in damages and $4,000 in benefits, which he thought to be unfair.

Mr. Barrows said that it was not customary for commissioners to appear and show cause for their actions, but in this case the improvement was one that should have been made years ago. Because it was not it will now cost the city considerable more money if the avenue is widened. Mr. Barrows said that the Dreier property was considered the key to the whole situation, and unusual care was exercised in the work of the commissioners, it being visited from every possible point. Real estate men, the Fourth ward assessor, builders, etc., were all consulted before the final figures were passed upon, and the commissioners tried to be just to private property owners as well as the city.

Mr. Mygatt moved to lay the report on the table, but gave notice that at the meeting on June 16 he would move to have the report ratified.

DINNER TO M'CARTER MARKS ANNIVERSARY

P. S. C. Celebrates its First Decade, Banquet Being Held at Delmonico's.

In celebration of the tenth anniversary of the formation of Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, the directors and officers of that organization tendered a testimonial banquet to President Thomas N. McCarter last night.

The dinner was held at Delmonico's, New York, and was made the occasion for many felicitous references to the development and activities of the corporation during the last decade under McCarter's guidance.

Walter Clark, one of the directors, acted as toastmaster and the guest of honor occupied the customary place at his right. The only persons present outside of the members of the Public Service organization were Robert H. McCarter and Second Vice President Frederick W. Egner, of the Fidelity Trust Company. Horatio G. Lloyd and Ferdinand W. Roebling were the only directors who found it impossible to attend. Addresses were made by Uzal H. McCarter, Randal Morgan, J. P. Dusenberry, W. C. Heppenheimer and Dudley Farrand with brief informal talks by others. President McCarter responded to the many nice things said about him.

He was the recipient of a handsome silver punch bowl and tray, the latter containing fac-similes of the autographs of all the directors of the corporation, who were the donors.

Up to the present there hase been little activity shown. The advice of the contest department to get an early start was not heeded.

WANT AN ISOLATION HOSPITAL IN CITY

Board of Health Makes Request to the Common Council for Institution.

The need of an isolation hospital in the city where all kinds of contagious diseases may be properly cared for, was brought to the attention of the Common Council last night by the Board of Health. The recent mild epidemic of scarlet fever on McCrea place was recalled and the Board stated that had there been suitable accommodations for the treatment of such cases much of the illness and several deaths might have been prevented.

Because of the absence of an isolation hospital, it was found necessary to establish a police quarantine, the expense of which the Board said that it was not prepared to meet. Immediate action in the matter was urged.

Prior to the Council meeting, the members held a conference at which this matter was discussed informally. Steps have been taken to provide a place of isolation for contagious diseases and the finance committee, to which the Board of Health communication was referred, has the matter under consideration and expects to make a report within a short time.

FINAL SOCIAL EVENT HELD IN OLD CHURCH

Musical Program Presented in Structure Which Will Be Torn Down Tomorrow.

An excellent musical program was presented under the auspices of the Women's League of St. Joseph's church in the old church edifice last night which was attended by a large and appreciative audience of musical lovers. The hall was appropriately decorated with American flags, palms and cut flowers and a program consisting of these numbers was rendered: Piano duet, "Tannhauser's March," by the Misses Muriel Collins and Helen George; vocal solo, "I Would Linger," by Miss Isabelle Mullin, a graduate of Mt. St. Mary's College in this year's class; vocal solo, "Gem of the Sea," by Miss Mullin; and a vocal solo by Miss Lillian Snyder. The latter performer is but six years of age and her work called forth much favorable comment on every side.

A game of "Captain Ball" between the girls and boys resulted in a victory for the former, which was captained by Miss Bernardette Duschene, and the boys were led by Joseph McCullough. During the evening Rev. William H. Miller, of St. Joseph's church and Andrew E. Kenney, were called upon to speak and each reviewed the pleasant occasions of this nature that had been held in the old church which will be torn down tomorrow. Mr. Kenney expressed a wish that many more social events might be held in which the people of St. Joseph's church could be brought together.

Music was furnished by Paroubek's orchestra for the dancing which followed.

CLERGYMAN DECIDES TO BECOME TEACHER

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews Resigns as Pastor of Scotch Plains Baptist Church.

Nearing the end of five years' service as pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews has resigned to take a position as teacher at the Goodwill Farm for Boys in Maine. Although undecided regarding the date he will leave his present pastorate, the clergyman has told his friends that his resignation will go into effect at an early date.

After being graduated from the Peddie Institute, Rev. Mr. Mathiews was ordained at the Summit Avenue Baptist church, Jersey City, and soon afterwards accepted the pastorate of the Ridgewood Baptist church. Later he became pastor of the First Baptist church at Chattanooga, Tenn., but resigned to take a trip through the South to improve his health. In September, 1908, he accepted the call to Scotch Plains, succeeding the Rev. Mr. Shott.

His stay in Scotch Plains was saddened by the death of his wife who succumbed several days before Christmas Day, last, and was buried in the cemetery adjoining the Baptist church.

A SPLENDID IDEA.

In our news columns today will be found an outline of the plans of the Plainfield Mothers' Association to introduce a luncheon counter in the Plainfield public schools. The scheme will go into effect next fall and Plainfield will have the honor of being the first municipality in New Jersey to take this progressive step.

Under present conditions, many pupils are forced to eat the stuff sold by push cart men, and in many cases this is cheap and unwholesome; in fact it menaces the health. In some instances, in quite a number indeed, the mothers are forced by circumstances to go out for day's work and the result is that the children cannot get a meal at home.

But it should not be understood that the luncheon is intended for any particular class; it is for all. Nourishing food, cooked in a scientific way and served amid the most sanitary surroundings, will be had at simply a nominal charge. It will be not only for the pupils but for the teachers as well.

The scheme will be inaugurated at the Bryant School and from there the Lincoln School will be served also. Very properly the Board of Education will supply the stationery equipment. There are other things to be provided, however. These will include the expense of a cook, a dish washer and an errand boy as well as dishes, cooking utensils, push cart and towels. They represent a total expense of $500 for a period of forty weeks. Now the Mothers' Association has guaranteed this sum, fully confident that the public will contribute to that amount.

Read the news article and if you approve of the idea send a contribution for a fund to be raised by the Plainfield Daily Press. Your donation will be acknowledged promptly and will be immediately transmitted to the Mothers' Association.

PROGRESSIVE AND REPUBLICAN

Edmund W. Wakelee, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, in a statement, declares that neither the Progressives nor Republicans can win the Governorship this Fall if each runs a candidate of its own. As to the Republicans, this is undoubtedly true. If a vigorous three-cornered fight be made next November the Republican party would, no doubt, be third in the race. It will require an united Progressive and Republican vote to defeat the Democrats.

Possibly a situation may arise, if the Democrats nominate a stand-pat-old-guard regular, when a union of all progressives in the Democratic and Progressive parties might give victory, but the danger in that possibility is that the stand-pat Republicans would, under the guidance of the special interests, run to the old guard Democratic candidate. The regulars of both wings of the Republican and Democratic party may be counted on to stand together whenever the special interests or the interests of the machine seem in danger.

Mr. Wakelee, in his statement, declares that he stands ready to support a Progressive candidate. That is something. It goes a long way to help bring about such a result. There is one thing absolutely certain, and that is, that the Progressives will only support a Progressive who was in and of the Progressive movement last year; a man who repudiated the fraud at Chicago. Again the candidate must stand for the Progressive platform adopted at Chicago—the initiative and referendum, and the recall of all administrative officers. Such an agreement, upon Everett Colby for instance, would sweep the State.

Mr. Colby is a known, earnest, clear thinking Progressive. He stood loyally by and for the party in 1912. He can be depended upon to support those measures which are in the interests of the people. He is of the highest integrity and honor. He has been, and was, up to 1912, a Progressive Republican. As a union candidate, all could honorably support him, and none sacrifice any principle, and with his election the State would be assured of a careful, earnest, high principled and intellectual Governor for the next three years. He would not be any man's man.

Let us hope that the Republican leaders of the State will have as good sense as that shown by State Chairman Wakelee.

ROOSEVELT'S TRIUMPH.

The foul slanders which have followed Colonel Roosevelt, both in and out of the White House, have greatly incensed his friends for several years. During the campaign last year it was a common thing to hear charges made that the Colonel drank immoderately and it was used secretly to his hurt. Those who knew him well knew the allegation was absolutely false. The truth is, as has been shown, that the Colonel is really exceptionally abstemious in the use of any kind of liquor. He determined to settle these malicious statements once and for all time by a suit in court, and the result is he has shown the country how wicked and vicious they were. And this drinking charge is like most of the things that are said of the Colonel—false and outrageous. The truth of the matter is, and history will so record it, that Colonel Roosevelt is a Christian man of the highest personal character, with a public and private life beyond reproach, and an example for the youth of the nation to emulate. Would that the country had more Roosevelts.

OLD CHURCH BUILDING WILL BE TORN DOWN

Work of tearing down the old St Joseph's church structure on Manning avenue will be started tomorrow morning, the firm of McCullough & Rhodier having been awarded the contract. This is one of the landmarks in North Plainfield and served as a place of worship for many years prior to the erection of the present edifice on the adjoining site. Since the final mass was celebrated in the old building on Christmas night it has been used for social gatherings and festivities of many kinds have been held there under the auspices of St. Joseph's societies.

COUNCIL PETITIONED TO OPEN DUNELLEN STREET

Members of the Watchung Improvement Company petitioned the Dunellen Council at the meeting of that borough last night, to open that part of Second street running from Washington to Jackson avenue, which covers property owned by them. J. P. Fenner and R. J. Hamly, who are prominent Dunellen citizens, spoke strongly in favor of the plan. The Councilmen refused to depart from their custom of waiting until a tract is developed before opening a new thoroughfare, however, and by a unanimous vote defeated the petition. The realty men planned to carry on an extensive and attractive building operation on both sides of the proposed new street, providing their request was granted.

Clerk Deering announced that as no remonstrance had been received against the holding of a special election July 8, on the joint sewerage question, that the elecion would take place as scheduled. In the future Marshal Davenport will be entitled to prefix the word "chief" to marshal, by a resolution of the Council, although no increase in salary accompanies the position of chief marshal.

MISS DALY'S NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

By waving her red mackinaw hat as a signal for the engineer of a N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. train to stop his engine, Miss Anna V. Daly of this city, saved her own life and that of E. H. Hartman, of Connecticut, on Saturday, when the brakes of a tandem motorcycle on which they were riding broke as they were coasting down a steep hill in Woodstock, at the bottom of which was a railroad crossing.

Almost at the instant they noticed the defect of their machine, they saw a speeding train approaching the crossing. Judging the intervening distance, it seemed almost certain that both train and motorcycle would reach the crossing at the same time. Luckily, however, the engineer saw the signal and realized the danger. The mortor vehicle crossed the tracks but several feet from the throbbing engine which had ben halted.

BOROUGH HEALTH BOARD TO START LECTURE COURSE

Speaking at an open meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Health last night, D. C. Bowen, inspector of the State Board, emphasized the necessity of stringently enforcing the sanitation measures of a community and told of the numerous channels through which diseases travels. He dwelt on the most common causes of contagious diseases and told how they could be averted to some extent by the enactment of a system of health regulations.

Andrew E. Kenney, president of the borough board, responded to Mr. Bowen's talk, stating that the body which he represented had instituted a scientific department, a feature of which will be an instructive lecture course to be started in the near future.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

Chief among the new features at Luna, Coney Island, this summer is a spectacle of enormous size. It is called Fire and Sword and far surpasses anything of the kind ever staged. Here an entire foreign city is shown on a stage 360 feet in length. It is a mountain municipality nestling among the foot hills which melt into the perspective of far-away peaks. There are picturesque houses, temples, towers and mosques. From distant mountain battlements guns bristle. The scene portrays a city that has been under the seige of battle. The enemy has withdrawn and the inhabitants believing the seige is over are storking about in their picturesque costumes defiant of the frowning guns. There are flower girls and dancing girls in radiant raiment who [illegible] by the banks of a lake with youthful warriors, while others of the populace resort to riotous revelry in celebration of the suspension of the deadly seige they had been living in. At the height of the merry-making the guns again break their silence and the foot hills once more shake with the thunder of war. The townspeople flee to shelter while down the mountain slopes gallop horses carrying shooting, shouting soldiers. Into the lake they plunge while towers fall and destruction and death are dealt mercilessly. Finally the guns set fire to the buildings and from the windows of the houses roll great sheets of flame. Women can be seen inside penned in by the cruel fires. Rescues follow one after another until the floors within tumble to earth leaving charred and blackened walls. The shrieks and cheers in which the enemy join pierce the air and the entire scene gives realistic evidence of the truth of Gen. Sheridan's famous definition of war.

John Wanamaker's Five Great Pianos and the Famous Angelus Player Pianos

CHICKERING

EMERSON (B)

LINDEMAN (C)

Celebrated KNABE

ANGELUS PLAYER-PIANO

These accurate pictures show the strength back of our piano business.

All the factories are running all the time to supply the pianos we are selling.

Fourteen years ago we held an election with all the great makes of pianos for candidates.

When the ballots were counted the Chickering headed the list as the piano of the greatest refinement. It became our leader of high grade until the celebrated Knabe entered the race. We have sold thousands of these pianos and do not know of one of either that has not given satisfaction.

It was a piece of good fortune that a piano at one time as famous as the Chickering came into our hands—the exquisite Schomacker. Music-loving Philadelphia at one time had as many Schomaker pianos in its homes as all other makes put together. If there is another retail business that has had a hand in the making of five great pianos we are not aware of it.

We actually own the splendid piano factories marked "A" and "C"—the Schomaker and the Lindeman. The Emerson, marked "B," we control by ownership of the majority of the stock.

The Emerson holds the flag for its goodness at the price which is $300 to $600.

Many people who bought these pianos soon found that they wanted player-pianos, and so the ANGELUS was built into each of the five makes of pianos forming the Chickering-Angelus, the Knabe-Angelus, the Schomaker-Angelus, the Emerson-Angelus and the Lindeman-Angelus.

The Angelus Was the Original Player and has continued to be the first. Though some of its parts have been copied, as a whole it is not equalled. We desire to fix in the minds of every one this single fact, that

Here are five pianos of reputation built in splendid factories by experienced workmen not for speculation but for service and satisfaction to the people who become their owners.

Any of these pianos may be relied upon not for the pleasure alone it gives, but for the staying qualities of its tone; and the purchase can be made with the certainty of getting value.

P. S.

Some of our piano friends in the country are selling these pianos because they probably sold the Chickering and the Knabe before we did. If they are selling the Emerson, the Lindeman and the exquisite Schomacker, they are getting them from our workshops and it is all right for you to buy them from them if you wish. It is fair for us to say, however, that the Chickering and the Knabe are not made by us but are selected especially for us by our experts, so that a purchase from us gives you the benefit of our knowledge, experience and service, and the double guarantee of value and worthiness.

By FRANCES MARSHALL

Economy in the Garden.

Lots of persons plant a garden full of wonderful plants and promising seed, work feverishly at it during the spring, and with the early summer stand back and wait for results, forgetting that the really successful garden must be the recipient of daily attention. The promising seeds send up little shoots and die; the wonderful plants wither and fade, and the garden is soon a place of ruin.

And these same persons generally say to themselves, "If I had money enough, I could have a wonderful garden, I am sure, but gardens cost money."

There are dozens of economical ways of giving health and strength to a garden that cost almost nothing.

For one thing, take wood ashes. Nothing is better for currant bushes than a plentiful dose of wood ashes stirred in about the roots. Asters, too, thrive on wood ashes, and each aster plant should be surrounded by a circle of wood ashes stirred into the ground. It is said that the disagreeable and difficult beetles that attack asters after they are budded and sometimes devour all the buds and flowers can be kept away if wood ashes are used persistently. The only other way of getting rid of the beetles is economical—but unpleasant. It is to get up early every morning in aster time and go about among the plants with a little basin of kerosene, into which the offending beetles must be dropped. This method is really not so unpleasant as it sounds, for after two or three mornings the beetles will have almost disappeared. One thing, though, must be looked to if the supply of beetles is to be killed off; and that is, nearby golden rod patches. The same beetles which attack asters thrive on golden rod.

To keep a good supply of wood ashes, gather the ashes of such wood fires as you have and sift them, or free them in some way from nails, bits of charred wood and other large substances that cannot be absorbed by the soil. If you have no wood fires, it would really be worth while to build a bonfire of brush from time to time and preserve the ashes carefully. They are helpful not only for currents and asters, but can be mixed in the soil of all the rest of the garden with good results.

Coffee Grounds.

It is an English custom to put coffee grounds about the roots of roses, and no more economical sort of fertilizer could be found—for the English directions call for used coffee grounds. The grounds should be dug in carefully; if they are used about the monthly roses, they should be scratched in just below the surface of the soil, for although these roses delight in a loose soil, they keep their roots very near the surface, and these must not be disturbed or broken if the plant is to thrive.

Some Cookery Suggestions

BREAKFAST TOASTS.

BREAKFAST MENU.
Oranges.
Cereal and Cream.
Bacon.
Poached Eggs.
Toast.
Coffee.

SOME people like rare toast, while others like well done toast. The well done or entirely dry toast is considered the more healthful. To make it the bread should be cut in thin slices and held in the toaster sufficiently far from the fire to dry the bread before the outside is browned. To have the toast soft inside cut the slices medium thick and toast over bright coals quickly. Toast should be buttered while hot.

An Odd Recipe.

Rye Toasts.—Mix one cupful each of wheat flour and rye flour, one tablespoonful sugar, one-half teaspoonful salt and a half teaspoonful of baking powder. Make a stiff dough by adding one cupful of milk and one teaspoonful melted butter. Roll thin, cut in rounds, bake on griddle or in oven. Tear open and pour cream over them.

Served With Cream.

Baked Cream Toast.—Toast slices of two days' old bread, dip quickly in hot salt water (one teaspoonful to a pint of water), butter and lay in a flat pan. Then pour a little rich milk over it and place in a hot oven for about five minutes. Take up on a platter and pour two tablespoonfuls of cream on each slice, place the platter in the oven to heat and serve at once.

With Beaten Eggs.

Buttered Egg Toast.—Beat two or more eggs till frothy, add two teaspoonfuls of milk, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley and salt and pepper. Melt half an ounce of butter in a small pan, pour in the mixture when the butter is hot. Stir over the fire till it becomes thick. Then pile on buttered toast and serve hot. If cooked too quickly the egg will become lumpy and indigestible.

Tomato Toast.—Take four slices of bread prepared as for milk toast. Then prepare the tomatoes. Take firm ripe ones—two will be enough—and cut them in halves. Then dip in melted butter, next in cracker or bread crumbs, sprinkle with salt and pepper and broil until the crumbs are browned. Serve the toast with half a tomato on each slice.

Another way of making tomato toast is to prepare the toast as for the other kind, but to add a half cupful of stewed tomato pulp to the sauce. Grated cheese may be added if you like it.

Green peas may be served with toast, preparing the dish much as the tomato toast is made.

Odin Asked For a Drink.

THERE was no reason why Jack should have been so sulky when Evelyn brought home a nice book which her teacher had given her because she stood at the head of her class. Evelyn seldom missed her lessons.

"You should have worked harder, Jack," daddy said. "You should have played baseball less and studied a little more. If we wish to learn we must give up many things which at the time perhaps would please us better than staying indoors and grubbing at books.

"I must tell you how much Odin, the great hero of the north, gave up in order to get knowledge.

"Wonderful stories have been made up about him. Of course the stories are only a sort of fairy tales, but they teach many useful lessons.

"Odin was very anxious to learn all he could in order to help mankind, whom he loved, and also to be able to help his brothers and sisters who lived with him in a wonderful city called Asgard.

"Far away at the foot of the great ash tree whose roots were said to hold the earth together was a wonderful well. It belonged to a grave old giant named Mimer, whose name, by the way, means memory. Those who drank of Mimer's well knew at once all that had ever happened.

"After a long and weary journey Odin reached Giantland and at last came to the magic well. Mimer, with long silver hair and snowy beard flowing over his white robes, sat beside the well.

"After bowing to him respectfully Odin said:

"'I have come to you, oh, Mimer, for a drink from the well of knowledge!'

"Mimer looked at the traveler gravely out of the clear, gray eyes that seemed to know everything without being told.

"'I give to none,' Mimer replied. 'There is a price. These waters are for those who will pay it.'

"Odin was so anxious to be wise that he did not stop to haggle about the price.

"'Whatever you ask, if it is mine, I will give it to you willingly,' he answered eagerly to Mimer.

"Mimer looked at Odin again. 'If you will give me one of your eyes you may have a drink from the well of knowledge,' said the giant.

"The price was great. Odin would rather have given almost anything than an eye, but when he saw Mimer really meant what he said he answered, 'Take the eye and let me drink.'

"So Mimer allowed Odin to drink of his well, and the hero went away wise and happy, for by means of the waters of Mimer's well he also had become all knowing."

YOU

LOWEST IN THE CITY PRICES TO ALL ALIKE—WE SELL FOR CASH ONLY Macy's

Mrs. Smith thinks she shops where she gets the most for her dollar. Where do you think you get the most for your dollar?

Most stores claim to sell at lowest prices. Only one store does sell at lowest prices. Which store do you believe? The store that gives no unusual reason for its ability to sell at lowest prices, or Macy's that tells you definitely that its unique policy of selling for cash only—no "credit" and no "discounts"—makes possible its unique low prices?

Macy's sells for cash only. Why this makes possible lowest-in-the-city prices is not evident perhaps without a minute's thought. Consider any simple transaction as carried out by Macy's and by Blank's (any other New York store). You will see why shrewd shoppers buy at Macy's.

Macy's buys a hundred articles and marks each one at a profit of one dollar. Macy's is then certain of getting $100.00 profit on that transaction. The money will be in the house before the merchandise goes out.

Blank's buys a hundred articles and marks them to sell at a profit of $1.00 each. Blank's cannot figure on realizing $100.00 profit. Blank's knows that, say five of the articles will be sold to a member of one of the favored classes that gets 10% discount. At least 25 of the articles will be sold on credit. Probably four or five of the 25 customers that buy on credit will not pay for six months or a year, and Blank's loses the interest on its money in the meanwhile. In all probability, at least one of the credit accounts is really bad, that is, the customer really does not intend to pay. The net result is that Blank's is lucky to realize $90.00 profit on the 100 articles.

What does this mean? If $1.00 average profit on such articles is the minimum which a store can get, and still live, it is evident that Blank's only course is to mark each one of the articles sufficiently above $1.00 so that they will realize $100.00 profit on the hundred articles.

Blank's therefore marks each article at a $1.10 profit. Macy's marks the articles at $1.00 profit. Macy's gets no less profit out of the whole transaction than Blank's does, but Macy's is selling at 10% to 12½% less than Blank's prices.

This on a scale one thousand times larger is what is happening every day in New York. This is the real reason why the thrifty shopper buys everything at Macy's.

You find at Macy's every desirable quality of merchandise, every store convenience, and you have the additional advantage of saving from 10% to 25% on every purchase you make.

AND NOW THE CITY EDITOR KNOWS WHY

"MAC" SAYS

Central New Jersey League.

Two better baseball games than the pair played in connection with the eCntral New Jersey League race Saturday afternoon would be hard to conceive of. Bob Bogardus and his Dunellen clan appear to be steadily pushing pennantwards and if some unlooked for misfortune does not overtake them before they secure a safer lead, the suburbanites are bound to be near the top when the bunting is awarded. An enterprising merchant in Dunellen has offered a gold watch to the player making the first circuit clout on the home grounds and several sluggers attempted the feat Saturday afternoon but found the new Dunellen field a difficult one to lose the ball on.

Pitching two baseball games in two days is some stunt in itself, but when a twirler wins both of his contests, one by making the hit that means victory, he well deserves the name of "War Horse." Warry McLaughlin continues to hold fort on the pitching mound.

Intercollegiates.

Penn's victory in the intercollegiates at Cambridge Saturday was well earned and in keeping with the general opinion of the critics expressed prior to the games. Although Penn had an advantage of only two and one half points over Harvard, the dark horse, she more than showed class over the Crimson by the fact that she produced four winners, while Harvard had only one.

Experts are already figuring out what John Paul Jones would have done in the mile race Saturday had he run his first three-quarters faster. When the Cornell captain hit the three-quarter pole everyone in the stadium thought that he had no chance to get the record, but Jones flashed a quarter mile sprint that turned the trick by one second. It is very likely that Jones ran the way he did under the orders of Coach Jack Moakley, who feared that if his man came into the stretch very tired Tabor would flash one of his superhuman dashes and beat the Cornell mainstay.

Good-Bye, Hal.

Hours upon hours of valuable time and barrels of ink have been wasted by ambitious dopesters trying to convince the public that Hal Chase was really scheduled to depart from the Yankee herd and leave for parts unknown. The fact has come to pass now, however, and it remains to be seen what he will do with a change of playing togs. Many New York fans are glad to see the great first baseman go, some for his own good and others for the welfare of the team, but most critics are forced to admit that Frank Chance got the worst end of the deal as far as actual playing value is concerned.

Chance's vigorous efforts to strengthen the Yankee combination by weilding the managerial hatchet seem about to bear fruit, for if he gets the White Sox recruits into working order before many more moons roll by and wakes up the members of the contingent he already has playing "baseball" he will soon be able to win his first home game.

Sunday-school Protests Again.

One team of the Sunday-school Baseball League has renewed the old side issue so prominent in that organization last year and which proved to be one of the greatest detriments to the league. First Baptist's attitude toward an official in Saturday afternoon's contest with Hope chapel was anything but sportsmanlike. A condition of this nature is deplorable and the player who reflects on an official's character and ability on the baseball diamond ought to be put in chains and kept out of a league of this sort.

"TOMMY" BURNS.
FROM THE SKETCH.

Warrants charging complicity in manslaughter have been issued for all those connected with the prize fight in which Luther McCarty was killed in the first round by Arthur Pelky at Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

The Attorney General at Edmonton ordered warrants issued for the arrest of "Tommy" Burns, the promoter William McCarney, McCarty's manager; "Ed" Smith, of Chicago, the referee, and several trainers and attendants.

Hope chapel, as usual, is leading the clubs to Pennantville and present performances seem to indicate that the Chapelites will have another trophy shining on a West Fourth street mantlepiece sometime after the first of October. The fact that Hope chapel was leading by a margin of 3 to 0 when the eruption took place Saturday afternoon, saves that aggregation from criticism that is always bound to follow a curtailment of this nature.

1913 Unlucky.

The present season has been marred by more accidents to local diamond performers than ever happened before in the history of the sport. The latest contribution to the hospital's tolls is Jimmy Nash, the versatile Leal School athlete. "Goat," as he is familiarly called, is one of the best known athletes in the State and in his absence the private school boys are like a boat without a pilot. His versatility covered every branch of sporting endeavor and he was a consistent performer on track and field. Although of a retiring disposition Nash is conceded to be the peer of school boy athletes, and his friends in this city are anxiously awaiting his recovery.

LOCAL COMPETITORS IN BRUNSWICK MEET

Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Will Not Conduct its Annual Meet on Independence Day.

Members of the Plainfield High School track team and representatives from the local Y. M. C. A. are planning to take part in the mammoth athletic meet now being arranged to be held in connection with the Safe and Sane Fourth of July celebration at New Brunswick. It is the plan of the committee to make the celebration the greatest of its kind ever held in that city and some valuable prizes will be offered for competition. Last Fourth of July, Plainfield was treated to the first annual athletic meet of the local Y. M. C. A., but the idea has gradually passed out of existance and it now looks as though the second yearly event would not become a reality. At least nothing has been done as yet in this direction and as there remains but one month in which to bring the thing about, it is quite likely that the proposition will be abandoned for this year at least.

Independence Day is always a banner time of the year for athletic competition and Plainfield athletes will go to Brunswick to find the field and track events they yearn for at that time. A feature of the meet will be a marathon race over a course suggested to lead through the principal business streets of the town.

The List of Events.

The list of events as announced by the committee follows:

Event No. 1—100 yard dash.
Event No. 2—880 yard dash.
Event No. 3—220 yard dash.
Event No. 4—Two mile run.
Event No. 5—One and one-quarter mile relay for school teams.
Event No. 6—440 yard dash.
Event No. 8—One mile relay race for any organization or club.
Event No. 9—One mile run.
Event No. 10—Five mile marathon.
Event No. 11—Shot put.
Event No. 12—Ball throwing contest.

QUERIES, COMMENT AND ANSWERS

Sporting Editor:

Query—Kindly let me know the nature of the questions asked in the New Jersey examination for license to drive an automobile. Is a thorough mechanical experience required?—S. D. F.

Answer—About half a dozen questions having to do with the running of a car and the construction of it are asked, all of which are quite simple. Then, if the applicant satisfies the examiner in a short demonstration that he is competent to run it, he is given a license.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Will you kindly inform me if a young man who was born here may vote without taking out citizen's papers. His parents are foreigners and his father is not a citizen.—W. M.

Answer—Provided the man is over 21 years of age and satisfies the requirements as to length of residence, etc., he may vote.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Can an outsider enter the interscholastic athletic meets that are being conducted under the auspices of various colleges every Saturday?—R. R.

Answer—Your reference to an "outsider" is rather indefinite, but I would say that only those athletes who can secure the signature of the athletic supervisor of the high or "prep" school to which he belongs, showing that he is in good standing with the officials of that institution, is eligible to enter.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Where can I secure a copy of the Sunday-school Baseball League schedule for the present season? I am the manager of an independent team and want to book games with Sunday-school teams on open league dates.—F. T.

Answer—Any of the team managers will provide you with the printed formula. Write to F. O. Dunning, Sr., president of the league, 42 Mountain avenue, North Plainfield, N. J.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Please inform me if a Maltese poodle dog is larger than a Pomeranian.—D. F.

Answer—There is no such thing as a Maltese poodle dog, but there is a Maltese terrier. A Maltese dog weighs from two and one-half to four pounds, while a Pomeranian weighs from six to eight pounds.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Kindly tell me where I can find out where the home offices of the companies are that are incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey.

Answer—Write to the Secretary of State, State House, Trenton, N. J.

G. I. H.—It would be unlawful for us to publish the result of a drawing.

Sporting Editor:

Query—I would like to know the depth, diameter, and circumference, also the capacity of the Netherwood water tank.—G. L. H.

Answer—You do not want to know much, George, but the following statistics will enlighten you on the subject. The depth is 140 feet, the diameter 25 feet, the circumference 75 feet and the capacity one half million gallons.

WESTFIELD ATHLETE TO CAPTAIN WESLEYAN

Well Known High School Star Elected to Lead College Track Team.

Elections conducted at the finish of the Wesleyan College track team in the college gymnasium yesterday afternoon, resulted in the election of Harold L. Irving, of Westfield, as captain of next year's team. Young Irving is well-known in this city and Westfield where he has taken part in a number of athletic meets and was generally regarded as a dark horse in the sprinting events in which he specialized. For three years he competed under the colors of the Westfield High School interscholastic track meets and uring that time he won eight silver cups and seven medals in track and field events. The short dashes were his specialty but he was also an excellent jumper, a number of his prizes being won in leaping events.

While a student in the Westfield school he was a half back on the High School football team and played against Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools in the years of 1907-08. He will be remembered for his remarkable running which evidenced itself prominently on the football gridiron. In Feburary of his Senior year in the Mt. Ararat schools, Irving entered Kingsley School, at Essex Fells, to prepare for Wesleyan, and while he never graduated from the "prep" school, a certificate gained admittance to the Wesleyan College for him where he has become prominent because of his athletic ability. Next year will be his last in the college competition and great things are expected of the Westfielder on the cinder path. During the past winter Wesleyan did not suffer a single defeat on the track, and Irving came out first or second in every one of the college meets.

EPSOM DERBY TO BE RUN TOMORROW

Highest Prized "Classic" Contested on the English Turf.

London, June 3.—The Epsom Derby, the most famous and highest prized of the so-called "classic" events of the English turf, will be run tomorrow. On the eve of the great race, the question arises among turf devotees as to what foreign horses will distinguish themselves.

The winning of the Derby for more than a century has been regarded as the greatest turf honor that an Englishman could achieve, and they have been so zealous for the honor that in few years has it escaped them. But with each succeeding year particularly during the last decade, American owners have become more insistent in their efforts to win the famous event, and several times their efforts have been crowned with success.

The first American to win the Derby was the late Pierre Lorillard, in 1881, with the only American bred horse that ever achieved the triumph, Iroquois, by Leamington-Maggie B. B. Since Iroquois, Derby winners have carried the colors of two Americans, William C. Whitney having sent to the post the winner Volodyovski, an English horse, leased for his racing qualities from Lady Meux in 1901, while in 1907 Richard Croker won the "blue riband of the turf" with Orby, a horse bred and owned by himself, on his Irish estate, by the great English sire Orme, from the American mare Rhoda B.

Harry Payne Whitney and John E. Madden will represent the American contingent of horse owners in the race tomorrow, but the latest betting odds posted today indicate the general belief that the American entries are not likely to come to the front.

'TIP-TOES' NEARING CHAMPIONSHIP MARK

Mrs. F. S. Moore's Poodle Has Won Eleven Points in the Last Four Meets.

All records in point garnering were broken by Mrs. Frederick S. Moore's famous toy poodle, "Tip-Toes," in the last four meets it has been entered, the little animal having annexed a grand total of eleven points, needing only four more to be declared a champion. "Tip-Toes," recognized by the American Poodle Club to be the smallest canine of this particular breed in the country at the present time, has been winning consistently ever since Mrs. Moore entered it for the first time. At the show held by the Long Island Kennel Club at Sheepshead Bay, Decoration Day, the local dog made a "clean-up," winning a blue in the limited class, another blue in the open class, winners for the best in all classes, two specials, also winning the club medal for the best dog or bitch, and got the decision over Mrs. T. Hartman's bitch "Famous Venus," and winning Mrs. L. L. Turner's silver cup for the best dog in the show.

The notable victory over Mrs. Hartman's animals, namely, "Fashion Plate," "Little Wonder" and "Famous Venus," is a remarkable triumph for "Tip-Toes," as Mrs. Hartman is a well known Philadelphia breeder and her entries are generally conceded to be sure prize winners. In another local paper it was stated that "Rose A," owner by Mrs. J. D. Anderson, of this city, took first place against strong competition and a special medal for the best in the first exhibition. As a matter of fact Mrs. Moore's dog, "Tip-Toes," secured the Turner cup by virtue of it being declared the best dog in the show and the honor belongs to this entry rather than to Mrs. Anderson's. The latter dog fancier's entry was awarded for being the best of Mrs. William McLoid's breeding.

In winning the Turner cup, which is valued at $250, "Tip-Toes" gained a creditable decision over Mrs. L. L. Turner's "Prince Charming" among other competitors. Mrs. Moore has been remarkably successful with her dogs during the past season and has established a precedent for prize winning. Besides "Tip-Toes" she is the proud owner of "Snowball," a dog that has already been declared a champion and is eligible only in the special classes. This dog, now five years old, has won numerous ribbons, cups and medals for the owner and acquired the necessary fifteen points for the championship with little trouble.

GEORGE CARPENTIER.

News of George Carpentier's victory over Wells caused considerable surprise because in his last two fights he has been defeated by the American middleweights, Frank Klaus and "Billy" Papke.

Carpentier, who is a French middleweight, first loomed up as a promising fighter in the autumn of 1911, when he decisively defeated "Young" Josephs, the English heavyweight, in two battles. Then he defeated Harry Lewis, of New York, and won the middleweight championship of England by beating "Jim" Sullivan. Later came victories over "Willie" Lewis, of New York, and George Gunther.

PRINCIPAL B. J. PHELPS DEFENDS NORTH PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETICS

"Athletics are carried to the extreme in the North Plainfield High School," said F. O. Dunning, Sr., of Mountain avenue, at an open meeting of the borough Board of Education held in the Park Club last night, and further advocated the abolition of restriction of certain branches of athletic endeavor which he claimed were a detriment to the student's health and education while carried on in the present scale. Dr. Dunning said that he based his opposition on personal experience, his son now being captain of the North Plainfield High School baseball team, and that two other sons had been graduated from the borough school after having taken a prominent part in athletics.

Principal B. F. Phelps in defending the school boy side of the question said: "I did not come here this evening with the intention of making any speech or comments, but after listening to the remarks of the gentleman who has just spoken (Dunning), I cannot help but make a defence. Athletics in the North Plainfield High School are positively not carried to an extreme; in fact we follow but two sports, baseball and basketball, having eliminated the sport of rugby football because of the liability of injury to the players and to say that athletics in the borough High School retard the advance in the education of those competing is ridiculous. In fact we have baseball and basketball because it improves the educational standing of the players. Every player, according to the rules we have set down, must attain an efficiency average of seventy-five per cent. in at least four branches of scholarship, in order to be eligible to represent the school on the athletic field.

"There is no institution in New Jersey that enforces this rule more strictly than we do, and you know this fact to be true, Mr. Dunning, because when your boy was in arrears in scholarship for a short period he was suspended from the team on which he played, basketball in this case."

Mr. Phelps also mentioned that the Somerville principal recently came to him and asked permission to play four baseball stars in their lineup who were back in studies and that the boroughites, who were to be their opponents on the occasion in question, consented. One of them was their pitcher, whose prowess as a twirler subsequently defeated N. P. H. S.

Mr. Dunning responded to Mr. Phelps' talk advocating the idea that the athletics in the High School called for extra exertion on the part of the athletes in order to maintain a scholarship efficiency. Mr. Phelps invited investigation on the part of Mr. Dunning or any other person so inclined and said that the people inquiring minutely into the matter would find that the baseball players in North Plainfield High School not only had a scholarship record of seventy-five per cent., but that a majority of them had averages exceeding eighty per cent.

ATHLETIC MEET AT DUNELLEN JULY 4

Novel Events to Be Run Off in Connection With Civic Demonstration.

BILL DALTON HIT IN THE FACE BY A BATTED BALL

Bill Dalton, who played third base for the Plainfield baseball club here last season, and who is one of the best guardians of the difficult corner in the business, was injured in the sixth inning of the Brunswick-Somerville game at the former place Sunday afternoon by being hit in the face by a batted ball. Hickey, of the Central New Jersey League team, was at the bat, and sent up a high foul ball near the fence on the east side of the field. Dalton went after the soaring pellet, and when he suddenly stopped to see how near he was to the fence the ball came down with terrific force hitting him alongside of the nose.

The player fell to the ground unconscious and members of the two team running to his assistance carried him off the field with a badly swollen face. While the injury was exceedingly painful it will not keep the third baseman out of the game and he will be back in the game next Sunday.

ANOTHER PLAYER HURT.

Playing against the Plainfield Y. M. H. A. baseball team at Riverside Park Sunday afternoon, Martin Walker, third baseman on the New Brunswick Y. M. H. A. team, was badly spiked in the left leg while sliding into third base. He is a brother of Charles H. Walker, director of the New Brunswick Outdoor Amusement Company.

CASE IS WINNING GAMES.

Cliff Case, the twirler who pitched Plainfield to victory on a number of different occasions during the past two years and who has been a member of many other semi-professional baseball nines in the Metropolitan district, is a coming star in the Delaware River League with which he is at present affiliated. Case joined that aggregation at the beginning of the present season, and in all of the games he has pitched to date, numbering six, he has not lost a single one. He is wearing a Morrisville suit and is considered to be the mainstay of that combination.

AMERICAN LEAGUE PENNANT.

Boston, Mass., June 3.—To the accompaniment of a band playing "The Star-Spangled Banner," the American League championship pennant was unfurled at Fenway Park today before thousands of ardent followers of the champion Red Sox. A number of league officials and other men prominent in the baseball world attended the ceremonies. Later in the month the world's championship flag will be unfurled at the same park.

YOUTH DROWNED AT WARRENVILLE

Albert Carrar, Seized With Cramps While Swimming, Loses His Life.

ATTEMPT AT RESCUE

William Drake Tried in Vain to Get Victim Out of the Water—Was Employed on Charles Drake's Farm.

Albert Carrar, aged twenty years, employed by Charles Drake, a farmer of Warrenville, was drowned as a result of being seized with cramps while swimming in the old copper mine pond at that place at 6 o'clock last night. William Drake, a companion, was in the water at the same time and made desperate efforts to rescue Carrar, almost losing his own life in the attempt.

Drake caught hold of Carrer, but the latter being helpless, and the water being very deep at that point, he was obliged to give up the rescue work. As soon as Drake could get out of the water he gave a general alarm and neighbors succeeded in finding the body. In the meantime, Dr. Albert Pittis, of this city, was summoned and he worked over the young man for an hour in a vain effort to resuscitate him. The body was removed to the home of young Carrar's uncle, Frank Carrar, where it was viewed by the county physician and a permit for burial was given.

Carrar had lived at Warenville practically all his life and was well thought of. He was employed by Mr. Drake as a driver. The old copper mine is a favorite place for swimming and the boys in that section frequently visit the place. The water is very deep in most places and has many treacherous holes. It was in one of these that the body of the young man was found.

SCHOOL SECRETARY IS INJURED BY FALL

Miss Turnbull Dislocated Her Knee While Climbing the Mountains.

As the result of an injury sustained while climbing the mountains yesterday afternoon, Miss Elizabeth Turnbull, secretary to Arthur B. Vossler, of the North Plainfield High School, is detained at her home on Grove street and it is possible that she will not be able to return to her duties again this term. Miss Turnbull was going to a site near the baby camp with a party of friends, including members of the North Plainfield High School faculty, and while climbing the steep, rock portion of the hill just below the camp, stumbled and fell striking her knee on the sharp part of a protruding rock.

Members of the party assisted her to her feet but Miss Turnbull was unable to proceed further and Dr. Dundon was called to attend her. Upon examination it was found that Miss Turnbull had sustained a dislocation of the knee cap and she was removed to her home.

OPEN AIR SERVICE IDEA IS FAVORABLY RECEIVED

Favorable criticism of the open-air service on Grace church lawn, last Sunday afternoon, is being heard throughout the city, and from the enthusiastic way in which this new Christian enterprise has been received a much larger gathering may be looked for next Sunday. The Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, the rector, would like to have it known that the service out-of-doors is not arranged for his parishioners only, but it is intended for all members of the community who enjoy a less formal method of public worship.

The most popular hymns are used, and the prayers are familiar to everyone. The whole service is concluded within thirty-five minutes. On Sunday a certain number of seats will be provided for those who feel the fatigue of standing through the address. Mr. Stevenson hopes to be able to announce tomorrow the name of the preacher for Sunday's service.

SPOKE ON INDIA AT PARK AVENUE CHURCH

Life and conditions in India were protrayed verbally and in pictures last night by Rev. Albert S. Perrine, of Newark, at the Park Avenue Baptist church. The lecturer said the natives of the Far East country were divided into two classes—the immensely wealthy and the exceptionally poor. Many of the latter cast, he said, live from the cradle to the grave without enjoying a plenteous meal. Rev. Mr Perrine also commented on religion, saying Christianity would eventually supplant Buddism in that country. Stereopticon views were shown illustrating that the traits and costumes of the natives in many respects remain the same as they were 5,000 years ago.

THREE SERIOUSLY ACCUSED BUT CASE IS DISMISSED

Elizabeth, June 4.—Walter Saunders, James H. Still and Richard Keys, all colored, of West Third street, Plainfield, were freed this morning of a serious charge preferred against them by fifteen-year-old Marjorie Lane, colored, also of Plainfield, when arraigned before Judge Connolly, in the Court of Common Pleas. The maximum penalty for each charge in the event of a verdict of guilty being rendered is fifteen years in prison, $2,000 fine, or both. The prisoners were represented by Swackhamer & Bird, of Plainfield. The verdict of acquittal for Saunders was announced first, and Prosecutor Stein, realizing that chances for a conviction in the other cases were slight, caused the charges against the other men to be dismissed.

A BROOKLYN MAN IS REPORTED AS MISSING

The family of Gustave H. Knemeyer, of Senator street and Fourth avenue, Brooklyn, has asked the local police to make investigations to ascertain if he has been seen in this city. The communication stated that he has been missing since Apil 9, on which day he mysteriously disappeared, leaving no explanation for his strange action.

When last seen by members of his family he wore a dark suit, black shoes, white shirt with black stripes, felt hat and a dark overcoat. He also wore a ring bearing the inscription, "E. H. to G. K." Mr. Knemeyer is described as being five feet eight inches tall, 155 pounds in weight, blue eyes, gay hair and mustache and scars on left side of face under mustache.

Never before in the experience of the contest manager has there been so little interest shown when the value of the prizes offered was so great.

Three persons residing within the confines of the territory covered by The Plainfield Daily Press are going to ride around the country for years to come in three automobiles by favor of The Plainfield Daily Press. Are you going to be one of them?

What did you do last night? Don't you think you could have spent the evening pleasantly by calling on your friends and telling them you are in the race to win an auto? Remember the world loves a winner.

How often is the remark made? That person is certainly a hustler and deserves to get along. In nine cases out of ten he does.

Perseverance means success in any walk of life.

In a competitive affair such as the big contest of The Plainfield Daily Press a candidate starts with nothing and finally finds that he has a great number of friends who will come to the front and assist provided the candidate himself shows that he is in the race to win.

There is not a person in the city of Plainfield who if he knew the actual number of subscribers it would require to win (turned in during the period which closes June 18) would hesitate to enter the big contest. Again we repeat that it is not the person who turns in the most money on subscriptions always wins the grand prize.

It is the candidate who puts his best efforts to the proposition during the first period will make the best showing when the final count is made.

Why Squeal?

The one best business puller of the Plainfield Daily Press, since coming under new ownership some fifteen months ago, has been comparisons made between it and our contemporary by discerning people, and as we do not have a regular funny page we feel constrained to give this prominence to a highly amusing letter sent out by our contemporary, because it is too rich to be overlooked. Here is the comical letter:

"Think Twice Before You Act!

"As a means of protection to you, as a reader of the Courier-News, against future annoyance and dissatisfaction, we would suggest, that should you be approached by candidates trying to win various prizes in popularity contests, with a request for subscriptions for one to three years to help them win a prize, that you give the matter due consideration before making a decision.

"It is really an important matter whether you will be entirely satisfied with the publication you are to get or not. Should you feel that you could not afford, or would not care to take two local newspapers at the same time, it will mean the giving up of a newspaper that you have been used to and satisfied with, for a long period. It may mean a feeling of dissatisfaction and annoyance every evening for as long a time as the subscription you give continues.

"In perfect fairness to you, the candidate who desires your assistance, the publication concerned and ourselves, we suggest should you be approached for aid in this matter, that you arrange to have a copy of the publication your friend is interested in, left at your home for a week or two. This will give you ample opportunity to compare it with the Courier-News and thus decide whether you are going to be perfectly satisfied to change newspapers or not.

"We are lead to address this communication to you through the fact that in a former contest, a few readers who changed newspapers, voluntarily stated to us that they regretted very much having made the change without giving the matter due consideration.

"Remember that the Courier-News will continue to grow bigger and better from a newspaper standpoint, just as rapidly in the future as it has in the past. Nothing in the way of expense will be spared to give our readers the best and most up-to-date local newspaper published in a city the size of Plainfield in the whole United States.

The story of the pig.—Once upon a time there was a little pig born. It was placed in a pen with a much larger pig. The little pig often wondered if it would attain the size of the big pig who persisted in crowding and pushing whenever the trough was filled. It happened, however, the little pig matured and got so it could crowd as hard as the once bigger pig. It finally developed that whenever the trough was filled Mr. Little pig got his share. Mr. Big pig began to squeal. Moral: You can never get a pig in a corner unless it squeals. There's a reason.

SERIOUSLY HURT BY FALL FROM HIS STEED

Walter Gennerich Has Narnor Escape From Death on Railroad Tracks.

Hovering between life and death as the result of injuries sustained last night when his saddle horse fell on top of him after tripping on the railroad tracks at Clinton avenue, Walter Gennerich, the nineteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Gennerich, regained consciousness at 8 o'clock this morning for the first time since the accident. Dr. Albert Pittis, the attending physician, is at present unable to ascertain the full extent of the young man's injuries. Had not passersby removed Gennerich's unconscious form from the tracks and carried his to his home, it is probable that his life would have been crushed out by a train which passed a few minutes after.

Young Gennerich had been on a pleasure ride and was returning home shortly after 8 o'clock. As his steed, which is a fiery animal, was crossing the tracks it stumbled, pulling its head downward with a severe jerk. Gennerich was thrown with great force to the ground about 10 feet in front of the faltering animal. Unable to regain its footing, the horse turned a complete somersault on the ground landing on its rider who was lying across the tracks in a dazed condition. The equine managed to scramble to its feet, leaving Gennerich unconscious and badly crushed about the body.

STRIKERS EXPLAIN DEMANDS OF UNION

Electrical Workers State Their Case to the Public Through The Press.

Al. Stryker, George Flatley and Williard P. Thorn, a committee appointed by the Local Union, No. 267, of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, in a communication to The Plainfield Daily Press, today, declare that in no way other than registering an apprentice does the union concern itself. They ask that helpers be paid for their first year at $9 per week. The communication further says:

"Our last agreement, as well as our present one, contains a clause, namely, 'this agreement shall continue from June 1, and notice shall be given by the party contemplating any change at least three months prior to the expiration of this agreement.' This was done on February 24, 1913, when a meeting was held at which there were present contractors of this city."

There was no change today in the strike situation.

STROKE OF PARALYSIS PROVED TO BE FATAL

Stricken with paralysis Friday, May 23, Mrs. Mary J. Randolph Van Nuis, 84 years old, widow of the late John Van Nuis, succumbed yesterday at noon at the home of her daughter Mrs. George T. Harris, of Clinton avenue, with whom she has lived for ten years. Although the stroke she suffered was not considered a severe one at the time, her advanced age frustrated all attempts to restore her.

Mr. Van Nuis died thirty-three years ago. Besides Mr. Harris, two other daughters, Mrs. Christiana Evans and Miss Luara Van Nuis, of this city, and two sons, Frank and Charles Van Nuis, survive.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her late home. Rev. Frederick J. Hubach, pastor of the Monroe Avenue Baptist church, will officiate. Interment will be made in the Willow Grove cemetery, New Brunswick.

A SLAVE TO DRESS

DONS A DOZEN STYLES A DAY.

He Has Thousands of Uniforms and Makes It a Duty to Be Dressed to Suit Each Particular Situation—His Majesty Is a Lightning Change Artist.

To change his costume seven or eight—yes, even twelve—times a day is Kaiser Wilhelm's idea of having a good time. He has fifty castles, and in every one he has at least fifty uniforms. His wardrobe is valued at $700,000. In the palace at Potsdam four immense rooms are filled with his costumes.

William II. has more uniforms than any other man in the world. He has all that Germany can offer and all he can acquire from other countries.

His chief desire in life is to be dressed according to the situation. If he receives an officer he dons the uniform of that particular regiment; if he is sailing he is the immaculate yachtsman, from his snow white canvas shoes to his natty yachting cap.

If the son of an officer or a well known dignitary comes to give the official news of his father's death the kaiser receives him in the uniform of the dead father. If it is a delegation from one of those regiments of which he is the head he holds the audience in the uniform of the regiment thus favored—Bavarian, Hessian, Saxon or that of Baden or of Wurttemberg.

If a foreign ambassador is announced the kaiser wears the uniform of a Prussian general, gaudily decorated with the honorary orders of the country of the visitor.

Every day the list of his audiences is given to his chief valet, who must supervise the preparation of the various costumes, for a costume does not mean a simple affair. There are all the little accessories—swords, epaulets, orders, gloves, boots, helmets, everything that shall send the kaiser out perfectly dressed in all the "fine feathers" that he loves.

Bauer, his chief valet, has twelve valets under him and is the head of a workshop with twelve tailors, who work eight hours each day creating new costumes for his majesty and keeping his old ones in perfect repair so that the kaiser deigns to wear a uniform more than three or four times or to put on for a second time a costume he has worn to the hunt.

But where things are necessarily complicated is in travel.

A good example of what a quick change artist the kaiser is when the conventions of a foreign country call for varied costumes was seen on his visit to England in 1902.

The kaiser's yacht, the Hohenzollern, was sighted off the British coast, and the dignitaries sent to meet the kaiser awaited him at Port Victoria. With a marine glass they scrutinized the royal yacht and saw on the bridge a German general promenading up and down. The word was passed that the kaiser was in the costume of a Prussian general. The gangplank was dropped. The envoys of the court hastened aboard and looked about them for a German general, but in vain. William II. greeted them as an English admiral.

On landing the guests excused themselves, and the kaiser went to his special train. He disappeared a few moments, and shortly afterward an officer of the First Royal dragoons walked into the drawing room of the train. No one rose in salute until the officer spoke. It was the emperor.

Arriving at the Wolferton station, where the attaches of the court awaited him, the word had gone around of his costume. But they strained their eyes uselessly for the dragoon. The kaiser stepped off the train in a frock coat, a top hat and pearl gray gloves, the picture of a well groomed Englishman.

While in England he appeared in the costume of a Berlin field marshal, a British admiral, in both the dress and undress uniforms of an officer of the Royal dragoons and finally in the robes of a D. L. C., the degree that Oxford university conferred, upon occasions that he was seen in civilian clothes. He infinitely prefers to be emphasized as war lord, and it is a relief to see him in robes associated with peace.

The truth is he hates to look like other people, and even for the hunt he has had a special costume designed. It is gray, almost military of cut, and with this he wears a Tyrolean hat of the same color, ornamented with a tall cock's feather.

He evidently fancies that this becomes him nearly as well as the white cuirasseur costume, which is his favorite, for he wears it whenever the opportunity offers to take a stroll in the park at Sans Souci, to ride a bit in the forest with the kaiserin. It is quite immaterial to him that there is no hunt.

His most characteristic dress, however, and the one in which all Berlin has grown to think of him is either that of the cuirasseur—gleaming white, topped by a burnished helmet with a spiked eagle—or the more informal uniform of a Prussian general, over which he draws the well known loose overcoat lined and cuffed and collared with fur, reaching to his heels. With this goes his jager hat, with band and feather.—Chicago Tribune.

Moderation is the silken string running through the pearl chain of all the virtues.

HOME

The average man spends half his life at Home. That takes into account the nights at the club, at lodge, at the theatre, or sitting up with a sick friend. It also takes into account the fellow who sees home often enough only to establish a voting residence. He is balanced off in averaging up by the man who spends a good deal more than half his life at Home. The Newark Sunday Call has figured this all out and says that the statement that more than half of life is spent at Home cannot be disputed. If there is any doubt about it, keep a time schedule for a week or so. The Average Women? Bless you, three-quarters of her life is spent at Home! And that includes the working woman, too, the real NEW WOMAN.

Home shapes up as a pretty big proposition, considering all that. The world realizes it, too, for most of the world's efforts go toward providing homes. Right down at the bottom of things, you come up against that great big reason for it all—"Home."

There was a poet who said that Home was not merely four square walls. That was the absolute truth. Home is what you make it, whether you call it palace, villa, flat, cottage or hut. Some people can make a hall bed-room more homey than others can with a $300,000 marble mansion. It is wholly up to the individual. But as half a life time is to be spent at Home, it is worth trying to make it a success. A real homey Home is life's biggest success.

The poet's four square walls idea, however, should not be taken wholly at its face value. Most truths should not. There is always that little exception to the rule lurking in the background. Accept the truth, but also dig out that little exception and digest its meaning. Then you will get the full value out of the truth. Four square walls do not make a Home. But they help. The better those same walls are the better chance of making a successful Home. Be careful in choosing a setting for the jewel—the home jewel. Remember that you must use that setting half your life. Pick some thing that will wear. See that it is good. That means be careful in choosing your abode. Whether it be a house, a flat or a room, choose it carefully. Whether you buy or rent, remember you are selecting a setting for the biggest thing in life—Home.

The Plainfield Daily Press

thinks a lot about Home. That is natural, for Homes form its destination when it leaves the presses ready for distribution among its thousands of readers. The Daily Press likes to take part in home making and it does all it can to further that end in what it prints. It can aid you in selecting your setting for your Home—the dwelling, whatever form it may take.

The owner of a house who wishes to sell or rent the house goes to an agent—if he be wise and wants results. The agent gives publicity to the owner's desire, attends to the troublesome incidental business, and accomplishes the desired results.

The agent has the assistance of another agent—a very powerful agent for this sort of work. This other agent is the RELIABLE NEWSPAPER, the newspaper that reaches the kind of people the owner would want to sell or rent to. The DAILY PRESS is such an agent. It reaches this desirable clientage and is used by responsible agents. Look at the names of the agents who advertise real estate for sale or to let and note the high character of these advertisers. their agent because it reaches the kind of people They, in turn, have chosen the DAILY PRESS as they want for clients.

Choose your home setting carefully. Study the For Sale and To Let advertisements in the DAILY PRESS. Make notes of what appeals to you, write to the agent or the owner, and inspect the property. You are dealing with established business concerns who can aid you in this big work of Home-Making. They, the agents, are seeking your patronage because you are the kind they want dealings with—the kind who can be reached through the DAILY PRESS.

7TH-DAY ADVENTISTS AND FOREIGN MISSIONS

Denomination Raised Over Half a Million for Cause in Four Years.

During the past four years the Sabbath-schools of the Seventh-Day Adventist denomination in North America gave $632,778.30 for the furtherance of the gospel in foreign lands, according to a report rendered by Secretary George B. Thompson, before the delegates at the world conference of Seventh-Day Adventists now in session in Washington, D. C. An extract of this report has been received by L. Medairy, secretary of the Sabbath-school of the local Adventist church, and the members were much interested in the progress mentioned in it.

During the quadrennial period of 1905-1908, the Sabbath-schools gave $273,141 to missions, the increase over this amount during the quadrennial period ending in 1912 being $359,636.

The motto adopted at the present session of the General Conference for the coming four years was "A Million Dollars to Missions." The report further showed that in 1908 the denomination had 3,747 Sabbath-schools, 1,269 of which were in foreign fields and 2,478 in America. During the four years of the General Conference period, the schools had grown to 4,467, of which 1,845 were in foreign lands, and 2,014 in home fields, making an increase of 574 foreign and 136 home Sabbath-schools since the last General Conference. Four years ago there was a membership in these Sabbath-schools of 88,843, of which 22,011 were in the foreign fields. During the quadrennial period there has been an increase in membership of 25,170, of which 23,678 has been in foreign lands and 1,492 in the home fields, the membership in the foreign fields having doubled during the past four years.

During the four years 3,542 of the Sabbath-school scholars have been converted, and most of them baptized.

Since 1867 when the first deposit for missions was made by the schools, they have donated $1,313,580 for missions. The record of offerings to missions in 1912 from the Sabbath-schools was said to be especially encouraging, as during the year $228,029 was given, which was an increase of $71,540 over 1911. Four years ago the Sabbath-schools of the denomination were giving less than $2,000 a week to missions; now they are giving almost $5,000 a week.

BOARD OF TRADE HOLDS RALLY

Former Governor Fort said in part:

"The courtesy you extend me asking me to speak upon this occasion of the meeting of the Board of Trade of Plainfield, and the representatives of the boards of other adjacent cities, is appreciated. The modern tendency is to concentration in cities. This has its disadvantages as well as its benefits. With the steady increase in profits in agriculture and market gardening one naturally wonders why it is more young men do not remain in the country. City life seems to have its attractions and the city problem is becoming one of the most serious questions of our times. The increase in municipal taxes in the last few years in this State has been so astounding as to be almost unbelievable.

"The cost of running the State of New Jersey last year, including the extraordinary expenses, was, in round figures, $7,800,000. Of this sum the extraordinary expenses were $2,070,000, which left the running expenses of the State at about $5,700,000. By extraordinary expenses I mean additions to buildings and various appropriations that were for the current year only. The cost of the State government has not increased greatly in the last five years. The cost of running the counties of the State is a little over $10,000,000 annually, being about a $2,000,000 increase in the past four or five years, but the city expenses make striking figures.

"The municipalities of this State cost to run last year, in round figures, $29,000,000, exclusive of the school expenses, which added about $22,000,000 more. These sums make a total cost for local purposes including schools of $51,000,000 in 1912. This is an increase in municipal expense for these two purposes—municipal and schools—of over $20,000,000 in five years, or an average increase of $4,000,000 a year in each of the five years past. This is so startling that it should awaken the attention of the taxpayers. Have we been getting results of equal benefit to this increased cost? The difficulty in this is that in our city matters we are not as watchful as in other matters. I am giving these figures only to show you how important it is that you should give attention to that part of your government which is closest to your pocket and which exacts the greatest amount of tax from you, and that in return for this large expenditure you may get the advantage to which you are entitled.

"Your President asked me to talk about what a city should be and do. The chief purpose of the municipality should be to promote the well-being of its people; to make them happy; to give them the greatest benefits possible for the money expended. A city should do everything it can to relieve against the expense of the necessities of the public, and to give that public the greatest enjoyment for the taxation exacted.

"I believe that every city should own its own ice plant and furnish ice to the people at a reasonable profit. I believe it should own its own gas plant and its electric plant and its water plant, and furnish all these to the people at the cheapest possible rate, consistent with a reasonable profit. The public should have municipal baths for their convenience; there should be parks and at this season of the year there should be music in the parks for the benefit of the people, and there should be play grounds for children. Every city should maintain an employment bureau to aid those seeking employment and to aid those securing help. There should always be a good police and fire department. The streets and the sewers should be maintained in the best of order. There should be an annual cleaning and poles and wires and disfigurements should be removed. Above and beyond all persons in the city employ should be under Civil Service and free from partisan removal.

"There are many who advocate in this day that the street car lines should be under the control of the municipality, but with our numerous small adjoining municipalities this would be a difficult problem for us to handle in New Jersey and we must get the best service we can from the private corporation, exacting just compensation for the franchises granted them. The city of Duluth voted to acquire its street railways and the city of Seattle has just elected a mayor favoring it. It is a live question. If the problem had been commenced right there would be no reason why the public utilities of the various kinds I have mentioned, should not have been carried through with a profit practically equaling the cost of the municipal governments of many of the cities and towns of our State.

"All the things here mentioned can be had if the citizenship of the communities will attend more closely to local affairs. If the Boards of Trade of the various localities of the State would devote more time to these questions they would do much to eliminate the frequent charges of graft, and to increase a better civic spirit tending to the upbuilding of their localities.

"Have pride in your town; work for it; praise it; tell of its attractions as a place of residence and do everything in your power to promote it. If you do the municipalities of New Jersey will be pre-eminent for their standing among the people of the Nation."

President Hamburg, of the Newark Board of Trade, was the first delegate to address the assemblage and he lauded Plainfield for its natural advantages and the manner in which civic affairs are conducted, saying, "I consider Plainfield to be a city of many advantages and an organization s[illegible] the Board of Trade should [illegible]ing voice in the community. The Board members must recognize the fact that they owe the city more than for the mere privilege of citizenship, they should assume civic pride and the best channel through which they can evidence this quality is through the Board of Trade. New Jersey is one of the greatest States of the country and ranks near the top in manufacturing, commercial advantages and educational systems. By naming the most influential men of the community as members of the various Board committees co-operation can be secured and this is the greatest asset in attaining success."

James Riley, secretary of the Newark Board of Trade, gave a short talk on the accomplishments of the Newark Board and his words were the subject of much favorable comment during the course of the evening. Mr. Riley said:

"A board is what its membership makes it. There is one way in which good results can be accomplished and unless this way of securing the same is adherred to, success will only be reached through a roundabout course. Every individual interested in the Board of Trade must also be interested in the city. Members of boards must investigate the conditions existing in their particular communities and if his findings are based on facts he will find co-operation forthcoming on every hand. The work of the committeemen should be specialized and those directly affiliated and acquainted with the issue in question should be detailed to investigate. In Newark the Board of Trade has secured through persistent effort appropriations for deepening the Passaic River, got $800,000 for a new postoffice and brought the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company to terms."

Mr. Riley further stated that the Newark Board found it difficult as all other civic organizations do, to keep interest alive, and urged individual energy and the advocation of improvements.

State Senator W. W. Smalley, president of the Bound Brook Board of Trade, said: "The work proposed and planned by city organizations of this nature is applicable to the country civic bodies as well and I have received information at this meeting tonight that will greatly aid me in my work as the head of the Bound Brook Board. Our organization at the present time has a membership of 250 active members and we expect to accomplish great things as a body working together." He further urged concentration and unity of effort among the neighboring Boards and said that he was awaiting the time when the various bodies would work in harmony with each other to secure certain proposed measures.

President Halsey, of the Elizabeth Board of Trade, spoke in a complimentary way of the county roads between here and Elizabeth and commented on the road improvements that have been brought about during the last three years, comparing the past and present thoroughfares and the facilities they afford for heavy traffic. He contended that local matters should be handled locally and advocated a home government, one of the policies of the Elizabeth Board of Trade.

The Westfield Board was represented by President Pearsall and he stated that the Board of Trade of that place was not called upon to promote business or manufacturing interests, because of the fact that special organizations had been brought together to govern each one of these phases of the work in that city. He said that the sentiment of the town was opposed to manufacturing and the object of the Board was to make the city the best place to live in, to work in and to educate the younger generation in. Mr. Pearsall differed with all of the other speakers in stating that the money spent in advertising had brought practically no returns and he urged the other bodies to try individual solicitation by advertising as members of a civic body. He also advocated municipal ownership.

New Brunswick was represented in the speaking by President Reed, of the Board of Trade, Mayor Morrison and former mayor and former president of the Board of Trade George A. Viehmann. All of these talkers outlined the policies involved in the New Brunswick Board's organization.

Following the meeting members of the Board of Trade reception committee served refreshments to the visitors and an informal social gathering was held. United States Senator James E. Martine was invited by the Board of Trade to be present at the meeting, but because of his duties in Washington was unable to reach Plainfield. He wrote to Secretary VanSickle, expressing his thanks for the invitation, and saying: "It will be impossible for me to be with you. I should dearly love to meet at my home town my good friend Governor J. Franklin Fort, but cannot,—I must stay on the firing line."

The New Brunswick delegation was composed of twenty members, including W. R. Reed, president of the Board of Trade; F. W. Yorston, secretary; Charles A. McCormick, George A. Viehmann, John J. Morrison, mayor; James A. O'Connell, James A. Barkelew, C. W. Wood, Carlton F. Harding, Robert Carson, Joseph Snyder, Louis Wolfson, William Leary, Jr., Harry Iredell, Louis A. Board and R. J. Smith.

Plainfield, N. J., June 4, 1913.

THE BORO'S PROBLEM.

In deciding to put the question squarely up to the people, the North Plainfield Board of Education has decided upon the only fair way to settle the agitation concerning the high school problem. A big institution can give more for the money than a small institution can, just as a larger business house has an advantage over the smaller one. This applies to high schools. Any successful business man will say without a moment's hesitation that as a financial proposition it is absurd to have two high schools when one, many times larger, is well located and has a recognized standard of efficiency. By this we do not mean that the curriculum at the North Plainfield high school is not what it should be. On the contrary it is so excellent that it is burdensome to the taxpayers.

When the addition to the present high school structure in Plainfield is completed, the building will represent practically an outlay of half a million dollars. Pupils from surrounding towns, by the good sense of the boards of education in those places, are receiving their high school training at the local institution and at a price per pupil to the given municipality far lower than would be the case otherwise. They are also receiving a four years' course that is unsurpassed and in few instances equalled in New Jersey.

This paper has always contended that the existence of two independent municipal governments in one community is an absurdity. It is just as ridiculous as it would be for one man to run two stores in the same line of business adjoining each other. It follows, therefore, that we cannot see any degree of sound business judgment in two high schools in one community. It was on this same line of reasoning that the North Plainfield authorities joined with Plainfield in solving its sewage problem.

Before the special election is held in the borough, we believe there should be a campaign of education. The voters should be given all the facts and figures. To that end, this paper throws its columns open to North Plainfield taxpayers to express their opinions, with the understanding, of course, that the communications be made as brief as possible. Both sides should be heard.

AN APPEAL.

The Plainfield Daily Press will be glad to receive contributions to a fund to defray the expense of purchasing cooking utensils and to pay necessary wages incidental to conducting the hot luncheon counter to be introduced at the Bryant and Lincoln Schools early in the fall. The scheme is the idea of the Mothers' Association and the Board of Education will lend its hearty co-operation in making the undertaking a success. For three cents, a nourishing luncheon will be provided the pupils.

As stated in this paper yesterday, $500 is needed, according to an estimate of the Mothers' Association and to obtain this amount a public appeal is made for contributions. Any donations sent in care of this paper will be promptly acknowledged and will be immediately transmitted to the association's treasurer.

"MOTHER" GETS HERS.

New Jersey is the "mother of trust," but those "soulless" ones are pretty generous to her. Some 8,434 of them will pay in the aggregate this year exactly $2,578,716.52. The largest contributor is the United States Steel Corporation, which gives $47,179 on its capital stock of $868,583,000. This company, however, is only one of 256 corporations paying tax on a capital stock exceeding $3,000,000.

The next largest is the Amalgamated Copper Company with its capital stock of $153,887,900 upon which it pays a tax to the State of $11,444. The International Harvester Company ranks third, paying $10,750, on a capital stock of $140,000,000, while the International Mercantile Marine Company follows close with a capital of $120,000,000 upon which it pays $9,750.

The Public Service Corporation of New Jersey with $25,000,000 capital pays $5,000 in taxes. Four life insurance companies incorporated in New Jersey, $512,687.35; one parlor palace or sleeping car company, $2,278.29; three express companies, $1,713,14; 8,425 companies taxed upon capital stock, $2,061,978.64.

Three automobiles, all standard makes and all fully equipped, are chief among many valuable prizes offered in the Plainfield Daily Press subscription campaign contest which opens today. Read the offer as made on page 10 of this issue and if you would care to own a fine car, without having to pay one penny for it, consult the Contest Manager at this office.

Former Judge Edward S. Atwater, who passed away yesterday at his home in Elizabeth, represented the best type of citizenship. He had a sweet character and as a jurist always tempered justice with mercy.

Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

100 Per Cent. Digested

68¼ Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powder:

67¾ Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

APPLIANCE TO PREVENT AEROPLANE ACCIDENTS.

Chicago Man Invents an Equalizing Machine For Air Craft.

An equalizing device which, aviators believe, will go far toward removing them of much of the danger now attending cross country flights has been invented by William Hensel of Chicago. It is automatically operated by compressed air and does away with the necessity of the aviator controlling the warping of the wings of his machine by levers.

Hensel's machine is a small one, but he declares it is strong enough to work on any ordinary sized air craft. Briefly described, it consists of two steel tubes, two and one-quarter inches in diameter and sixteen inches in length. In one of the tubes is a solid steel ball, which has plenty of room to roll about. Working by the force of gravitation, the ball rolls to the end of the tube which is lowest and in doing so strikes a valve handle. This automatically releases compressed air supplied by the motor into the upper tube, in which is a piston controlling the warping of the wings. As air is admitted to the upper cylinder the piston is pulled in and so throws down the wing to which it is attached, thereby righting the machine.

The inventor has obtained letters patent on the device. He has been working on the machine more than three years, during which time he has studied the subject from all angles, he says. Aviators who have seen the machine say they believe it is an improvement of great worth and significance.

The machine in working order weighs less than twelve pounds. By the use of aluminium in place of steel the weight could be further reduced if necessary, Hensel says.

THINKS CANCER CONTAGIOUS.

European Scientist Submits Statistics on How Disease Recurs.

Although cancer has not been supposed to be contagious, Dr. Odier, chief of the Cancer institution at Geneva, Switzerland, which is connected with the principal cancer hospitals of Europe and America, has shown by statistics that there are "cancer houses" where the disease recurs. He cannot account for the phenomenon from a medical point of view, but confines himself to the knowledge that such houses exist and therefore are a great danger to the public.

Dr. Odier says that in the last five years he has located a dozen houses of this sort in one of the principal streets of Geneva and believes that in London, New York and Chicago, where statistics show cancer victims to be most numerous, there must be some contagion. After a death by cancer the entire house in which the patient died should be disinfected, Dr. Odier says.

TORPEDO HYDROAEROPLANE.

Brazilian Engineer Invents an Important Device.

Torcuato Lamaro, a Brazilian electrical engineer, has invented a torpedo float for hydroaeroplanes. The navy department of Brazil took immediate cognizance of the invention and arranged for a series of tests of the float.

Those who witnessed the preliminary tests of the device declared they believed, like the inventor, that it will revolutionize naval warfare.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

By FRANCES MARSHALL

Economy of the Separate Coat.

This is the year of the separate coat—a style that is always welcomed by the woman who likes to wear thin frocks through the summer. It is an economical habit, too, or can be made into one. Carried to an extreme, of course, it is anything but economical; separate coats for motoring, tennis, walking and rain, afternoon coats and morning coats, garden coats and evening coats all cost money. But one coat, as an addition to the wardrobe of the economical housewife, is not expensive and makes the wearing of thin, inexpensive frocks for five or six months of the year possible.

Fashion's experts predict the return of the old top covert cloth coat—or a coat of a twilled material much like covert cloth. Of course, it will not be the huge box coat that was once in style and it will not be the long fitting coat that was later worn; it will be cut on modern lines, full about the waist and hips, tight at the bottom. It will be bulky, of course, but it will be durable.

Silk Coats.

Silk coats of various sorts will be more serviceable perhaps than any other for the woman with only one coat. Coats of colored taffeta, navy blue, royal blue, tan in all its shades, green, purple and black can all be worn with white wash frocks. Black and dark-colored taffeta and satin coats can be worn with frocks of any color. The silk coats are generally made to reach to the hips, although they are often made on cutaway lines. They are also made with belted waists and pleated, fitted or shirred peplums attached. The belts are either of leather—wide and stiff—or of silk.

There is a durable and beautiful material sold this year which goes under various trade names and is a sort of cotton velvet. It is expensive—several dollars a yard—but it is wide. It is made up into some very beautiful coats, in both brocaded and plain finish, for afternoon wear.

Lace and net coats are worn for evening, and some of them are very elaborate—one, a beaded net coat, is made three-quartrs length and one, of heavy ecru, is cut on kimono lines and gathered into a straight band about the hips.

FRESH FRUIT PUDDINGS.

LUNCHEON MENU.
Macaroni and Rice Soup.
Chicken Patties.
Potatoes and Spinach.
Rhubarb Pudding.
Cheese and Biscuits.

FRUIT that is not fresh enough to be attractive served au naturel may be utilized in the making of puddings.

Seasonable Dainties.

Strawberry Cottage Pudding.—One-third cupful of butter, one cupful of sugar, one egg, half a cupful of milk, one and three-quarter cupfuls of flour, two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake twenty-five minutes in a shallow pan. Cut in squares and serve with strawberries sprinkled with sugar and slightly mashed. Use cream sauce.

While rhubarb or pie plant is not really a fruit it is generally classed as such.

Rhubarb Pudding.—To make it put a few thin slices of lightly buttered bread in the bottom of a pudding dish. Moisten with boiling water; then put in a layer of rhubarb cut in small pieces. Sprinkle thickly with sugar and gratings of lemon peel, continuing in this order until the dish is full. Put a few lumps of butter on top and bake a golden brown. Serve hot or cold as preferred.

With Hard Sauce.

Cherry Batter Pudding.—Cherry batter pudding may be made of two cupfuls of milk, three and one-half cupfuls of flour, two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one tablespoonful of melted butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt, three eggs and two cupfuls of stoned cherries. Make a smooth batter of the milk, eggs and flour and add all the other ingredients, except the cherries. Drain the cherries, dredge them with flour and stir them into the paste. Butter and fill a pudding mold and bake until done. Serve the batter pudding with a hard sauce to which has been added a tablespoonful each of cherry and lemon juice.

A Spicy Pudding.

Apple Pudding.—Take four good sized apples, one tablespoonful of cornstarch, one cupful of cold water, one cupful of sugar, a small piece of butter, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of butter and one-half cupful of milk.

Peel, core and slice the apples fine and put in an enameled stewpan, then add sugar, dissolve cornstarch in water and pour over apples, then add cinnamon and butter to apples. Sift flour, salt and baking powder, add shortening and milk, mix to a soft dough. Roll to the size of stew pan and lay on top of apples. Cover tight with a lid that will not touch the dough after rising. Cook thirty minutes on top of stove. When done turn out in a large dish. This may be served with sauce or whipped cream.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Whiskers Brothers Go Picnicking In the Woods.

Mr. Wolf Started Over the Bridge.

"THERE," said daddy; "I had a perfectly beautiful time with my pipe and book, and now you are coming here to make me work."

"No, no, daddy, dear, only to have you tell us a story!" Jack and Evelyn protested.

"Well, that's work for daddy," he replied, "but I will have to get busy.

"Well, once on a time three goats lived together on the edge of the woods. Their names were Billie Whiskers, Johnny Whiskers and Jimmie Whiskers. Billie Whiskers was the biggest and strongest; next came Johnny, while Jimmie was the youngest and liveliest.

"One day Jimmie Whiskers said: 'Let's go into the woods and have a picnic today. Nice grass grows up there on the mountain side.' So they started out.

"At first they kept together very well, but after awhile Jimmie got tired of walking along quietly with his brothers and began to frisk ahead.

"Jimmie had a lovely race. At last he came to a narrow bridge over a stream. The bridge was only a log thrown over.

"Jimmie was halfway over when he heard a yawn, and, looking up on the other side of the bridge, he saw Mr. Wolf coming out of his cave and licking his chops as if about to feast.

"'Come right over!' Mr. Wolf growled, and there was no mistaking what Mr. Wolf meant to do when Jimmie got to the other side.

"'Oh, won't you just wait a minute! My brother is right behind me. He is bigger and fatter than I am. I'm sure you'd rather have him for breakfast, Mr. Wolf,' Jimmie pleaded and backed off the log as quickly as he could on the side of the stream away from Mr. Wolf.

"When Johnny Whiskers came up and started across the bridge Mr. Wolf was still waiting at the other end of the log, looking, oh, so hungry!

"But Johnny also began to back off the log, saying: 'I think its my big brother you want to see. He's coming right behind me.'

"And just then Billie Whiskers came up. The minute he saw Mr. Wolf at the other end of the bridge he stopped.

"'Won't you come over and let us get acquainted?' Billie Whiskers said to Mr. Wolf.

"Mr. Wolf started over, thinking that now he would have the three goats to eat, but just as he got to the middle of the log Billie Whiskers lowered his head and butted as hard as he could at the log bridge. It rolled over, and Mr. Wolf rolled off and went down, plop! into the water that ran below, and the water washed him away miles and miles and gave him a good bath, the best Mr. Wolf had ever had, and the three goats started home. They thought they had picnicked enough for one day."

FASHION HINT

By JUDIC CHOLLET

The low belted coat is a fashionable one for girls this summer, and it is most attractive. The illustration shows a coat of this kind that can be made either with or without a fancy collar, and with a straight or cutaway peplum it supplies all needs.

Wraps of this variety are made from ribbed silk and charmeuse satin, from serge, linen and pique. Black charmeuse satin would make a handsome coat with collar and cuffs of rose or blue satin.

FASHIONABLE SUMMER COAT.

For the twelve-year-old size the coat will require five and a half yards of material twenty-seven inches wide and one yard for collar and cuffs and two yards of plaited ruffling.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes for girls from ten to fourteen years of age. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 7875, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

White Star Barry and Beautiful Lady.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

An apt illustration of "the long and the short of it" was furnished at the recent dog show in New York city. The largest dog in the exhibition was White Star Barry, a huge, good natured St. Bernard, and the smallest was named Beautiful Lady, a diminutive, smooth haired Pomeranian. When posed for their pictures the little dog wasn't knee high to her big companion. Indeed, she only succeeded in hiding one of his feet. But size isn't everything, and Beautiful Lady won a ribbon fully as large and gorgeous as that awarded to White Star Barry. They both are canines of high degree, with imposing pedigrees, showing their royal descent.

A Pocket Game.

This is an especially jolly indoor game to play when the weather forces you to stay indoors. All the boys empty their pockets and spread the contents on the table. There ought to be about twenty-five or thirty objects—pencils, jackknives, corks, strings, pebbles, nuts and a dozen other things. As soon as they are spread out the table is quickly covered with a cloth or one of the boys' coats. The boy who is the leader of the game makes a list of the objects on the table on a piece of paper, with a column marked off at the side of the paper headed with each boy's name.

Now he uncovers the table, giving the boys an opportunity to look for one minute by his watch at the objects, after which he covers them over again. Then he takes each boy separately and lets him whisper as many of the objects as he can remember, checking them off in the column on the paper next the boy's name.

Time to Get Up.

Mr. Jerndahl of Boston says that he has a cat that he wouldn't sell for anything in the world. All he hopes is that the cat will keep out of harm's way, because if it should be killed or get seriously hurt or sick he would have to buy an alarm clock. He says that he has trained the cat to wake him up at a certain hour every morning and that the cat never fails. But what do you suppose he does Sunday mornings, when he follows the custom of the country and sleeps late? Probably the Jerndahls put the cat out Saturday night.

Why Water Boils.

Water boils because 212 degrees of heat converts it into steam, which, passing off, still keeps it at 212 degrees, when the effort of the whole to escape at once is repressed by that which, in evaporating, equalizes the temperature and creates the ebullition of boiling. The capacity of water for heat varies, however, with the atmospheric pressure to which it is subjected. In Chile, high in the mountainous district, it boils at 196 degrees.

Candy In England.

In England children say "sweets" instead of "candy." When they do say "candy" they mean what you get in boxes at $1 a pound. But they prefer the words "sugar plum," even though there is no plum with the sugar. And they take the word "taffy" and make it into "toffee" and then give that strange name to butterscotch. Taffy was originally a kind of candy made of Tafia (East Indian) sugar or molasses and rum.

My Kitty's Lost.

My kitty's lost, and I don't know
Just where to look for him.
He's most all gray, but white as snow
Some places, too, so I
Have named him Spot.

But now he's lost! He's full of fun
And just as dear and sweet.
He used to play and romp and run
And fight his brother, too—
My pretty Spot!

He's surely lost! He never would Desert me so, I'm sure.
He loved me, so he never could.
I hope he isn't dead—
Poor little Spot!

After the Wedding —the New Home

Will it be a genuinely happy home in which there is always the brightness and gladness of spring sunshine—a home whose walls frequently resound with laughter of congenial friends—a home in which the tide of joy and good-fellowship never ebbs?

But there never was such a home without music, the close companion of happiness and good cheer.

Shall yours be a silent home, or one in which good music gives the keynote of wholesome sociability?

The Pianola Piano

Makes Music Available to Every Home—New or Old

It conveys to you instantly the technical ability which the concert pianist spends years to acquire.

Unless you have seated yourself before a Pianola Player-piano and have actually played it you have no conception of the amazing perfection of these instruments. If you close your eyes and give your full attention to the hearing of your own playing, you will discover—perhaps to your complete astonishment—that you are actually producing music equal to anything you have heard off the concert stage.

The surprise is most complete if you have had the mistaken idea that the Pianola Piano is the same as other player-pianos.

The exclusive expression devices of the Pianola—the Metrostyle, the Themodist, the Graduated Accompaniment, the Automatic Sustaining Pedal—enable you to direct its wonderful technique with certainty and ease.

The cost of the genuine Pianola Piano is insignificant in comparison with its influence in the social life of your home—and the purchase price may be divided into very easy monthly payments if desired, which fact makes this marvelous instrument financially possible in almost every household.

Playable by hand or music-roll

The genuine and only Pianola Pianos are the Steinway, Steck, Wheelock, Stuyvesant, Stroud and famous Weber

"MAC" SAYS

Scholastic Baseball

Nothing has been head from the Plainfield High School ballists regarding their State championship aspirations of late and it is beginning to look as though that delegation had about relinquished its claim to the title honors. By calling off the Trenton, Rahway and Princeton High Schools the P. H. S. nine practically signified its intention of withdrawing from the race. The victory over Seton Hall "Prep" was a glorious one for the local school boys but that was not clean cut enough to satisfy the fans that the Plainfielders are really the superiors of the Seton Hall aggregation.

A hitch has presented itself in the Interscholastic League series between North Plainfield and Plainfield High Schools, the boys from this side of the brook having requested the boroughites to play the game scheduled for Parker Field next Saturday morning instead of the afternoon. To this the N. P. H. S. combination refuses to agree, several members of the team having business to attend to in the morning and it now looks like a case of either play in the afternoon or forfeit on the part of the P. H S. lads.

Leal's and North Plainfield meet again this afternoon in connection with the league. Without Nash it is doubtful whether the private school youngsters will be able to hold down the N. P. H. S. nine like they did P. H. S. last Friday.

City Baseball League

Gradually the City Baseball League is beginning to assume the appearance of a stellar organization and if the managers continue to bolster up their playing outfits as steadily as they have been doing in the past two weeks it is safe to say that the junior league will soon be on a playing par with the Central New Jersey organization.

Several of the managers have signed up old time playing stars of the real drawing kind and these veterans have done a whole lot toward steadying the younger performers. Before the season is over the league will probably assume the role of a semi-professional organization with many stars attached.

Rumor has it that George Ortlieb is about to join the Spicer team, of the City League. "Germany" Ortlieb has just returned from a spring training tour with the Lawrence team, of the New England League, and is in the best of condition to show to his best advantage on the mound.

Central New Jersey League.

Manager Bob Bogardus, of the Dunellen team, has one of the fastest organizations on the circuit and after taking three in a row, the Dunellen fans are satisfied that Bob has at last turned out a real pennant chaser whom none can beat. He believes in bolstering up his nine and is always on the war path scouring the country for stars who are running around without keepers.

As a battery, Kraft and Torpey, of Somerville, look like the real article. Jack Torpey is a receiver whom any moundsman can have confidence in and Eddie Kraft works with Jack in first-class style. After holding the Dunellenites hitless for five and one half innings Saturday afternoon Kraft was forced to accept defeat because of an excusable slipup on the part of second baseman Hickey.

Collegiate Circles.

Two athletes from this vicinity have been selected as leaders of college track teams for next season and both are well known to local sport followers having appeared here on a number of different occasions. "Rus" Lawrence, or Beatty as he is now dubbed, will captain Columbia next season and Harold L. Irving, of Westfield, a former Westfield High School star, will lead Wesleyan College track and field performers.

The defeat of Russell Lawrence Beatty in the Intercollegiate shot-put event came as a great surprise in collegiate circles. The burly Plainfielder was looked upon as a sure first place winner in this event but Whitney heaved the iron ball two inches further than did "Rus."

Russell Miller, winner of the Yale cup in the Plainfield High School graduating class of 1910, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley S. Miller, of Union street, has been elected as president of the Intercollegiate Gymnastic Governing Board for next season. Miller's athletic prowess is well known in this city where he was a stellar performer as a school boy and last season as a member of the University of Pennsylvania track team, he was a star on the rings. He did not suffer a single defeat on the flying rings throughout the whole collegiate season and topped off his work by annexing the intercollegiate championship at the end of the season.

Jack Riffert, another former Plainfield High School athlete, who has been playing right field for the Swarthmore College nine, has returned to his home in Bound Brook and will play in the outfield during the summer for the semi-professional nine of that place.

Clarence Lawrence Beatty, a brother of the intercollegiate shot-put champion, is attending Syracuse University and is also winning laurels on the field. He is a high jumper, broad jumper and shot-putter.

Sporting Editor:

Query—If a batter hits the ball in front of the plate and it bounds back and hits him while he is in the batter's box, is he out?—N. A. S.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Kindly inform me what authority the captain has on a baseball team. Has he the placing of the players in their various positions?—G. H.

Answer—The manager generally arranges the lineup before the game and the captain looks after any changes after the game has been started.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Will you kindly tell me if drivers of automobiles in such races as the Vanderbilt cup ever leave their cars during the race? I am told that no driver who ever won one of the big races ever sat in his machine for the whole length of time.

Answer—As to whether any winner ever remained in his car during the whole race, I cannot say. Drivers, however, frequently find it necessary to leave their cars for the purpose of assisting in the making of repairs during the races.

BASEBALL NOTES

Yale winning 18 games straight just about proves that the Elis are the class among college nines of 1913.

A young brother of "Smoky Joe" Wood, of the Red Sox, has joined the Brockton team, of the little old New England League.

Manager McGraw, of the Gaints, has signed Pitcher White and Catcher Mullaney, the star battery of the Georgetown University nine.

Thrailkill, Womack, Stuck, Snapp, Gutknecht, Killebrew and Fauroutte are a few of the names found in the line-ups of Kansas League teams.

Manager Charley Dooin, of the Phillies, took a mean slap at the Superbas, Pirates and Cubs, when he said that the Gaints are the only team he feared.

Otto Jordan, the old Brooklyn star and later pilot of the Atlanta Crackers, is managing the Valdosta (Ga.) team of the Empire State League.

It is not safe to tell any American League pitcher that Ty Cobb's eyesight is on the bling, when the batting averages show that Ty is hitting for .500 or better

The Filipino baseball team, which is to perform in this country this Summer, has a pitcher by the name of Jaropilla. That's a nice name for a shooter of the pill.

The Washington infield has been in a bad way this season. McBride, Gandil, Laporte and Morgan have all been injured at different times and forced to lay off the job.

Two old-time leaguers, Manager "Lefty" Davis, of the Winona team, and Manager Bob Unglaub, of the Minneapolis team, are leading the new Northern League in batting.

Boston bleacherites seem to delight in bawling out Bill Sweeney. Bill is playing as fine an all-around game as any man in the business and yet the bugs are not satisfied.

Leading the American Association in both club batting and club fielding doesn't seem to get the St. Paul team anything. The team has been resting in the second division nearly all season.

Milan, of Washington, who is leading the American League in base stealing, has stolen twice the number of bases as has Myers, of Boston, who is leading the National League in pilfered sacks.

DO BATTERS SOLVE PITCHERS' CURVES

Do batters do much outguessing in these days of splendid pitchers, armed with a host of newfangled curves? Many players believe they do; others think the contrary is true.

Fred Blanding, of the Cleveland Americans, is one of these. Fred doesn't see how a hitter can outguess the pitcher very much when the odds are so decidedly against him.

"Of course," says Fred, "there are some men like Cobb or Lajoie, for instance, that are enabled by some special sort of intuition to dope out what the pitcher is going to throw, but even they are wrong sometimes and made to look foolish in consequence. The other batters don't try it at all and only succeed when the pitcher has once in a great while forgotten to hide his ball."

Taken all in all one would think it a mighty hard job to guess a pitcher's next delivery. In the first place, the batter doesn't know who is giving the signal and is stopped right there from trying to outguess the pitcher. Not knowing who is giving the signs, he is naturally unable to see what is going to be thrown.

In the second place, all the best pitchers and most of the youngsters, even, have just one way of holding the ball, be it for a curve, spitter or fast one. In these cases, too, the ball is thrown the same way, with the same delivery. When all these odds are arrayed against the batsman it can be seen it is no cinch for him to solve the next ball served up to him.

Trying to dope out the various balls pitched has put many hitters in wrong. Sometimes they expect a fast one and are made to look foolish because it was a curve. Again they may wish to step into what they think is going to bend and nearly have their heads knocked off with a fast one. The best way to do seems to be to stand up there, not giving an inch, look them over well, pick out the best ones—speed, curve or spitter—and try to meet it squarely. It would seem that those who follow this method of procedure are more certain of amassing a fat average than those pursuing other tactics.

DORFLINGER'S NEW PLAYER BADLY HURT

Teston Will Not Be Able to Join the Plainfield Team for Some Time to Come.

Playing on the Clinton avenue field Saturday afternoon, as a member of the Saurer team, of the City Baseball League, in the latter's contest with the Colored Giants, Leo Teston, the crack Bound Brook High School athlete, was severely injured. In the fourth inning Teston hit safely to the outfield and in his attempt to steal second dislocated his right knee just as he was about to slide into the base. He was carried off the field by his team-mates and attended by a physician, who pronounced a dislocation of the knee joint.

To date, not a single week-end has passed by but what some baseball player has been injured on local diamonds but the nature of the injuries this season have been unusually severe. Fully a dozen local players are under the doctors' care at the present time and in some instances they will not be able to get back into baseball within a year.

In a football game with the Rutgers Prep team in 1909, Teston, in attempting to get a forward pass, was blocked by Elmendorf, the Rutgers Prep quarterback, who fell heavily upon him and this resulted in a break in the knee cap. Saturday the old injury again evidenced itself due to the strain.

Manager Dorflinger, of the Plainfield Central League team, applied for permission to use Teston on his team at a recent meeting of the league and the Bound Brook star expected to join the Plainfielders next Saturday afternoon, when he was slated for a tryout in the left garden.

YOUNG EAGLES WON SECOND GAME IN THE NINTH ROUND

One run in the last inning broke a tie and gave the Young Eagles their second victory over the Young Giants at Dunellen yesterday afternoon. In the last round Huff got a hit and Bloomfield threw wild to first, Huff taking second base. He later stole third and scored on Mundy's neat sacrifice. The final score was 3 to 2.

BASEBALL RULES SIXTY YEARS AGO

Original Regulations Would Not Fill One Page of Present Baseball Guide.

It will, no doubt, be interesting to the baseball fans of today to compare some of the rules of sixty-five years ago to those of the present time. When the rules were first framed, about 1845, they would not fill one page of the baseball guide of today.

The Knickerbocker Club, of New York city, was the first one organized to play the now national game of baseball, and this was the one from which the succeeding clubs derived their rules of playing. The organization bears the date of September 23, 1845, when playing rules were adopted which are given below and present a curious contrast to those now in vogue.

1.—The bases shall be from "home" to second base, 42 paces; from first to third base, 42 paces, equal distance.

2.—The game to consist of 21 counts or aces; but at the conclusion an equal number of hands must be played.

3—The ball must be pitched, and not thrown, for the bat.

4—A ball knocked out of the field or outside the range of the first or third base, is a foul.

5—Three balls being struck at and missed and the last one caught, is a hand out; if not caught, is considered fair and the striker bound to run.

6—If a ball be struck, or tipped and caught, either flying or on the first bound, it is a hand out.

7—A player running the base shall be out if the ball is in the hands of an adversary on the base, or the runner is touched with it before he makes his base; it being understood that in no instance is a ball to be thrown at him.

9—Three hands out, all out.

10—Players must take their strike in regular turn.

11—All disputes and differences relative to the game to be decided by the umpire, from which there is no appeal.

12—No ace or base can be made on a foul strike.

14—But one base allowed when a ball brounds out of the field when struck.

Factory difficulties and a cold wet spring, resulting in cancelled orders and accumulation of stocks on manufacturers' hands.

And then the proposed tariff changes, which urge manufacturers to dispose of their heavy stocks at any cost.

Why at Wanamaker's Only?

Because this is one of the few Clothing Stores whose increasing business, notwithstanding adverse trade conditions, has diminished its regular stocks to a point where it can go into this favorable market and take advantage of the conditions.

Mr. Reeves has had a world of experience in all lines of sports, and should prove to be one of the best baseball managers in the State, as he has already gathered together one of the fastest local ball teams that has been seen here for some time, and expects to take next Saturday's game from the fast Royal Giants.

He has his eyes on a Westfielder who is home on a visit and on the Spicer roster George Ortleib's name will be found next Saturday.

THE PARK GROCER

Duer Street and Lincoln Place.

Andrew Anderson, a trolley conductor at Ellicott City, Md., found a package containing $550 cash and $4,000 in certified checks and left it "at the office." The excited owner claimed it an hour later and gave the conductor 50 cents.

The American Can company reports a new demand for small tin cans from Africa, where the natives use them as earrings. The company says it made 2,000,000,000 common tin cans last year and some million "specials." Also it figures its year's output, if placed end to end, would reach six times around the earth.

Mrs. Emma Driver, who toured the country for years as a "bearded and fat lady," is dead at Brunswick, Me. Tipping the scales at 507 pounds, Mrs. Driver had a waist line two inches greater than her height, which was five feet six inches. She also wore a full beard. She was forty-seven years old.

The Countess of Cowper, who died recently at Cannes, had a peculiar funeral at Hertingfordbury, England. The coffin was taken to the church on a timber wagon drawn by two farm horses, and the white pall over the casket was made out of her wedding robe.

Uncle Sam has given Cupid a rap, as far as army nurses go. Nurses who leave the service to get married will have the sum expended in carrying them to their post deducted from salary due. In other words, travel allowance depends on full three year service.

Judge Carpenter of the United States court in Chicago has refused naturalization papers to William Krunig, who, when asked who is "chief executive of the country," replied, "Kaiser Roosevelt."

Entering the parlor of her flooded home at Rosston, Pa., as the waters subsided, Mrs. Catharine Reiter found a twenty inch catfish, still alive, entangled in the ornamental work of the gas chandelier.

KNOWS MUCH AT FIVE YEARS.

St. Louis Child Becomes a Prodigy Under Father's Direction.

Wanetta Haverstick of St. Louis, who recently passed her fifth birthday, has become a prodigy in the last few months. At four and a half years of age she was perhaps a little brighter, but certainly knew no more, than the average child of that age.

Her father, Dr. G. W. Haverstick formerly a lecturer at the Physicians' and Surgeons' hospital of St. Louis, recalled that he had once been interested in the word method of instructing children. He tried this system with Wanetta.

In the first six months under the system she mastered the first grade reader, gathered a more comprehensive knowledge of geography than the average child has at twelve years, learned much about physiology, began to take an interest in politics and became so well versed in the Bible that she was excluded from the Sunday school class containing children of her age.

DEAD, SINGS FOR THE DEAD.

Voice Stilled Two Years Is Revived by Phonograph.

When the funeral of Caton L. Decker took place recently at Orange, N. J., one of the songs was sung by Decker's friend, W. Stanley Grimsted, who had been dead two years.

Grimsted was a professional singer and was known on the stage as Frank Stanley. Decker also was a singer, and he and Grimsted frequently sang together, one of their favorite songs being "Face to Face."

Grimsted made a solo record of that song, and Decker preserved it. Just before he died he requested that the record be played at his funeral. The request was complied with, and the mourners sat in awe while the dead chanted for the dead.

Famous Cruiser Remodeled.

The second class cruiser Baltimore, which took part in the battle of Manila bay, is to be converted into a mine depot and transport ship. The Baltimore was authorized in 1886 and was one of the first big cruisers built for the new navy.

HAMILTON IS CHEERED BY LUKE'S POEM OF HOPE

CHEER UP.

We've had our time of flood and gloom;
We've neared the awful doors of doom,
And some have entered in,
But now the sun of hope peeps out,
Old trouble we can put to rout,
So grin, gosh dern it, grin!

—Luke McLuke.

The above words of cheer contained in the Cincinnati Enquirer probably have done more toward bringing encouragement to the misery and grief stricken people of Hamilton than anything else.

Printed on a board twenty feet high and fifteen feet wide, the little poem was hung up in front of the Rentschler building, and hundreds of Hamiltonians gathered about it, all going away with a flash of new hope on their faces.

WOULD HAVE PEDIGREES OF ALL ALIENS SEARCHED.

Professor Tells of Ills of Heredity, Cites Instances.

The family tree of every immigrant should be thoroughly investigated before admission into the country, says Professor Carrie M. Derrick, M. A., an authority on biology and social reform. While lecturing on the subject in Montreal she pointed out specific cases of the feeble minded and degenerate propagating their species, delineating the pedigrees of whole families of degenerates.

Professor Derrick instanced the familiar example of the Jukes family, which was descended from Max Jukes, a drunken and lazy wastrel, who in 1770 married a woman who was the mother of criminals. Of later descendants 300 had died in poorhouses, many had been feeble minded, and there had been 300 cases of infantile mortality. The Jukes family had cost the state altogether $1,250,000. Contrasted with this was the family of Jonathan Edwards, who also married in 1770 and became the ancestor of a long line of clergy, physicians, college professors, distinguished army and navy officers and good women.

Miss Derrick attacked the modern theory that education and good environment have redeeming effects on character. With the aid of another tree—that of a prominent New Jersey family—she showed how the scion of a good family who ran wild in his youth became the ancestor of feeble minded descendants and alcoholics by wedding a feeble minded woman. By his second marriage to a normal woman, however, he had another family, whose descendants were good and useful people, many of them distinguished, with only two alcoholics in several generations.

INVENTS NARCOTIC BULLET.

New Missile Puts Victim to Sleep—Inflicts No Pain.

United States army officials are experimenting with an invention of Alexander F. Humphrey, a patternmaker, of Pittsburgh that may revolutionize warfare, big game hunting, policing and every line of work in which bullets play a part.

"Narcotic bullet" describes the invention in a word.

In his sleep producing missile Humphrey uses a minute particle of morphia. The drug is carried in tiny wells in the steel jacket of the regulation army bullet. Humphrey asserts that it in nowise interferes with the effectiveness of the missile.

"The soldier receiving a slight flesh wound from the new bullet," said Mr. Humphrey, "fights no more that day. He calmly stretches himself on the ground and goes to sleep. The man receiving a serious wound suffers no agony, as the narcotic from the bullet is absorbed by his system and he is insensible to pain before he reaches the hospital. The man whose wound is mortal sleeps away his last hours, thus doing away with the most of the battlefield horror.

"The fleeing burglar is shot in the arm, runs forward a short distance, stretches himself on the sidewalk, and all the policeman has to do is summon an ambulance and take him away."

SURGEONS 6,000 YEARS AGO.

Physician Describes Discoveries Made In Egypt.

Dr. F. M. Sandwith, consulting surgeon to the khedive, lecturing at Kensington town hall in London recently, said the first surgeon of whom he could find any record lived at the time of the fifth Egyptian dynasty and must have been court doctor to the Pharaoh some 4,000 years before Christ.

The first surgical implements of which anything was known, said Dr. Sandwith, were splints found in the Nubian desert. In one place a graveyard was found, and here were remains of bodies with fractured limbs that had been set with bark splints. One was a right thigh bone that had been broken and was still held in position by a workmanlike splint and bandages. All the knots were true reef knots, and the wrappings showed how the strips of palm fiber cloth were set just as a good surgeon would set them nowadays, so as to use the full strength of the fabric.

In other cases, said Dr. Sandwith, bodies were found with compound fractures where the broken ends of the bone had broken through the skin. Death seemed to have come very quickly after an accident of this kind, for no trace of healing of the bones was to be found.

WOULD PROHIBIT NEW HATS.

Unique Penalty Urged For Wearing of Odd Headgear.

Because his view was obstructed by the hats of women when he attended Easter church services Senator H. W. Brelsford of Austin, Tex., introduced a bill in the legislature making it unlawful for any female to wear in church or any public gathering any hat or headdress having a crown or any ornament exceeding two inches in height or a brim more than four inches wide.

The penalty provision reads: "Any person who shall violate the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be deprived of the privilege of purchasing any new hat for a period of three years and then only be allowed to purchase one costing less than $2 and to be be of uniform design, cost and ornamentation."

THE FORUM.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

In your issue of Tuesday, May 20 there appeared an article by Hugh F. Fox, secretary of the U. S. Brewers' Association, in which he states that "We have not contributed any money directly or indirectly to their cause--referring to the Anti-Suffragists--nor have we been asked to do so, though we have had appeals from the other side." Will Mr. Fox kindly state by whom, and when these appeals were made? Whether from individuals, State or National organizations?

You have already published the circular of the Michigan Anti-Suffragists sent out and paid for by the Macomb Co. Retail Liquor Dealers' Association according to their own showing. The following Michigan press opinions confirm the statements of Miss Milholland, Rev. Anna Shaw and a score of others who worked in the Michigan campaign:

Detroit Journal.

The fight was made throughout the State by liquor interests. They are the only opponents of suffrage who have any object in making an intense campaign. They made it—an intense and thorough campaign.

Kalamazoo Gazette.

Last fall local liquor dealers vigorously denied any connection with the fight against the women, but this spring they all but openly boasted of it. . . . There is no doubt that thousands of dollars were sent into the State by outside liquor organizations, and it was this "barrel of slush" that, more than any other one thing, compassed the undoing of the suffragists.

Port Huron Times-Herald.

There is no denying the fact that the liquor interests took a prominent part in the defeat of suffrage. The saloon men saw State-wide prohibition staring them in the face if the suffrage movement was successful in Michigan. They worked openly against it, and contributed largely to its defeat.

Lansing State Journal.

With unlimited means at their command, the liquor interests flooded Michigan with misleading literature, and, under the cloak of the Anti-Suffrage Association, composed of well-known Michigan citizens, worked deadly harm.

Detroit Times.

The defeat of woman suffrage in Michigan is an easy thing to explain.

While the forces of the "antis" were better organized than they were last fall, with plenty of money from the sale of beer and whiskey to finance opposition that was open, the handicap put upon a just cause by the sadly mistaken women across the water made the case quite hopeless.

The Times has contended for years that woman is entitled to vote, and is still of that opinion, and is enlisted for the fight that will go on.

Its opinions are not to be changed by votes brought about by the use of brewery and saloon money and brewery and saloon controlled votes.

Mr. Fox also says, "Incidentally, we may say that the large vote cast by the women of Colorado against prohibition, and by the women of San Francisco and Los Angeles in favor of the continuance of the license policy, indicates that women can be trusted to use good judgment on such issues when they are discussed fairly upon their merits." A woman in Colorado writing to her nephew makes this statement, "Of course we all hoped that there were enough good men in Colorado to aid the women in making the State dry, but when one considers that the voting men in the State outnumber the women by nearly 60,000, and remembers the large foreign element among certain classes of people—miners for instance—a defeat of 20,000 does not seem so discouraging. The women of Colorado are wasting no time in tears, but are already in fighting armor for the next battle with the enemy, and next time doubtless the drys will win."

MRS. MARY DAVIS TOMLINSON,
President of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

BEST NEWSPAPER READ.

It is seldom that there comes to us a paper we can praise as wholesome and clean in every respect, but "The Philadelphia Sunday Record" certainly deserves its title as "the greatest home newspaper of all." It has feature pages for every member of the family. We were surprised at the variety and scope of its articles. The best artists and authors each week contribute some of the work that has made them famous. The story that interested us the most concerned an old barn near here that we used to play around so many years ago that we are ashamed to tell. It is just this clean, human interest touch that makes "The Philadelphia Sunday Record" a favorite everywhere, particularly in the country. Best of all, it costs only three cents. You had better do as we did—order next Sunday's copy today and be sure of getting it.

"I'm so Glad John's Going to put in a Square Pot Boiler

—I'm more pleased than I can tell. Why! Mrs. Brown told Mrs. Archer—and I got it from her—that during all that bitter, bitter weather last winter their Square Pot boiler kept them absolutely comfortable. Indeed, some days, she said, they were almost too warm, and what's equally surprising, they burned quite a little less coal than we did, and didn't have to fuss with the boiler at all. I said to John, after I heard that—'John, if you put up with our old coal-eating, dust-making, cold-storage plant for another winter, you're foolish'—and John said he'd 'look into it' and now we're going to have one."

There's no getting away from "Square Pot Boiler facts." They tell a story that's convincing. Square Pot Boilers are free steamers with little fire—or, you may run them to rated capacity and they will still keep a steady water line and furnish dry steam. They are economical, cleanly and easily cared for. Get the whole story from the dealer in your town.

IN PLAINFIELD.

The Evidence Is Supplied by Local Testimony.

If the reader wants stronger proof than the following statement and experience of a resident of Plainfield, what can it be?

Mrs. S. Driscoll, 1009 South Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "There was a dull pain across the small of my back and in my sides that clung to me constantly and any hard work made me worse. I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells, especially when stooping or lifting and I felt weak and run down. I tried plasters and various other remedies but nothing helped me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Drug Store. They made a lasting cure. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as I have been for the past five years."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.—Advertisement.

White Goods---Colored Dress Goods---Best of Linens

Cold Spring has sent a chill down the back of many mill men and manufacturers, and the makers of Summer wash fabrics have been shivering. They are discouraged and the depression has made it easy for us to buy big lots of cotton goods at much less than they should have been sold for.

These recent purchases form the foundation of a sale which we will begin tomorrow and continue for three days, and it will embrace a wide variety of the most popular of this season's tub fabrics.

'ANTIS' ORGANIZE A LOCAL LEAGUE

Prominent Women Form Branch of Ass'n Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

MRS. JOOST PRESIDENT

Mrs. E. Yarde Breese and Mrs. Alexander Jamieson, of Trenton, Have Charge of the Meeting Which is Largely Attended.

A local branch to the New Jersey Association Opposed to Women Suffrage was organized yesterday afternoon in the Frost building with a roster containing approximately 250 Plainfield women, who will combat the combined efforts of the suffragists. Mrs. E. Yarde Breese and Mrs. Alexander Jamieson, both of Trenton, president and organization secretary respectively of the State body of antis, had charge of the proceedings.

The nominating committee composed of Mrs. John Constable Moore, Mrs. Bernhard Gustafson, Mrs. Edgar E. Hyatt and Miss Isabelle Tweedy, selected these candidates to run for the various offices of the local branch, all of whom were unanimously elected: President, Mrs. Sherman B. Joost; vice presidents, Mrs. Pierre Mali, Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, Mrs. Katherine Dix Lawrence, Mrs. J. Constable Moore, Mrs. Henry D. Hibbard, Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Mrs. George H. Goddard, Mrs. Edgar S. Hyatt, and the Misses Florence Tweedy and Mary A. Melick; treasurer, Miss R. A. Lawrence, and secretary, Mrs. Charles L. Sykes.

The enthusiasm at the meeting was manifest at all times and the remarks of the various speakers were loudly applauded. Mrs. E. Yarde Breese, of Trenton, president of the State Association, told of the work of the organization.

Following Mrs. Besse, Mrs. Jamieson in a brief talk said: "The activity of the suffragists in New Jersey, although gaining them little, has made it necessary for the women opposed to equal suffrage to organize. Realizing the advantages of being united, our organization is forming branch bodies all over the State to fight the strenuous attempts of some women to secure the ballot. Should these women be successful in their efforts, and I do not think they ever will, New Jersey and any other States that follow the example of Colorado (an equal suffrage State) will find themselves confronted with problems far greater than those that are at the present time puzzling our lawmakers and governing bodies."

Continuing the speaker gave various reasons in support of her claim that women suffrage would be harmful to the country rather than be a benefit. Literature and neat buttons bearing the inscription "Opposed to Women Suffrage," were distributed among the members.

SEMINARY ALUMNAE GATHER AT LUNCHEON

Mrs. Richard Duyckinck Acts as Toastmistress—Graduates as Speakers.

The annual alumnae luncheon of the Plainfield Seminary was held today at the Seminary, the delightful affair being attended by a large number of former graduates of the institution. The rooms were elaborately decorated for the occasion with spring and summer flowers and there was a prevailing spirit of good cheer among the guests.

The toast mistress was Mrs. Richard Duyckinck. Miss Kenyon, the founder of the Seminary, first responded to the toast, "Small cheer and a great welcome make a merry feast." After the luncheon, the toasts were as follows:

"The books, the arts, the academies," Mrs. Archibald Cox; "Thy grandma loves thee," Mrs. Henry D. Hibbard; "More busy than the laboring spider," Miss Marion Brown; "Strong reasons make strong actions," Miss Mabelle Phillips.

One of the pleasing features, and somewhat of a surprise was the singing of an original song, "Gather Maids and Matrons Also," written by Mrs. Maxwell Perkins. The song was received with hearty and continued applause by the alumnae.

The program was concluded with two more toasts, one by Miss Isabelle Arnold, the principal of the Seminary, and the other by Mrs. Eugene Mamlin Hatch, and an "unauthorized report of committee of one," which was listened to with unusual pleasure and interest.

Interspersing the toasts and at the conclusion, the guests joined in singing "Song to I. S. A.," "A Drinking Song," and "Auld Lang Syne."

FAREWELL PARTY FOR TOMMY MUIR

Given by Reminiscent Club in His Honor Last Night—Attended by Fifty.

An evening of mirth, featured by a program of fancy dancing, singing, instrumental music and speech-making was given for the benefit of fifty members of the Reminiscent Club at its rooms on West Fourth street last night, the occasion being the deferred farewell reception in honor of "Tommy" Muir, who will leave Monday for Lake Hopatcong where he will once more assume charge of Camp Ram's Horn. A gathering such as the one last evening was of the kind that is seldom given in this city, the evening's entertainment being complete in every sense of the way and the amusement talent in attendance kept up a continual round of jollity. "Tommy" was the center of attraction during the evening and in his usual vein of good humor took an active part in the merrymaking. Plans have been under way during the past three weeks for this reception and although the affair had been anticipated with interest by every one of the club members, they little dreamed of the good time the busy committee had in store for them and the "layout" was pronounced the best ever by all who were fortunate enough to get into the ring of jollity.

During the course of the evening Fire Chief T. O. Doane, of the local fire department, who is an honorary member of the club, was presented with a silk umbrella as a token of esteem coming from the organization's members The speech of presentation was made by Tommy Muir and the recipient responded with a few well chosen words. Joel D Pennington, another who is closely affiliated with the fire department, was the master of ceremonies and he introduced the following speakers, all of whom had a good word to offer for the guest of honor and alluded to the affair as a remarkable success: Councilman Patrick J. Reville, Charles C. Graves, John H. Cose, Edward Strappe, Joel D. Pennington, Thomas Muir, Dennis J. Galbraith and David Coleman. An orchestra composed of Allen Squirer, piano; Wilbur E. Make, cornet; Fred Zweifel, trombone, rendered several selections throughout the evening and two quartets sang a number of topical hits which were well received.

The Smokeaters quartet consisted of William Jaeger, George Leland, Fred Zweifel and Thomas Muir, and the Juvenile quartet of Elmer Blimm and James, John and William Traynor. Vocal solos were rendered by Edward Harding, Jr., Anthony Martel, John H. Cose and Thomas Muir. Pete Sweeney played the vitaphone, and Anthony Martel was loudly applauded for his exhibition of fancy step dancing.

PERKINS A DIRECTOR OF STATE TRUST CO.

At the June meeting of the board of directors of The State Trust Company held last evening, Seymour Perkins was elected a director. Mr. Perkins has been a resident of Plainfield for some five or six years, is connected with Rhoades & Co., bankers, New York, and brings to the board expert knowledge of investments gained through his New York Bond House connections. Mr. Perkins should prove a valuable acquisition to the board.

"WHITEWASHED" DOMINIE WILL BE TRIED JUNE 16

Will's S. McRorie, the dominie of Mt. Bethel, Mt. Horeb and other Somerset county villages, who was indicted by the Union County Grand Jury, was to have appeared today for trial in the criminal court at Elizabeth. The young girl, one of his parishioners, was not present.

Foster M. Voorhees, once a governor of New Jersey, appeared as counsel for the suspended minister. It was agreed to ask that the trial be postponed until Monday, June 16. Judge Connolly granted the request.

McRorie, who was "whitewashed" by the Newark Conference of the M. E. church, is out on bail.

SOME PEOPLE SURE ARE 'EARLY BIRDS'

First Announcement of Original Entrants in the Great Automobile Contest.

In the advertising columns today will be found the names of candidates already entered in the big contest. This list contains the names of some of the best known people of Plainfield and vicinity; the kind who are willing to do things and back their ability with several weeks of effort.

Look over the list. You will not find a single person entered who does not possess the necessary stick-to-itiveness to carry them through life and the contest now in operation.

$4,000.00 in prizes given away by The Plainfield Daily Press to candidates for calling on their friends during their spare time in the interests of The Plainfield Daily Press. The Plainfield Daily Press wants all those who would devote a few hours of spare time evenings to send their names to the contest department and have the details explained. It is going to be very easy to win, or rather it will not require to many subscribers to be counted the winner on July 19, provided they are turned in on or before June 18, "Booster period."

Many hold back, feeling that it will require great numbers of subscriptions to win the grand prize. Here they over-estimate. It is just as easy to win the grand prize automobile as it would be to win a trip to Europe, a diamond ring or any other prize provided it was the highest prize in the district.

MR. VOSSLER DOES NOT FAVOR SENDING PUPILS TO THIS CITY

Through a reportorial error it was stated in Monday's issue of this paper that Supervising Principal Arthur B. Vossler, of the North Plainfield Schools, was in favor of transferring the North Plainfield High School pupils to the Plainfield High School next fall.

Mr. Vossler is directly opposed to the idea, believing that it will be a matter of economy to the borough citizens to maintain the present high school system.

LARGE CLASS TO GET SHEEPSKINS

Commencement Exercises at the First Baptist Church June 19.

NINETY-FIVE SENIORS

A class of ninety-five pupils, the largest ever graduated from the Plainfield High School, will receive diplomas from that institution on Thursday evening, June 19, when the annual commencement exercises will be held in the First Baptist church. The fact that the senior class of this year is an unusually large one in numbers means that the local High School will lose many of its pupils, as few members of the class will return next year for post-graduate courses. During the four years that this particular body of pupils has been in the Plainfield High School, since the fall of 1909, the class has accomplished well in every department of the school work, covering scholarship, dramatics and interscholastic endeavor and many of the best athletes and dramatic performers in the school will leave the institution this year.

The annual awarding of prizes will take place at the commencement exercises with the exception of the Yale cup presentation, an annual affair that is held in the school auditorium the day before the term's closing. Miss Ariminta Ayers is the salutatorian of the class and Willard McKay the valedictorian. Those winning honorable mention are Miss Neva Waldorf, Miss Gwendolyn Stanton and Miss Edith Brokaw.

The class officers are Edson Woodhull, president; Fred Allen, vice president; Miss Neva Waldorf, secretar; John Heron, treasurer.

STATE OFFICERS COMING.

State officers of the Patriotic Order Sons of America will visit Washington Camp, No. 28, P. O. S. of A., tonight to consider important business.

DEPARTURE MADE AT LOCAL SHOW HOUSES

Harry Leonhardt Here to See What Plainfield Wants in the Amusement Line.

Proctor & Sanderson, proprietors of Proctor's theatre and the Plainfield theatre, who inaugurated a decided change of policy on Monday, introducing an all-star vaudeville bill at the former theatre, and motion pictures at the latter, say they desire to beg the indulgence of the patrons of these two playhouses for a few days until some of the numerous details are adjusted. With such a change it was expected that there might be a little hitch.

Harry Leonhardt, F. F. Proctor's personal representative, and one of the best known men in the vaudeville business, is directing affairs at both local theatres and he assures the patons of the best in vaudeville and motion pictures. Under his personal supervision special attention will be given to the character of entertainment to be given here and only approved vaudeville acts will be presented. The established methods at the Fifth Avenue theatre, New York, will be introduced here and a great many other changes will be made to maintain the widely-known Proctor standard of entertainment.

Mr. Leonhardt, in an interview with a reporter for the Plainfield Press last night, said that he is in Plainfield for the especial purpose of studying the wants of the amusement loving public and it is proposed to give the people what they want. He said that he recognized that conditions here are different from most cities and no expense will be spared in giving the best entertainment.

The vaudeville bill at Proctor's theatre today is an especially good one, and the management believes that it will meet with the approval of patrons. Each one of the seven acts have been selected with a view to giving the public a bill second to none.

During the forepart of the week two acts were cancelled after one performance, the management being quick to recognize that they were not suited for Plainfield people. It will be the aim to cater particularly to women and children at both theatres, giving shows that are absolutely clean in word and deed.

For the first time in several years, ideal weather conditions prevailed for the annual horse show of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, which opened at 1:15 this afternoon. Clear skies, with a delightful temperature combined to make the opening of the enth annual exhibition a real pleasure and in consequence there was a narked increase in the first day's attendance.

The various committees have been hard at work and everything about the grounds is spick and span. The usual accommodations providing for every comfort and convenience of patrons have been given careful attention.

With more than 400 entries, the program is considered one of the best ever offerd by the club. Many of the old favorites are here, together with many new ones and the competition for honors in the ring will be keen throughout the three days. The arrival here of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. McLean, of Washington, who motored from Newport, R. I., to Plainfield, yesterday, has lent additional interest. Mr. McLean has a number of entries in the various classes and will be a strong competitor.

Shortly after reaching Plainfield yesterday afternoon, Mr. McLean purchased from Roger and Clay Bayley, of Virginia, three of the finest hunters in the country, Highball, Cocktail and Mint Julip, and they will take part in the classes for hunters and jumpers. The price paid for the three hunters was $10,000. Mr. and Mrs. McLean will attend the horse show each day.

William Ziegler, Jr., who is another prominent exhibitor, with Mrs. Ziegler, reached Plainfield this morning by motor from New York. Reginald C. Vanderbilt will be here tomorrow, as the guest of Lewis E. Waring. Mr. Waring will give a luncheon tomorrow at his West Seventh street home for Mr. and Mrs. McLean, Mr. and Mrs. Ziegler, Mr. Vanderbilt, Roger and Clay Bayley, W. E. Carter, of Philadelphia, and a few other exhibitors at the show.

Owing to the large number of entries the judging will begin promptly each day at 1:15, and exhibitors are urged to have their horses ready at least ten minutes before their classes are called. Each day of the show Charles Suhr's Imperial band will give a popular program of music at the show.

The Plainfield Riding and Driving Club is particularly anxious that the people of Plainfield shall take an interest in the show and it is hoped that there will be a larger attendance this year than formerly. The club has spared no expense in providing the best outdoor show in the country and believe that its efforts should be appreciated.

In addition to the exhibition of thoroughbred horses in the ring, the show, will, of course, prove to be more or less a gathering for prominent people from all parts of the country and with clear weather the women patrons will have an opportunity to display their fineries.

The judging began promptly at 1:15 o'clock this afternoon, the first class being two single harness horses followed by four single harness horses and combination ponies. The official time program for this afternoon and tomorrow is as follows:

Thursday—Class 16, 2 single harness horses over 15.2 hands, novice, 1:15; Class 12, 4 single harness horses not exceeding 14 hands, novice, 1:25; Class 26, 4 combination ponies, 1:35; Class 32, 12 saddle horses not exceeding 15.2 hands, 1:50; Class 8, 2 pairs harness horses over 15.2 hands, 2:10; Class 14, 6 single harness horses not exceeding 15.2 hands, novice, 2:30; Class 38, 14 saddle horses over 15.2 hands, novice, 2:35; Class 1, 2 roadsters, 3:30; Class 10, 3 pairs harness horses, women to drive, 3:10; Class 19, 2 sporting tandems, 3:25; Class 14, 16 green hunters light weight, 3:35; Class 45, 12 green hunters, middle and heavy weight, 4:00; Class 36, 10 saddle horses over 15.2 hands, women to ride, 4:20; Class 28, 4 ponies in harness, 4:40; Class 37, 7 saddle horses, 15.2 hands or under, novice, 4:50; Class 4, 2 pairs harness horses not exceeding 15 hands, 5:00, Class 66, 6 combination horses, local, 5:05; Class 48, 28 hunters or jumpers, open to all, 5:20.

CATS KILLED EGG LAYERS.

For the second time within forty-eight hours, the police received complaints from residents of Johnson avenue stating that firearms are being used to eradicate the collection of cats in that vicinity. Louis Devegio, it developed as a result of police investigations, has been the chief offender. Devegio said he did not mind being kept awake nights listening to vocal selections being rendered by the felines on his back fence, but when the cats killed his chickens as part of the performance, he got his trusty rifle from the garret and started firing. The police will take no action.

BELIEVES AMERICANS SEEK TO TRANSFORM REPUBLIC TO UNLIMITED DEMOCRACY

William Barnes, Jr., who believes that Americans are seeking to transform the republic to an unlimited democracy, is the most conspicuous figure in the extremely muddled political situation in New York State, and although great leaders in Washington are planning his political destruction and little leaders in New York are doing what they can to help in the work of annihilation, Mr. Barnes is going along, calmly attending to his business and the business of the republican State organization, of which he is chairman. It is because of the fact that he is chairman of this organization that some of those who are not on the committee want him to resign. Because of this the beginning of the trouble arose. But the decisive clash, the result of which will be of national importance will come when the warring factions come together at the State committee meeting. Mr. Barnes, however, still remains placid

WESTERN GOVERNORS ARE IN CONFERENCE

Salt Lake City, Utah, June 5.—Results of an important and far-reaching nature are expected to follow the Western governors' conference, which assembled in this city today with an attendance of the chief executives or their delegated representatives from seventeen States west of the Mississippi.

The announced purpose of the conference is to thresh out the question of State's rights, with particular reference to the alleged infringements of those rights by the Federal government in pursuit of its policy of the conservation of natural resources. The promoters of the conference believe that the policy of the Federal government in seeking absolute control of the timber, stone, water and other valuable natural products, the power sites and irrigation projects, is not for the best interests of the general public. The development of the West, they believe, depends upon placing the natural resources under control of the States themselves. Hence the call for an organization to oppose the national government's policy. A plan of action will be outlined and an appeal addressed to the people of the United States will be issued.

During the three days' sessions of the conference addresses will be presented as follows:

"Our National Policy As to the Use of the Public Range," Governor S. V. Stewart, of Montana.

"Our National Conservation Policy," Governor E. M. Ammons, of Colorado.

"Control of Our Flood Waters," Governor George H. Hodges, of Kansas.

"The Reforestation of the Interior Department," Governor Oswald, West of Oregon.

"What the Carey Act Has Done for the West," Governor Joseph M. Carey, of Wyoming.

"Federal Control of Our Mineral Resources," Governor G. W. P. Hunt, of Arizona.

"State or National Control of Our Oil and Potash Deposits," Governor Hiram W. Johnson, of California.

"How Idaho Views Federal Control of Our Unappropriated Forest Areas," Governor John M. Haines, of Idaho.

"What Minnesota Is Doing With Her Logged-Off Lands," Governor Adolph O. Eberhart, of Minnesota.

"What Improved Methods of Dry Farming Have Done for Nebraska," Governor John N. Morehead, of Nebraska.

"What the Reclamation Service Has Done for Nevada," Governor T. L. Oddie, of Nevada.

"Control of Interstate Waters," Governor William C. McDonald, of New Mexico.

"Timber Culture and the Prairie States," Governor L. B. Hanna, of North Dakota.

"Our National Policy as to the Indian Tribes," Governor Lee Cruce, of Oklahoma.

"The Control of Our Fuel Supply," Governor F. H. Byrne, of South Dakota.

"True Conservation and How to Accomplish It," Governor William Spry, of Utah.

PEER OF COLLEGE TRAINERS IS DEAD

"Mike" Murphy, Greatest of Conditioners, Passes Away After Long Illness.

Michael C. Murphy, known the world over as "Mike," the famous trainer of University of Pennsylvania athletes died at his home in New York yesterday afternoon after a lingering illness. Murphy had been ailing for more than a year and on many occasions it was thought that he had but a few hours to live. The exact cause of the famous trainer's death was not given out but it is generally believed that he died of consumption.

The death of Murphy takes away from the college athletic world its most famous conditioner and coach. He had for years been known as the dean of conditioners and as a trainer of college teams was in a class by himself.

He was born in Southboro, Mass., in February, 1860. He early took up athletics and at one time was famous as a six-day runner. He gradually learned many training wrinkles and finally decided to take up the conditioning of athletes. In 1887 he first attracted attention through the success he gained in coaching New England athletes. He was secured by Yale and remained with that university for many years. In 1896, when his fame had become countrywide, he went to the University of Pennsylvania. Four years later he again took charge of the Yale teams, but on account of the climate of New Haven finally returned to Pennsylvania, and had been there ever since.

During Murphy's sojourn at Yale and Pennsylvania both of these institutions reached a high mark in the college athletic game.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Thomas Francis will conduct his regular Bible class tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 and in the evening at 7:45 o'clock at the German Reformed church. In the afternoon the subject will be "The International Sunday-school Lesson."

Children's Day exercises will be held at Warren chapel Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, it being combined with the regular morning preaching service.

SCARLET FEVER CASES.

Edward Smith, aged twelve years, son of Mrs. Amelia V. Smith, of 114 West Second street, was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital this morning, suffering with scarlet fever. His brother, Charles Smith, aged fifteen years, who was taken ill with the same disease a week ago, is also in the hospital. His condition is considered favorable thus far. The Italian boy from McCrea place, who has been ill at the hospital with scarlet fever, is now convalescing.

Jennings, of Germantown, Pa.; September 14, Rev. Dr. J. G. Merrill, of Lake Helen, Fla.

REGRET JUDGE'S DEMISE.

A committee composed of Union County Prosecutor Stein, County Collector Leavitt and William D. Wolfskeil have been appointed by Judge James C. Connolly, president of the Union County Bar Association, to draft resolutions of regret on the death of Edward S. Atwater, former Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, who was buried this afternoon in Evergreen cemetery, Elizabeth.

GEORGE M. CONWAY.

The second stroke of paralysis suffered within a year is thought to have been responsible for the death of George M. Conway, for many years a resident of Piscataway township, who was found dead in bed yesterday morning at his home in New Brunswick. He is survived by four children. They are Mrs. Grace Hansman, John Conway, Martin Conway and Mrs. Ada Mecker.

PERSONAL.

Patrolman and Mrs. Ferdinand W. Baeder, of South Second street, are parents of a boy born to them on Monday. The little fellow has been named Ferdinand W. Baeder, Jr.

F. L. C. Martin, of Park avenue, who has been detained at his home by a serious illness, is still in a critical condition.

Rev. John G. Currier, formerly curate of Grace church, but now of Philadelphia, visited friends here yesterday.

MORRIS ABRAMS WINS.

Morris Abrams, the West Front street shoe merchant and realty owner of this city, has been successful in having the assessment of $7,575 on his property at 324 Burnet street, New Brunswick, reduced. He appealed to the State Board of Equalization of Taxes through his attorney, Walter D. Van Sickle, that the levied assessment be reduced to $5,000. The board placed the final assessment at $5,500, within $500 of the amount favored by Mr. Abrams.

MARRIED MAN ELOPED.

The police of this city have been asked to look out for Frank Erwin and Mrs. Elsie Warndorfer, who, it is alleged, eloped Saturday from their home in Milltown. The couple were last seen in Perth Amboy, where it is said they went by automobile. If caught, Erwin will be charged with abandonment by his wife. The woman with whom he is said to have eloped is a widow.

ILLINOIS SUFFRAGE PARTY ATTACKS MARRIAGE LAWS.

"Sanctity" and the Church Ceremony Are Denounced Bitterly.

The prevailing marriage laws, the so called sanctity of marriage and the church marriage ceremony have fallen under the condemnation of the women's suffrage party of Cook county, Ill., in which Chicago is situated. At a recent meeting of a revolutionary nature the women declared the "sanctity of marriage" as a term to be meaningless and drew up a positive declaration of their principles wherein is the following sentence:

"The time has come when the laws governing marriage no longer should rest on sanctity alone."

An open letter was sent to the legislature in directing comment upon the sanctity of marriage it states:

"Under the regime of sanctity 90 per cent of the race has become weaklings. Under sanctity white slavery has grown to gigantic proportions."

"Easy divorce" was the slogan of the women. Here is an argument for "collusion and fraud:"

"Men and women try to secure divorces for causes which they cannot talk about and for which the law does not grant divorce. Without collusion [illegible] these women cannot secure the release they crave and deserve."

W. C. T. U. MEETS IN OCTOBER

Plans have been announced for the ninth triennial convention of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance union, which will be held in Brooklyn Oct. 23 to 28. More than 2,000 white ribboners will gather from all parts of the world. The convention will have 400 delegates, of whom about half will represent the United States, and the others will represent practically every other civilized country. England will send 150 women, led by Lady Aurea Howard, daughter of the Countess of Carlisle, the world's president of the organization.

The convention session and a great Sunday mass meeting will be held at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn. Historic Plymouth church and other meeting places will also be used. This will be the fourth world's convention of the W. C. T. U. in this country. The first was held in Boston in 1891 and the second in Chicago in 1893. London had it next in 1895, then Toronto in 1897, Edinburgh in 1900 and Geneva in 1903. It came back to Boston again in 1906, went to Glasgow in 1910, and Brooklyn was selected for 1913.

'RED-CROSS' BALL PLAYERS ARE SORE

Plainfield is devoid of real, live professional talent in the practice of medicine and dentistry today and will be until after Saturday afternoon, June 14, when the Dentists and Doctors play baseball on Parker Field for the benefit of the hospital. Many of the doctors have abandoned their automobiles today, claiming that it is impossible to drive a car through the streets while suffering from the affliction common to all ball players as a "Charlie-Horse" and stiff arms and stiff legs do not respond to the nerves that control them. For some time past the "pill dispensers" and the "tooth pullers" have been trying out rusty wings in back yards and ball fields far remote from civilization. All of the participants-to-be claim that they will positively not appear in public before the big storm blows over, so the fans will have to continue as before until the clouds break.

So great is the rivalry prevalent on all sides that doctors are unknown quantities in the eyes of the pincher weilders while the first-aid-to-the-injured specialists wouldn't know a dentist if they saw one coming down Park avenue with a searchlight and sign tacked on behind. It is said that the balls used in the big affair will all bear the well-known Red Cross seal, and each pellet will be thoroughly sterilized after each inning because of the fact that several of the big guns on each firing line are proficient in the use of the "Spitter." Several years ago when the Ministers and Doctors clashed, the latter turned out in spotless white garb but all of those togs have been used for other purposes since that time and it remains to be seen what costumes will be brought into the duel.

SCHOOLBOY MEET ON PARKER FIELD TRACK

Stillman Athletes Will Conduct Annual Affair Tomorrow Afternoon.

In accordance with a custom established by the class of 1909 the Stillman Grammar School will hold its fifth annual athletic meet on Parker Field tomorrow afternoon, one of the largest and most evenly matched fields of contestants ever entered for the affair having signified their intention of taking part in the field and track meet. An innovation in the work was inaugurated this year when a special field and track competition was provided for the girls of the school and this department to evoke a large amount of interest in itself as the feminine athletes in the grammar school are capable of some good performances and their work will be closely watched. Following the regular custom, the athletes will be divided into three classes in the boys' department and two classes in the girls'. Great preparations have been under way for the event for some weeks and it goes without saying that everything will go off without a hitch when the starter's pistol announces the start of the first event tomorrow afternoon The field will be devoted to feminine competition from 2 until 2:30 o'clock and during that time six events, divided into two classes, a senior and junior divisions. The events scheduled for the girls include a 100-yard dash, 50-yard dash, running high jump, standing broad jump, potato race and hoop race.

The boys will take the field at 3 o'clock to contest a field of eight separate events including 100 and 50 yard dashes, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, running broad jump, running high jump, shot-put and standing broad jump. The boys will be classified as follows: First class, under 95 pounds; second class, from 95 to 110 pounds; and third class, over 110 pounds. Suitable prizes will be awarded the winners in each event.

LEHIGH VALLEY TESTING FLASHLIGHTS FOR SIGNALS

The Lehigh Valley Railroad is testing acetylene gas flashlights in connection with its automatic block signals, as well as in its audible and visible highway grade crossing signals. The tests are now being conducted near South Plainfield.

The object of using flashlights in place of the steady burning lights is to make the signals distinctive, so that there may be no more possibility of confusing them with other lights. The acetylene flashlight apparatus is of the same character as that used by the government in its isolated lighthouses.

JUNIOR TOURNAMENT TO BE PLAYED HERE

Youthful Putters Will Appear at P. C. C. in Championship Events.

The second tournament for boys under the auspices of the Metropolitan Golf Association will be held at the Plainfield Country Club on Tuesday, June 24, and Wednesday, June 25. It is open to boys who are nineteen years of age and under, who have playing privileges at their home clubs. There will be an 18 hole qualifying round on the morning of the first day, players qualifying in eights. The first match play round will be played in the afternoon; and the second and final rounds will be played on the second day. There will also be a handicap, a driving competition, and an approaching and putting competition. There will be thirteen prizes in all, including qualifying round, championship and four other eights, handicap, and side events.

The club is particularly desirous of encouraging parents to permit the younger boys to come to Plainfield and play in this tournament; that is, boys from about thirteen years of age and upward. It thinks parents will feel that they can rely on the club to furnish a proper environment for the younger boys and to take good care of them in homes, in view of the successful character of the first junior championship held at the club a year ago.

Accordingly, the club members wish to entertain the visiting boys at their home on Tuesday night, June 24. This will enable boys to spend the night in Plainfield after the first day's play, so as to be ready to start early on the Wednesday morning events. The afternoon events on Wednesday should be finished so that they will be able to reach their homes by late afternoon or early evening.

PORTER CENTENARY.

Veterans of the Civil War will recall the fact that Sunday will be the centennial anniversary of the birth of Admiral David D. Porter, one of the most famous naval officers who ever fought under the United States flag. Admiral Porter, next to Admiral Farragut, attained a higher rank in the navy than any other officer before, served his country for sixty-two years, entering upon a sailor's career while yet almost a child. It is an interesting fact that Admirals Farragut and Porter were reared together as young men, Porter's father being old Commodore Porter, who made Farragut his adopted son.

When the civil war came it found Porter, the future admiral, with the rank of lieutenant in command of the steamer Powhatan, but behind him a long and elaborate training for the work he was called upon to perform. He was immediately promoted to the rank of commander, and when the great project of an expedition against New Orleans was under consideration by the government, he was called to Washington and asked for his opinion of the plan. Porter approved heartily of the enterprise, and suggested that a mortar fleet accompany the regular ships of war which were to be under the command of Captain Farragut.

With this mortar fleet, of which he received the personal command, Porter in the spring of 1862 made his memorable attack on Forts Jackson and St. Philip, the river defences of New Orleans. For six days and nights he bombarded the forts, discharging at them no fewer than 16,800 shells, which was followed by the famous river fight and running of the forts by Farragut.

The next conspicuous service of Commodore Porter was in the operations upon the Mississippi between New Orleans and Vicksburg, his bombardment of the Vicksburg batteries enabling Farragut to pass them. In September of that year he received the command of the Mississippi squadron and on the night of April 16, 1863, he ran the Vicksburg batteries with his fleet in co-operation with a plan of Gen. Grant's for the reduction of that stronghold, and although every one of his ships was struck by shots from the forts, not one of them was put out of action. For the part that he afterward took in the capture of Vicksburg he was thanked by Congress and promoted to the rank of rear admiral. His last great exploit was the capture of Fort Fisher late in 1864. Admiral Porter passed the last years of his life in Washington, where his death occurred February 13, 1891.

As a nucleus for the fund being raised to defray the expense of conducting a luncheon counter at the Bryant and Lincoln Schools, the Daily Press received $5.00 yesterday, the contribution having been made by Miss Addie Parker Jackson. Five hundred dollars will be needed, the Mothers' Association states, in order to purchase the necessary utensils and to pay the wages of the cook and other attendants. This paper has been asked by the association to receive contributions. Any donations will be promptly acknowledged.

Our civic bodies should arrange to assist in the entertainment of delegates to conventions held in the community. Tomorrow and on Saturday, the Grand Council of the United Commercial Travelers of New Jersey and Delaware will be in session here. We have not the slightest doubt that the local council of the order will give them a royal welcome and will do everything possible to make their visit enjoyable, but would it not be the proper thing for our civic organization to show their appreciation of their meeting here?

Plainfield can now boast of two women's political organizations, the one fighting for equal suffrage and the other, organized but yesterday, battling against the ballot for the gentler sex. But, we don't suppose there will be any hair-pulling though they may "make the fur fly."

Right or wrong, one cannot help but admire the loyalty and support Mayor Gaynor gives his appointee, Police Commissioner Waldo. The fussy old man shows a whole lot of courage when facing a fire of adverse criticism.

In this issue will be found a list of those already entered in our big automobile subscription contest. Consider for a moment how flattering the offer is and send in your name as a candidate. Now is the time to enter.

The officers of the newly-reorganized Board of Trade are to be congratulated on the success of its "round-up" meeting. The attendance and the enthusiasm were revelations. There is no lethargy in this organization.

Oh, by the by, it is "King Horse" today.

CHURCH WORKERS IN NOVEL PRODUCTION

Seventh-Day Baptists Repeated Performance of the "Kitchen Band."

Members of the Seventh-Day Baptist church repeated their performance of the "Kitchen Band" which was presented so successfully last week, in the church parlors last night, and those who did not have an opportunity of witnessing the original production now [illegible] this week. The attendance [illegible] made it both interesting and novel and those who saw it on either occasion pronounced it one of the best entertainments ever presented in that church and there have been a number of good plays and entertainments given in the past. A musical program was presented, each of the musical instruments being patterned after some common kitchen utensil and each played real music.

One of the novelties was a hand organ operated by Mrs. T. F. Champlain and when the instrument was uncovered it appeared as a bread mixer, much to the amusement of all present. The hand organ operator passed in and about the audience with a tin cup and collected contributions. While the "Kazoo Band" played an important part during the evening a number of choice vocal selections and recitations were given by members of the church. The program included: Prelude, by the band; duet, Mrs. Charles Dunham, cornet, and Mrs. Frank Langworthy, bagpipe; selections by the whole band; 'cello solo by Mrs. Hubbard; selection by the band; recitations, "Three Trees," by Mrs. Henry M. Maxson accompanied by Mrs. Titsworth, French horn, and Mrs. Nathan Lewis on the piano; quartet, Mrs. Davis, cornet; Miss Hubbard, carpet beater; Mrs. Hubbard, 'cello, Miss Randolph, triangle; solo, by Mrs. Champlain's hand organ and monkey; song, "America," by the audience; selection by the band; solo, Miss Helen Rogers, trombone; grand finale by the band. The last selection was the "Glowworm," which proved to be the feature of the program, each of the participants flashing a miniature searchlight after the room had been darkened and singing at the same time.

Those who took part were: Mrs. Titsworth, leader; Mrs. Nathan Lewis, piano; Miss Hubbard, Triangle; Mrs. Charles Dunham, cornet; Mrs. Roland Davis, clarinet; Miss Helen Rogers, trombone; Mrs. J. B. Cotthell, harp; Miss Grace Stillman, flute; Miss M. Green, carpet beater; Miss Dorothy Hubbard, Miss Nancy Randolph, Miss Isabelle Randolph, Miss Green, Miss H. Kinney, Miss Celia Cotthell, Mrs. Theodore Champlain, Mrs. Henry M. Maxson and Mrs. Otis Whitford.

BORO ASSOCIATION HAS LARGE ROSTER

Seventy Names Enrolled on Parent-Teacher Charter of Society Just Organized.

Forty-seven new names were added to the list of charter members of the North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association at the second meeting of the organization held in the Somerset Street School yesterday afternoon and the new department of the borough schools' work was established on a firm working basis. When the charter was closed yesterday, seventy names were included in the list of members. Arthur B. Vossler, supervising principal of the North Plainfield Schools, inaugurated the work of the new association by outlining the different phases of the questions now pertinent to the operation of the borough schools, and the moves that have recently been agitated in North Plainfield and have called forth considerable comment on every hand. Mr. Vossler's talk inspired the mothers and teachers present with new ideas that will be worked out by the association in the future.

Mrs. Mathew Ewart, second vice president of the organization, presided at the meeting, and she was authorized to appoint a committee of three to represent the Parent-Teacher Association at the next meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education for the purpose of advocating a safe and sane Fourth of July in the borough this year. The idea was brought before the association and it met with ready response on every side, the vote being unanimous in its favor.

The new body has been organized with a view to advancing harmony of purpose between the Board of Education, and the tax-payers, teachers, parents and children of the borough. The meetings will be held bi-monthly from September to June, on each Thursday before the last Monday of a month, and an annual session will be held in April of each year. Committees covering the following branches of work will be selected. Reception, auditing, sanitation, membership, visitation, question box and entertainment. All meetings of the organization have been suspended until the latter part of September.

OMISSION FROM LAWS MAY HINDER CONVICT ROAD WORK

Trenton, June 5.—Another hitch has arisen in the plans for the employment of prison labor in the construction and repair of public roads. The prison inspectors discovered yesterday that in some unknown way there was omitted from the bills passed last winter the provision designed to relieve the principal keeper from immediate responsibility for the safe-keeping of convicts sent to work upon the roads.

When this omission was brought to the attention of the inspectors, several of their number at once went to the State House for a conference with State Road Commissioner Stevens and Commissioner Byers, of the Department of Charities and Corrections. All of the conferees seemed positive that the provision referred to had been included in one of the three prison labor bills introduced in the House, yet it did not appear in the printed laws. How it came to be expurgated is a mystery.

The plan of relieving the head keeper from responsibility for prisoners taken from the institution was designed to meet the objections urged by the prison authorities when the proposition of employing convict labor on the roads was under consideration last fall. Headkeeper Madden was informed by the attorney general that he was liable for the safe-keeping of prisoners at all times.

Mr. Madden said yesterday that he had no desire to interfere with carrying out the plans for putting men at work on the roads, but at the same time did not wish to assume the liability for preventing escapes over which he had no control.

FIRST HEARING IN MOVE AGAINST GRADE CROSSINGS

Trenton, June 5.—With the city of Perth Amboy as the petitioner the first formal hearing for the removal of grade crossings under the Fielder law of last winter, was given by the Board of Public Utility Commission yesterday. The city seeks the removal of five grade crossings by the Central and Lehigh Valley Railroads.

The occasion of the hearing brought about a demonstration on the part of residents of Perth Amboy. Fourteen automobiles, each flying city pennants, brought a delegation to Trenton to attend the hearing. In the delegation were Mayor Garretson, City Attorney C. G. Homman, City Surveyor S. J. Mason, member of the Board of Aldermen, the Board of Water Commissioners, the Board of Trade and the Citizens' Improvement Association. ALLOWS REVIEW OF FREE TRANSPORTATION ORDER

Trenton, June 5.—The Supreme Court yesterday allowed the writ of certiorari applied for by the Public Service Railway Company to review the order of the Board of Public Utility Commissioners requiring the company to afford free transportation to policemen and firemen of Perth Amboy

The granting of the writ which followed an agreement between counsel for the municipality and the company, was conditioned upon the company's furnishing a bond of $1,000. This bond is to insure the reimbursement of policemen and firemen who may be compelled to pay cash fares, in the event of the order of the board being finally sustained by the court.

The trolley company objected to carrying policemen or firemen, except in uniform, while the city claims the right of these officials to ride free under ordinance granting a franchise to the company.

HOLY CROSS PEOPLE ENJOYED A DRAMA

Pinero's "In Chancery" Presented at the Parish House Before Large Crowd.

"In Chancery," a drama in three acts by Pinero, was presented last night in the Parish House of the Holy Cross Episcopal church before a large audience, under the auspices of the Young Women's Guild. Charles S. Roll, taking the part of Montague Joliffe, very ably impersonated a man who temporarily lost his mind, and incidentally forgot his name and the girl he had married.

The cast: Mr. George, a draper, John Sinclair; Mr. Buzzard, a butcher, John Hull; Patricia McCafferty, Margery Burtis; Dr. Titus, Estes Small; Captain Dianysus McCafferty, Charles Kreger; Montague Joliffe, Charles S. Roll; Mr. Hinxman, Guy Peck; Amelia Ann Buzzard, Miss Agnes Van Norden; Mrs. Smith, Miss Ann Hull; John (her servant), Attwood Giddings; Walker (her maid), Miss Bertha Kellar; Kittles, Miss Rae Pla, and Mrs. Marmaduke Jackson Mildren Sinclair. Dancing concluded the evening of entertainment.

Between the acts a committee composed of the following served refreshments: Misses Irene Samuel Helen Sutton, Clair Kenworthy, Annette Van Mater, Katherine Elliott Edith Dalley, Katherine Sill, Dorothy Langford, Edna Green. The members of the cast were coached by Samuel B. Howell and Miss Iola Moore, who are largely responsible for the excellent showing made by the embryo dramatists.

The Well Stocked Bathroom.

A bathroom well supplied with the accessories of a comfortable toilet is almost a necessity in the summer, and at the same time is a luxury. For any one who can begin, end or interrupt the day with a comfortable bath can go through the warm weather with a minimum amount of unpleasantness.

The shops nowadays are full of wonderful bathroom furnishings—white wicker and enameled chairs and stands and scales and bath-mats of wonderful hues and designs, mirrors in nickel and enameled frames, glass shelves and towel rods, nickel sponge baskets and soap dishes and tooth-brush holders, and beautiful washable wall coverings.

But the ordinary bathroom can be made into a place of luxury with the expenditure of only a little money.

To begin with, the wall can be painted with a coat of tinted washable paint, which is bought by the quart or half gallon in tin pails. After this wall covering has dried thoroughly, the woodwork can be cleaned with soap and water and oiled; or if it is in a very bad way, it can be scraped and painted and enameled white. This process is tedious, but it is worth doing well. Every bit of old paint should be removed with some paint and varnish removal and three coats of white paint should be applied, each dried thoroughly, and then a coat of enamel should be evenly put on.

Rugs.

There are many attractive bathroom rugs which are sold for a small price, but a rag rug is quite as attractive and serviceable as any of the rugs that can be bought. It can be dyed in a single flat tone after it is woven, or else it can be of the hit-or-miss type.

If the bathroom woodwork is finished in white, and the wall is tinted green, the rug can be dyed a dull sage green by first dipping it in blue and then in yellow dye. An old chair can be enameled white, and the clothes hamper, if it stands in the bathroom, can be enameled to match the woodwork—and a dainty, refreshing room, at the price of a few cans of paint and a couple of packages of dye, plus the charge for the weaving of the rugs, is the result.

Fixtures.

A good plan for fitting the bathroom with towel bars and tumbler holders and other accessories is to buy them slowly in good quality. That is to say, this month buy a glass shelf with nickel supports, and use little screw hooks neatly fastened in a row to hold the tooth brushes until you can afford to buy a really good toothbrush holder, instead of buying a cheap shelf and a cheap holder, both of which would wear out before they had paid for themselves.

The bathroom that is to give comfort all through the summer should be well stocked with toilet supplies. A bag or box of sea salt, a bottle of alcohol, peroxide to apply to stings and bruises, witch hazel for tired eyes and sunburned skin, cold cream for sunburn, a small box of baking soda for burns and stings, and a shaker box of borax, which is found useful in a dozen ways—for cleaning brushes and combs, for shampooing the hair, for making antiseptic mouth and skin washes—should all be part of the well but economically stocked bath room.

Free College Course For Girls.

A movement which seems to be strong in the right direction is that of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs, which is endeavoring to secure State scholarships for girls in Domestic Science and Arts at Rutgers College similar to those already provided for the boys. $1.00 subscriptions for the erection of a woman's building is being agitated by Mrs. William Shippen Douglas, of Jersey City, chairman of the Committee on State Colleges.

New York.

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the Executive Board of the Mothers' Assembly of the State of New York was held at Syracuse April 16 and 17.

Plans were made for a Mothers' meeting at the New York State Fair, to be held in Syracuse in September.

The board recommends active work on the part of affiliated clubs in the following activities:

Open-air schools for delicate children.

The flushing of all school rooms with fresh air three times each school day.

Sufficient adjustable seats in each school room.

Assembly halls for all schools, and the use of the schools as social centres.

Efficient medical inspection.

Adequate playgrounds.

School matrons in High Schools.

Parents' meetings, where qualified persons shall tell the parents how to teach sex hygiene to their children.

Oradell.

From Bergen county comes an interesting report of the Home and School Association of Oradell. Although less than a year old they have accomplished two pieces of work of the utmost value to their community, and have also aroused public interest at their evening meetings, in their teachers, in Industrial Education, Libraries, Playgrounds, and Vocational Guidance. They formed a Library Association—having no library facilities in the town,—asked Miss Askew, of the State Library, to come and inspire them, and then went to work. They have now subscriptions amounting to more than $150, and donations of several hundred books, and the Library was opened on April 1st. They also took up seriously the question of Manual Training, and learning that the appropriation for the purpose was to be voted down at the school meeting, rallied their forces attended the session and turned the tide, so that the vote was in its favor The officers of this association are: President, F. H. Conklin; secretary Mrs. J. A. Wells.

Garwood.

The Garwood Home and School Association has been of such benefit to the school and to the town that when their new school building is ready for use in September, 1913, they will be given a room in it for the sole use of the association. They have placed a supply of medicines, etc., in the school, have helped to improve the school grounds, and some unsightly vacant lots near by, and raised forty dollars by an entertainment for which only fifteen cents admission was charged. The enthusiasm and keen personal interest of every member of such an organization as this produce often more lasting results than are obtained by large city clubs where each member can lay the burden of responsibility on some one else.

P. R. R. CHANGES AT METUCHEN

Metuchen, June 5.—Pennsylvania Railroad Company engineers are now surveying a right of way for the proposed change in its system here. The new survey would mean the removal of the passenger station nearly a quarter of a mile to the north of the present station. The new line leaves the present right of way east of Menlo Park and runs through the north edge of the borough near the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad tracks, passing through the house of Mark O. Prentiss, crossing the Lehigh Valley near the Public Servivce Electric plant at Perth Junction and then running across country over the Raritan River below New Brunswick near Westone Mills and joining the present right of way between Deane Station and Monmouth Junction. Local realty owners are disturbed because the railroad people in the last six months has made as many different surveys and all kinds of rumors are afloat. It is said to be the plan of the company to run a six-track line through here as soon as the Rahway elevation work is completed.

FASHION HINT

Unquestionably the two piece skirt is a pronounced favorite. The newest ones are gathered across the back in place of being dart fitted, and often the seams are left open for a few inches from the lower edge to provide freedom.

The model illustrated is of this order, and the back may be dart fitted if the gathers are not liked. Linen, crash,

ONE DIES WHEN SPIRIT OF FATHER CALLS IN DREAM

New Brunswick, June 5.—The death of Max Freedman, whose funeral was held from his late home in Highland Park, is believed to have been the fulfilment of the same dream he and his brother, Joseph H. Freedman, had, in which the spirit of their dead father summoned them to the grave.

Joseph Freedman had the dream first, about two weeks ago. He says he dreamed the spirit stood beside his bed and begged him to join it in death, but Freedman declared he could not leave his family. Then, in the dream, Freeman says, the spirit left, saying it would not be alone, but would have some one accompany it.

A few nights later Max Freedman said he dreamed the same dream, the spirit summoning him, as it did his brother. The dream was followed two days later by Freedman's fatal illness from kidney disease.

TRIAL BY JURY A PRIVILEGE.

Trenton, June 5.—Asserting that the right of trial by an impartial jury is a personal privilege which may be waived by the accused, the Supreme Court has affirmed the conviction of Frank Stevens in the Hudson Sessions. Stevens was indicted for atrocious assault and battery, and, waiving trial by jury, he was convicted and sentenced by the court. Counsel for Stevens contended that the defendant had no right to waive his constitutional privilege, and therefore the court was without jurisdiction. The Supreme Court said that, having waived the privilege in writing and the State having assented and the trial having proceeded without other irregularities, there were no grounds for reversal.

CONTENDS HE WAS LOWEST.

Trenton, June 5.—Suit has been brought in the Supreme Court by Conrad Sebolt to set aside contracts awarded by the Common Council of New Brunswick for paving four streets. Sebolt claims to have been the lowest bidder, and alleges several irregularities in connection with the award of the contract. Sebolt declares that the bid of Thomas H. Riddle, who was given the contract, was not in accordance with the specifications as promulgated by the Council.

NEW RULE IN MILLVILLE.

Millville, June 5.—Millville passed under government by a commission Tuesday pursuant to the provisions of the Walsh act. Mayor W. Fred Ware administered the oath of office to former Postmaster Harry J. Gieg, former Mayor Thomas Whitaker, Street Supervisor Walter S. Kates and Roland B. Corson and was then sworn in as commissioner by City Recorder L. H. Hogate.

—The people who never get to the top may console themselves with the belief that there are no fire-escapes there, anyhow.

Some Cookery Suggestions

DELICIOUS NEW PEAS.

SPRING peas, though they are grown only in warmer latitudes, may now be had in the markets. These vegetables form a welcome addition to the meal, and, though they are a little indigestible, if the hull is chewed before they are swallowed they are nutritious.

When fresh the pods of peas are green and crisp.

A Savory Combination.

Peas With Onions.—Take a little butter and flour and make a sauce in a saucepan. Cook until it bubbles. Add three cupfuls of green peas, a little parsley and half a dozen small white pickled onions that have been browned in the butter before the flour is added. Let them boil with half a pint of water, then cover and simmer half an hour. Remove the parsely and add an eggyolk beaten with half a teaspoonful of sugar and a scant tablespoonful of butter. Toss the saucepan until all the ingredients are blended thoroughly and then turn into a vegetable dish.

An Omelet.

Peas With Eggs.—Take four eggs, one teaspoonful of salt, a sprinkle of pepper, one teaspoonful of flour, two tablespoonfuls of butter, four tablespoonfuls of cream, one-half teaspoonful of sugar, one-half pint of green peas. Whip the eggs very light and season with salt and pepper. Melt butter in omelet pan. Cook the peas, if canned, six minutes in cream; add sugar and flour. Make an omelet of eggs. Cook until a delicate brown on the bottom and set in a hot oven to cook top. The cooking of the omelet takes but three minutes.

A Seasonable Salad.

Green Pea Salad.—Take three or four hard boiled eggs, cut them lengthwise and remove the yolks. Crumble the yolks into rather large pieces, season with salt and pepper and toss them lightly about in melted butter. Mix with a cup of well seasoned cold peas. Sprinkle a little salt and white pepper on the whites, put a spoonful of the peas in each and cover with mayonnaise. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Margy Wiped the Super Dishes.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Twins Looked, but Did Not Act, Alike.

"THERE," said daddy as he put the last words into his letter; "now I'm ready to talk to you children."

"But we don't want to talk," Jack and Evelyn answered. "It's a story we want."

"Marie and Margery were two nice little girls," daddy began. "They looked exactly alike. But when you got to know those two little girls you soon found out there was quite a difference between them.

"On a summer Margery and Marie were asked to go to spend the summer in the country with friends of the family who lived on a farm.

"It was a lovely afternoon when they started. Mother kissed them goodby and was very particular to tell them they must be very good and polite and never make trouble for any one.

"When the train reached their station a big good natured boy was waiting to meet them with a pony cart.

"'Jump right in,' he said, 'and we'll be home in jig time.' Margery smiled at the boy but Marie frowned.

"'I'm hungry,' Marie said. 'I don't think I can wait any longer. Can't we have somthing to eat?'

"Margy blushed for her sister. The boy looked embarrassed. 'I'm awfully sorry,' he apologized, 'but there isn't any place around here where I could get you anything to eat.'

"When they were driving home Marie complained about the mosquitoes.

"'I don't think I'm going to like the country at all,' she said.

"'Why, I think it's lovely!' Margery exclaimed.

"Way in the woods an owl hooted, and Marie screamed so loudly when she heard that the boy had trouble to keep the horse from running away.

"When they reached the house a lovely big dog came out to met them. Margery patted him on the head, but Marie hit him and said, 'Go way, you horrid dog!'

"When supper was served Marie was not suited with the food, while Margery liked everything.

"Then they were told to go out and sit on the porch while the dishes were being washed. Marie went out, but Margery stayed behind and helped the little Bird girls, who dried the dishes for their mother. Then Marie whined because she was lonesome by herself.

"As they were crawling into bed the twins heard Mrs. Bird say to her husband, 'The two little girls look exactly alike; but, oh, my, I never saw such a difference in children in my life!'

"Now, what could she have meant, I wonder? Can you guess?"

Y. M. A. A. VS. KLINKERS.

Manager William Conger, of the Y. M. A. A. baseball team, has scheduled the Somerville Klinkers to appear on the Centre street diamond Saturday afternoon. When these two teams met on a previous occasion this season the Somervillians were victorious and the local nine is anxious to even matters up.

QUERIES, COMMENT AND ANSWERS

Sporting Editor:

Query—When a double-header is played in the big leagues which game counts as the regularly scheduled one?—S. C.

Answer—The first game of a double-header counts as the regular contest. The second goes as a postponed battle.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is the original Buffalo Bill still alive?

Answer—Colonel William F. Cody, who is the original Buffalo Bill, is still very much alive.

Sporting Editor:

Query—A says that Park avenue was originally called Cherry street, B says that it has been Park avenue since the city charter was obtained. Who is correct.—D. S. A.

Answer—Park avenue was formerly Cherry street. This was approximately twenty years ago and the city has had a charter for forty-five.

Sporting Editor:

Query—I am contemplating a bicycle trip to the Delaware Water Gap and would like to know the approximate distance over land.—N. C. M.

Answer—It is approximately sixty miles.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Will you kindly publish the dates of the North Plainfield and Plainfield High School commencements this year and where each will be held?—H. A. H.

Answer—The North Plainfield class will be graduated in the theatre Friday evening, June 13; and the Plainfield High School class in the First Baptist church, Thursday evening, June 19.

Sporting Editor:

Query—You say in Tuesday's issue of your paper that Russell Lawrence Beatty is a hammerthrower as well as a shot-putter. Does he hold any records in the hammer throw? I thought he specialized in the shot-put.—G. H. A.

Answer—"Rus" recently took up the art of hammer throwing and has never appeared in real outside competition in this event. He is an adept at the stunt, however, and will probably be heard from next season.

"MAC" SAYS

Scholastic Baseball.

By defeating Leal's on Crescent Oval yesterday afternoon the North Plainfield High School ball tossers came up to a par with the local school boys in the race for the Collier cup. What will perhaps be the deciding game of the league will be played on Parker Field next Saturday afternoon. Yesterday's contest was an eccentric one from every point of view, the boroughites doing their share of the error garnering, although they had little trouble in trouncing the shattered private school combination.

Two players that have probably done the bulk of the work for their respective teams on the baseball diamond this year, and yet whose services have been least visible to the spectator on the base lines, are Ralph Smalley and William Peacock, the High School catchers. A backstop's work is without doubt the most laborious of any player on the field and he has to be "in the game" every instant of play. A pitcher's record is evidenced in black and white by his strikeouts and hit column, while a fielder's is generally the subject of comment during the contest while a catcher is contented to plug along, taking part in game after game, with apparently nothing to show for it as far as actual statistics are concerned.

In Smalley, N. P. H. S. has one of the steadiest school boy catchers in this vicinity, and many of the boroughites' victories have been indirectly due to his ability to handle the pitchers. While he does not shine to any extent at the bat his all around work equals that of the average school boy performer and that is sufficient in these days of enlightened baseball.

Bill Peacock, a catcher, fielder and consistent sticker, is without a doubt the most valuable man on the P. H. S. aggregation. As an all around performer his prowess is well known, and he has established a record for hitting that has been the direct cause of many of the local High School combination's victories.

Plainfield High School appears to be losing its claim to recognition in the 1913 race for the State championship and her last hope was apparently relinquished last week when a game with Rahway High School was cancelled by the Plainfielders. Rahway trounced the St. Benedict's "Prep" School team yesterday, thereby annexing what looks to be the real title. Breaks of luck have favored the P. H. S. nine on a number of different occasions this season and the recent lay-off may have some effect on the team in the second clash for the Collier cup with N. P. H. S.

In Memoriam.

"Mike" Murphy, the greatest of all college trainers and conditioners, passed away at his home in New York city yesterday afternoon after suffering for the past year and one-half with an incurable case of tuberculosis. In Murphy's death the college world loses a friend and helper whose efforts have brought the standard of college athletics up to what they now are. Closely affiliated with the University of Pennsylvania for years, Murphy was well known and liked by every student and graduate of the institution, and it has not been a month since the Alumni presented the veteran trainer with an automobile as a token of their esteem for him as a university asset.

Wenz Ready to Step In.

Upon the graduation of John Paul Jones, the wonderful Cornell captain and runner, a Jerseyite stands ready to step into his shoes. Ezra Wenz, the Roselle High School athlete who has appeared in this city a number of times and is well known locally, will enter Cornell in the fall, and as he is at present the peer of school boy runners it is safe to say that his efforts will help Cornell to hold up the record established by the versatile Jones.

Some Came Back.

"Katz" Miller and Louis Slocum are the latest local ball players to jump contracts in the minors and return to their home town. Miller arrived here Monday and Louis pulled into town late yesterday afternoon. Both claim they were treated unfairly by the league managers and are glad to get back to the "City by the Hills."

DRISCOLL TO ENTER STRONG LEAGUE NINE

Now that the New Brunswick and Bound Brook baseball teams have entered the Central New Jersey League, the organization's followers are beginning to speculate as to the relative strength of these two aggregations when compared with the other four contestants in the league. Dave Driscoll, the well known manager of the New Brunswick herd, has started off by signing up a pair of Elizabeth stars who will greatly strengthen his aggregation for the league contests. Eddie Burke and Fred Erxleben are the new acquisitions and will begin work Saturday afternoon when New Brunswick plays at High Bridge. The boss of the "College Towners" has seen both Elizabethians perform and has expressed the opinion that both will pull off some big stunts in the Saturday league.

Manager Charlie Newhouse, of the Bound Brooks, also has a stellar aggregation on tap and the team will include Meehan, Shaw, Dunn, Mahoney, N. Harney, Hagedon, P. Harney, Higgins, Heaney, Wall, Bollinger, Reynolds, Clark and Donovan. High Bridge has secured Jennings, the Rutgers College twirler, to twirl for that team, and it now looks as though Frederickson, who has not been going in the best of form this season, would be benched temporarily. Bob Bogardus has signed Clough, of Cranford, who will strengthen his outfield.

RAHWAY LOOKS LIKE CHAMPION

By virtue of the defeat over the St. Benedict "Prep" School nine yesterday afternoon, when they rang up a tally card of 4 to 2, the Rahway High School players further strengthened their claim to the State High School championship and now are conceded to be the one best chance for the coveted honor.

MILBURN IS BADLY HURT

MR. DEVEREUX MILBURN.

Another accident occurred to Devereux Milburn, the crack American polo back, in a practice game. It was his second accident of the preliminary season, and the concussion and contusions he sustained as the result of the fall of his pony may keep him out of the coming International Cup matches with the Britishers.

DOES THE CAMERA SHOW THAT THIS IS A CASE OF PROBABLE GUESSWORK

Here is a photograph of a play that shows how hard the umpire's lot happens to be at times. The camera was operated in a game between the Yankees and the Red Sox at New York, just as "Steve" Yerkes made a slide to the third bag. The picture shows Ezra Mokiff putting the ball on the runner, with "Jake" Stahl, the Red Sox leader, giving the sign to his man that all is well. The point worthy of special observance in the illustration is this:—How did "Billy" Evans, the umpire who decided that Yerkes was safe, manage to make his eyes see through the clouds of dust that befogged the base and which were too thick even for the camera to penetrate.

PADDED ROSTERS FOR CITY LEAGUE TEAMS

Many New Players Added at a Busy Session of the Organization's Magnates.

Another busy session of the City Baseball League was held in the rooms of the West End Athletic Association last night, managers and captains of the various aggregations attending the affair. Treasurer McClinton issued his financial report and it was most encouraging to the league governing board, the receipts being sufficient at the present time to warrant an entire season of successful work. The following umpire assignments were made for next Saturday's games: Spicer vs. Royal Giants, Corriel and Lawson; Wes End vs. Saurer, Lane and Swan.

Monroe Good and Matthew Coughlin, of the Plainfield High School baseball team, were added to the West End A. C. roster and will no doubt greatly strengthen that combination. Good was captain of the school boy team during the past season and can catch and play first base. Coughlin is one of the most consistent and effective school boy twirlers in this section of the State and has established an enviable record on local and out of town diamonds this season. His brother catches for the West End nine and the Coughlin family will probably form the battery for that aggregation. Jack Denny, the other West End pitcher, is another Plainfield High School product, having twirled great ball for the P. H. S. nine last season.

Pete Simmons asked for the enrollment of McCline and Jackson, two dusky ball artists from Westfield, and his wish was granted. Saurer also added a pair to its roster. A move was made to make all teams appear on the field of play in regulation uniforms and from now on each of the teams in the league will be clothed uniformly. West Ends withdrew George Conover's name from the roster, allowing him to play with the Spicer nine.

JONES DISCARDS SPIKED SHOES.

John Paul Jones, Cornell's great runner and holder of the world's amateur record for the mile run, will never run again, he announced yesterday. He has run during his undergraduate days for the glory of his university and will never enter the game professionally. He will enter business as soon as he has received his diploma this month as Bachelor of Mechanical Engineering. There has been much talk of a race between Jones and Kiviat, but according to Jones, that will never take place. The loss of Jones to the Cornell track team will be severely felt next year.

BASEBALL COMEDY WON BY N. P. H. S.

Long, Drawn Out Battle Won by the Canadians in the Early Stages.

A comedy of errors intermingled by a sprinkling of hits batted out by would be "Stars" entertained a small but enthusiastic crowd of baseballically inclined fans on what is left of Plainfield's one time greatest National pastime rendezvous, Crescent Oval, yesterday afternoon, when North Plainfield High School pounded out its second victory of the season in the Interscholastic League by trimming the shattered and torn Leal School delegation to the tune of 7 to 1. Little can be obtained by an examination of the box score as to the real thing as presented by eighteen players who had their systems clogged with eccentricness, for the exhibition itself was one of those "fast" demonstrations that take a little over two hours to reel off.

Seldom is such a variety of the great game presented to baseball followers, for everything from trying to put the blinders on an umpire by placing him in a cage behind the bat to pitching the horsehide over the grand stand was tried with eminent success. At times the private school players profited by the slip ups on the part of their opponents, and at other stages the Canadians were handed counters wrapped up in tissue paper with pink ribbons tied around them.

A box score is deceiving in some instances and it certainly does not tell the truth in this particular case, for the error column appears to be gasping for life. In fact fizzels were pulled off in a way and number that would compare favorably with the worst vaudeville stunts purposely staged by the Ministers and Doctors in their annual game here two years ago.

In one instance Pitcher Shepherd threw twenty feet over Dickerson's head trying to catch a runner at the home plate when he (Shepherd) stood within a few steps of the home station himself, and in another case George Townley ascended to heights unknown by heaving the pill ten feet over Burner's head trying to catch a runner napping on the keystone sack. North Plainfield's tallies were the result of efforts to count in four rounds, but in the other five, by some hook or crook, the boroughites were blanked. Leal's one counter was pulled across on a freak play pulled off by "Bate" Harrington much to the disgust of Captain Dickerson. In the fourth inning Harrington got a hit and stole second, later taking third on an infield error. He then started to annex a steal to the home plate and got the N. P. H. S. players so rattled while they were chasing him between third and home plate that they let him slip through their legs for a register bbt.

YEAR IN CELL FOR JOHNSON.

Jack Johnson, negro heavyweight champion, was sentenced yesterday to a year and a day in the State penitentiary at Joliet, Ill., and fined $1,000 for violation of the Mann White Slave act. Sentence was pronounced after Federal Judge Carpenter denied a motion for a new trial made by counsel to the negro. Johnson obtained two weeks in which to prepare a writ of error, and the bond for $30,000, on which he has been at liberty since his conviction was permitted to stand. Half a dozen deputy United States marshals who had grouped themselves about Johnson in preparation for resistance when the sentence was given, left the room when Judge Carpenter announced that the fighter might continue at liberty temporarily.

CLASS TEAM AT WHITFIELD.

Members of the Freshman class of the Plainfield High School have organized a baseball team which will line up against the Freshmen class of the Westfield High School at Recreation Park, Westfield, next Saturday morning. It is the second game of a three-cornered series and Plainfield won the first contest.

SECOND ATTEMPT WAS SUCCESSFUL

LOSS REACHES $10,000

Two Barns a Total Wreck—Outbuildings and Houses Scorched—First Set on Fire Tuesday Night—Live Stock Saved From Flames.

Fire, starting in three different places, did damage to the extent of $10,000 to the outbuildings and poultry farm owned by Wilfred Gennerich, on Clinton avenue, last night, despite efforts of the Plainfield fire department, which worked for two hours on the blaze. The South Plainfield volunteer department was also on the scene. The blaze was discovered by Mr. Gennerich shortly after 9 o'clock and he sent in a still alarm. Chief Doane ordered the automobile chemical apparatus out and while awaiting for it to arrive the proprietor and a number of farm hands did good work in saving the hundreds of chickens and animals in the doomed buildings and none of the live stock perished

Considerable difficulty was experienced in getting a horse out. Bucket brigades were hastily formed, hundreds of people assisting in the work but so intense was the heat that to approach the blaze near enough to apply the water was practically impossible. By the time the Plainfield apparatus had arrived the flames had spread to three of the barns and threatened several other outbuildings, which, however, were saved.

The farm is outside of the city limits and as there is no hydrant in the vicinity the water used had to be obtained by pumping. An electric engine used for this purpose was kept in action from the time the fire broke out until 4 o'clock this morning and it supplied water pressure adequate to assist in fighting the flames.

The auto fire apparatus threw streams of water on the structures which had not been reached by the flames and in this way the blaze was kept from spreading after the department arrived. A recently erected bungalow, which had been constructed on an elaborate scale, and the Gennerich homestead were saved from the flames but the paint on both buildings was blistered and the window panes cracked by the intense heat. Two barns are a total wreck as a result of the fire, and the contents which consisted of recently purchased farming implements and other accessories to the chicken business were reduced to ashes. Included in one of the barns' contents was cord wood enough to last for three winters for a family and this was dry enough to burn swiftly. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

When seen by a Plainfield Daily Press reporter this morning, Mr. Gennerich said that he believed the fire had been started by a farm hand who had recently been discharged and although he would not name any individual at the present time an investigation, he said, will probably follow in which the firebug will be brought to justice. When the fire broke out and even this morning the odor of kerosene oil was noticetble on the premises and large quantities of it had evidently been used to start the blaze. Mr. Gennerich declared that last Tuesday night fire was discovered by one of the farm employes in an outbuilding but was extinguished before any great amount of damage had been done. The incendiary evidently made sure of his second attempt, however, as he started the fire in three different places, the horse's stall, the cow shed and in the dry wood pile, which he thought would burn readily.

Besides the damage done to the buildings, a number of fruit trees, some of them not yet fruit bearing, were destroyed by the heat, the bark pealing off in chunks and in some instances the trunk of the tree was burned half way through.

ANNUAL LUNCHEON OF SEMINARY GRADS

The third annual luncheon of the Alumnae Association of the Plainfield Seminary was held at the Seminary yesterday, when about a hundred members attended the reunion. When the guests had assembled in the schoolroom, Miss Kenyon spoke a few words of welcome to her old pupils. Then the luncheon was served, during which there was music by the VanEps brothers. Towards the end of luncheon speakers were introduced by Mrs. Richard Duyckinck, who made an excellent toastmistress and everyone joined in singing the songs which had been written for the occasion by Mrs. Maxwell Perkins and Miss Edna Hopkins.

Toasts: "The Books, the Arts, the Academies" Mrs. Archibald Cox; "Thy Grandam Loves Thee," Mrs. Henry D. Hibbard; "More Busy Than the Laboring Spider," Miss Marion Brown; "Strong Reasons Make Strong Actions," Miss Mabelle Phillips; "Athletic for Girls," Miss Florence Stuart; song, "Gather Maids and Matrons Also," Mrs. Maxwell Perkins; toasts, "All places that the eye of Heaven visits are to a wise man, ports and happy havens," Miss Isabel S. Arnold; "Prove a Busy Actor In Their Play," Mrs. Eugene H. Hatch; Song to I. C. A., Drinking Song, Miss Edna Hopkins.

Miss Arnold began her speech by saying that the seminary is like the British Empire, inasmuch as the sun never sets on seminary girls. She said there were seminary girls in every State in the Union and in many countries of Europe, and she mentioned several members of the association who are living in such distant parts of the world as Japan, Syria, Persia and Africa. Miss Arnold then went on to speak of many old pupils of the seminary, who had achieved success in various directions, and described the work they were doing.

When the last toast had been drunk, "Auld Lang Syne" was sung by all, standing, and so the entertainment was brought to a close.

PROF. AXSON'S TALK

Eleven seniors of the Hartridge School received their diplomas this morning in the auditorium of that institution where appropriate and charmingly simple commencement exercises were held. The presentations were made by Miss Emelyn B. Hartridge, principal of the school, who, in a short preliminary, address, wished the recipients success in the duties of life.

The graduates were seated on the platform of the auditorium surrounded by a veritable mass of cut flowers and springtime decorations. The gifts, consisting chiefly of bouquets, were abundant and beautiful. Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, minister of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, opened the exercises by offering prayer. Preceding the presentation of displomas, Professor Stockton Axson, of Princeton a brother of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson delivered an unusually fine address, which carried with it advice and good wishes.

The graduates are the Misses Edith Beers, Kitty Bluck, Myrna Eberhart, Janet Fox, Ellen Hovey, Aline Lane, Dorothy Lyon, Anna Moore, Dorothy Parvin, Elizabeth Poucher and Anne Swann. Those entering Vassar are are Misses Swann, Moore, Lane and Eberhardt. Miss Fox goes to Barnard College.

Following the commencement ceremonies the Hartridge School Alumnae gave a tea to the new members at The Oakwood, welcoming them into their association. The senior dance will be given by Miss Hartridge to the graduates tonight in the auditorium.

Class Day exercises took place on Wednesday May 28. The tree was planted in accordance with the usual custom, the spade oration being made by Miss Anne Swann president of the Class of '13. Miss Janet Lane president of Class of '14, responded, and Miss Dorothy Lyon gave the class prophesy.

SHOW NETTED $100.

Over $100 was realized as the result of the presentation of the three-act playlet, "In Chancery," on Wednesday night at Holy Cross Episcopal church parish house. The success of the show was largely due to the efforts of Miss Mirian Carman and Mrs. Bernard Gustafson, who coached the cast.

NEIL SCOTT PROVES INNOCENCE TO JURY

Neil Scott, of 716 West Third street, who was indicted by the Atlantic County Grand Jury on a charge of grand larceny preferred by the United States Express Company, was tried yesterday before Judge Clarence L. Cole, at Mays Landing, N. J., and acquitted. Four others, who incidentally testified against the local man and were largely responsible for his predicament, were fined $100 each, on charges of conspiracy.

According to Scott, $100 was stolen from the U. S. Express Co. office in Atlantic City, while he was employed in that city as a driver, and the four men, who were clerks for the same concern, conspired against him to make it appear that he was the thief.

Through his counsel, John J. Owens, Mr. Scott produced witnesses and documentary evidence proving beyond doubt that he was innocent of the crime. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty after less than a minute's deliberation.

FAREWELL ADDRESS BY GEORGE WEBSTER

Popular North Plainfield H. S. Instructor Leaves the Borough This Month.

During the assembly exercises at the North Plainfield High School this morning, Professor George E. Webster gave his farewell address before the entire High School and the grammar grades. He emphatically expressed his regret on leaving North Plainfield and praised the athletic teams respecting their sportsmanship and their high ideals of clean athletics. He also wished all of the students great success in their after life and said that he would always consider them his friends.

Mr. Webster said in part, "The contect of life is like a baseball game in many respects. As in the national game, never be a quitter and when the odds are against you grit your teeth and work harder than ever. Many a baseball game has been won in the ninth inning and many great men have given the world their greatest works after they were fifty years old.

"You are in the game of life, play it for all you are worth and may the score be one to nothing in your favor at the end. And now before I sit down let me say that I only hope you will carry through life the same spirit of loyalty, of determination and faithful training that you have shown in N. P. H. S. Play the game, make good, scatter sunshine and hope

"I love N. P. H. S., I admire its student body, I appreciate the many courtesies, the spirit of co-operation and the sacrifice which you have always shown to the school, to the faculty and to me. Long will you live as a pleasant memory in my life and I trust that you will sometimes think of me."

After the speech, George Townley, president of the Boys' Athletic Association, presented Mr. Webster with a silver loving cup as a token of the High School's appreciation of his work along athletic lines in the past year.

Following Mr. Webster's address Principal B. J. Phelps presented the members of the basketball squad with High School insignias. He praised the team on their loyalty to their school and their great fighting spirit which was shown under such trying circumstances during the past season. Those who received the monograms were George Townley, Carroll Taylor, Ashley Burner, Duclos Van Mater, Roy Love, Hyman Abrams, Ralph Smalley, assistant manager, and Frank Dunning. After this presentation Frank Dunning, captain of the baseball team, presented Mr. Phelps with a solid gold Masonic ring on behalf of the Boys' Athletic Association for his services during the past baseball season.

GAHAGAN DOCUMENT CODICIL IS ADMITTED

Judge Connolly Files Opinion in Will Case Where Plainfielders Are Affected.

Through a decision filed yesterday by Judge Connolly in the Surrogate's office, in Elizabeth, the codicil to the will of William Gahagan, of this city, will be admitted to probate with the will. A caveat was filed against the codicil by Mrs. Melissa Homan, a daughter of the decendent, and a hearing on it was held before Judge Connolly in the Orphans' Court two weeks ago.

The caveat was filed because the codicil changed Mrs. Homan's share of the estate from a bequest in the will to a trust fund, which upon her death goes to her two children. She was assisted in the contest by Augustus Sheelen, of Fanwood, a son-in-law of the testator, who was removed as an executor by the codicil.

The estate is said to be worth about $300,000, mostly in Jersey City real estate, where the decedent was for many years in the marble business and founded the Gahagan Monument Works. He left a widow, who was a second wife, five daughters and one son.

No contest was made on the will, but strong feeling became manifest between the widow and one son-in-law, Walter J. Gorman, of Jersey City, and the other children, Mrs. Clara Hetfield, of this city; Mrs. James Wright, of Bayonne; Mrs. Sheelen, of Fanwood, and the son, Edward Gahagan, while the hearing was in progress. Undue influence on the part of the widow and Mr. Gorman was charged by the other heirs.

Third—A. W. Atkinson's "Corona."
Fourth—William Ziegler, Jr.'s "Sir Rossister."

Reports that Victor McLean, the richest baby in the world, would be at the horse show this afternoon had the effect of attracting the curious but they were disappointed for the three years old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean, of Washington, D. C., had been left at the mansion in the Capitol City, where among his playmates is a little colored boy. Edward B. McLean, who is an exhibitor at the tenth annual show of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, says that he is bound to make the wealthiest child on earth a truly democratic citizen. In the course of conversation with a reporter the elder McLean stated that he had sent to Stanton, Va., for "The Parson," a show horse he had purchased a few days ago for a mere trifle of $4,000. "The Parson" will be here tomorrow afternoon and with the big string of blue ribbon equines of the McLean stable will be shipped to Newport, R. I. On Thursday next the stable will be started for England to be entered in the Olympic show at London, according to Mr. McLean, who with his party, is staying at the Queen City Hotel.

But there was one wealthy young man at the show this afternoon, for William Ziegler, Jr., the adopted son of a multi-millionaire, was present with his wife and a large party of friends. His own string of thoroughbreds is making a strong bid in the various classes. Wealth and fashion was indeed well represented this afternoon, many notables registered in the blue books of New York, Philadelphia and other centres being in the boxes and on the grand stands

The triumph of Miss Cynthia Kearney's chestnut gelding, Dixie, over Miss H. D. Atterbury's champion Patricia, was one of the features of the opening day of the hore show, yesterday. The class for saddle horses brought out a number of fine entrants, but Dixie carried off the honors in a way that left no doubt as to the superiority of this horse which has been consistently winning blues at the various shows. Miss Kearney rode her entry in a faultless manner.

Edward B. McLean, one of the new exhibitors, captured a blue with his entry, Pall Mall, in Class 14, for novice harness horses, and in Class 8, for pairs of harness horses. William Ziegler, Jr.'s, pair, The Pilot and Sir Rossiter, was awarded the blue easily, as Emil Seelig's entries, Golden Rod and St. Clair, got the gate. It was said that they displayed a lameness.

George G. Rohlig won a notable victory in Class 38 for novice saddle horses, his entry, Poetry, taking the blue handily, while his famous chestnut gelding, Avoca, captured the blue in Class 66 for combination harness and saddle horses, to the great satisfaction of its owner.

The Broadlawn Farms' entries also met with considerable success, taking a blue with Sultana in Class 36 and another blue with Sequel in Class 28. Its mate, Sequence, came near winning the second prize. Both of these entrants had strong opposition, but the awards seemed to be popular ones.

The classes for green hunters, light, middle and heavy weights, furnished many thrills for the crowd. Many of the horses were truely green and several times accidents were threatened. One jockey, a colored fellow, went off his mount after taking the brush jump, but fortunately he was not injured. Other entrants had to be coaxed considerable before they would go over the jumps.

H. L. Haughton's Strongheart, won the blue in Class 44 against a large field, while Blenheim Farms' Elkridge took first honors in Class 45. Edward McLean's Highball, Cocktail and Mint Julip, recently acquired, failed to land a prize, although they performed well.

C. W. McCutchen's Willie Direct, entered in the light harness class, gave W. M. V. Hoffman's Teneriffe a hard rub for first honors, but the Hoffman entry finally got the blue.

William Ziegler, Jr., another new exhibitor, was at the show and closely watched the judging. He has a number of entries and it is predicted that he will give his competitors a stiff fight in some of the remaining classes to be judged.

All in all the first day's program was an excellent one, being varied enough to hold the attention of the crowd. The programs for today will be of additional interest, while tomorrow's card which includes the military mounts and the various championships is sure to bring out a record-breaking crowd. COLD IN THE HEAD.

Its Constant Recurrence May Not Only Be Serious, but Fatal.

There are all kinds of colds. Spring, summer, autumn and winter, all furnish the means for a cold. In medical literature there is no such disease described as a "cold," yet almost everybody is more or less susceptible to this condition.

The writer used to suffer with "cold" in the head, throat, windpipe, bronchial tubes, stomach and bowels. That was before he learned that an abundance of fresh air—day and night air—was absolutely necessary to build up a high state of physical vigor and vitality to avoid "taking cold."

The most common form of this complaint is a cold in the head. In this condition there is an inflammation of the mucous membranes which line the nasal chamber. This is naturally self limiting. Nature allows the disease to run its course when recovery spontaneously takes place. This condition may be very mild, yet the constant "taking cold" may result in great damage and lead to fatal diseases.

The nasal cavities have direct connection with the eyes, ears, throat, lungs, stomach and bowels. When frequent colds, inflammation or congestion occurs in these vital parts and the "germs" or "filth" which is the direct cause of the trouble overcomes the "singer" in the blood and membranes the "germ" or "filth" is carried to one or all of the organs or parts of the body and may result in some disease that terminates fatally.—Professor George A. Keene in Health.

ADD STRINGS TO YOUR BOW.

And Keep on Broadening Your Sphere of Usefulness.

Ages ago some one found music in the twang of a bowstring, then another some one put two strings on a bow, and thus was made the first harp. String after string was added until the harp was too heavy to hold. Then they put it in a box and struck the strings with hammers worked by keys. They called that a harpsichord. It was the first piano. The finest and most costly pianola of today is just an evolution, just an improvement on the arrow shooting bow.

From the history of the piano comes the old, old saying, "He is adding strings to his bow." It means that one is evolving, improving something. It expresses caution, persistency, energy, enterprise.

Add strings to your bow—one at a time. Bring a new note into each week of work. Learn a little something new and use it. Thus you will increase the harmony and effectiveness of your work.

Anything that has evolved as the bow has can never stop improving. So with your work. The more simple the start the greater the possibilities of growth. Know your work from the very first string. Know that there is no limit to its possibilities.

Keep adding strings to your bow, harp, piano!—Joel Blank in Philadelphia Ledger.

Short Lived Giants.

Giants are notably short lived, and instances where men much above seven feet in height have reached the age of fifty years are almost unknown. Length of days does not go with excessive length of limb. But tallness which stops short of giantism usually is a sign of vitality. Tall recruits in continental armies, provided they are of proper weight, give least trouble from sickness and gain most from physical training. It must be remembered in this connection that "tallness" is not the same everywhere. Men accounted tall in southern Italy would be rather short in western Scotland or among the native stock of America. It is as if nature had fixed a standard height for each race and punished by some physical shortcoming those who varied much from that standard in either direction.—Chicago Journal.

Earthworms For Rheumatism.

Your paragraph, writes a correspondent, giving as a cure for bronchitis a bag of earthworms on the chest, reminds me of a prescription I heard of thirty years ago, given also "in all seriousness," in Nottingham market place, as a remedy for rheumatism. In this case, too, the earthworms formed one of the constituents, but it was necessary to put them into a bottle and pour upon them a quantity of powdered quicklime. The resultant compound, well rubbed into the affected parts, was guaranteed by the prescriber to be a certain cure for rheumatism.—London Chronicle.

"And what reply do you make to him?"

New York, June 6.—Six thousand ardent devotees of the game of tennis filled the temporary amphi-theatre built about the courts of the West Side Tennis Club this afternoon to witness the beginning of the blue-ribbon event of the year—the preliminary trial matches for the Dwight F. Davis International Challenge Cup. The matches will continue over Saturday and Monday.

The contesting teams represent Australia and the United States. The winning team will be called upon to play the winner of the Franco-German tie and the winner of the second matches will in turn enter the final round and be opposed by either Canada, South Africa, or Belgium. The team that scores the victory in the final trial matches will have the honor of meeting the English team in the contests for the cup. England is now in possession of the coveted trophy by reason of her victory in Australia last year.

In the history of the cup contests, extending over a period of twelve years, the trophy never has been held outside of England, Australia and the United States. This fact adds to the importance of the trials between the United States and Australia, since it is generally assumed that either the one or the other of the two countries will meet the English team in the cup contests next fall.

The Australian and American teams are considered exceptionally well matched. The members of the Australian team are S. N. Doust, Horace Rice and A. B. Jones. All are seasoned match players, and therefore will not be troubled by nervousness or anxiety. Doust, who is the captain of the team, is rated as the best racquet wielder in Australia and is a veteran of many championship competitions. Rice is a left-handed player and also a veteran at the game. He is a better singles player than doubles. Backhand drives are his specialty, and it is said he is capable of passing any volleyer with these strokes either side. Jones, the third member of the team, is said to be the best all-around player ever produced in Australia. His style is very similar to that of H. L. Doherty.

The Americans selected to play the Australians are Maurice E. McLoughlin, of California; R. Norris Williams, of Philadelphia, and Harold H. Hackett and Raymond D. Little, of New York. The team is considered exceptionally strong and well balanced. McLoughlin stands as No 1 on the ranking list and holds the national championship in both singles and doubles, as well as other important titles. Williams, who is a student at Harvard, was the sensation of the past season, ranking No. 2 to McLoughlin. His chief victory was the winning of the national clay court championship at Pittsburgh. Hackett, the third member of the team, has a record as a doubles player that has never been duplicated on the American courts. He has held the national title and at times all of the important ones. Little, the fourth member of the American team, is one of the veterans of the game. He has figured in other international cup matches, and was also rated in the doubles with Hackett, with whom he has been playing steadily this season.

TELEPHONE RATES REDUCTION PLANNED

New Schedule Effective July 1 Applies to Out of Town Calls.

A very general revision of telephone toll rates is provided in the new schedule of rates just filed by the New York Telephone Company with the Board of Public Utility Commissioners. The new rates become effective July 1, 1913. H. G. Kerr, division commercial manager of the New York Telephone Company, when interviewed regarding the new rates made the following statement:

"The new schedule effective July 1 provides consistent and uniform distances. In general, the rates are based on the air line distance between toll points and this method of computation has been followed with the exception of a few instances where some great natural barriers intervene, such as great bodies of water or continuous mountains, which it might be necessary to build our lines around rather than across.

"Based upon the present volume of traffic, the new rates applying over the entire territory of the company in New Jersey and New York will result in a saving to telephone toll users of more than $650,000 per year. I am not prepared at the present time to state what the new rates will be from all points, but this information will be made public through the press shortly and the subscribers' July 1 bills will carry an announcement showing the new rates to the more important toll points.

"Coincident with the introduction of the new schedule of rates a new system of charging for overtime on toll connections will be introduced. The charges for a toll call are based upon a five-minute communication and heretofore it has been customary to charge fractions of five minutes overtime as an additional call. For instance, seven minutes would be charged as two calls, twelve minutes as three calls, etc. Under the new system, the overtime will be charged for on the basis of the actual time of connection and rates for fractional portions of time beyond the first five minutes have been adjusted in the new schedules.

"With the improvements that have been made in telephone plant and operating methods, a toll call or a 'suburban call,' as it is known here, is handled practically by the same method and almost as quickly as a local call. Good telephone service adds much to the attractiveness of life in the suburbs and the telephone, as well as the rapid transportation systems, has had much to do with the extension of the suburban commuting area around New York during the past ten years. Large sums of money have been expended on our toll line during the past year, and we are prepared to handle any amount of traffic to any point."

SOME ITEMS OF INTEREST TO SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS

There will be an adjourned meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist church Sunday night at 8 o'clock to hear the report of the special committee appointed to consider ways and means for the building and proposed addition to the church kitchen and primary rooms.

The members will go to the New Market church Tuesday evening when an illustrated lecture on "The Panama Canal" will be given. A silver offering will be received and strawberries and ice cream will be served.

The Woman's Society for Christian Work will hold its last meeting of the season on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, 661 West Seventh street, Wednesday, June 11. As last year, luncheon will be served and the women of the church have been invited to attend, bringing one article for the luncheon and contributing ten cents. Men will also be welcome. The society will hold its business meeting at 3 o'clock, instead of 4 o'clock, the usual hour.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society will hold no regular meetings until after the summer vacation. The business meeting of the Senior Christian Endeavor Society will be held Wednesday night at 8 o'clock at which time officers will be elected. An informal social will follow.

The Board of Directors of the American Sabbath Tract Society will meet in regular session Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. It is expected that there will be baptism at the church within a few weeks and the pastor invites anyone who is considering the question to confer with him in reference to the matter.

Benovelent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight, when the degree team from Franklin Council, No. 41, will perform the initiatory work. The team has an extensive reputation, having received numerous invitations from outside councils.

A DOLLAR OR SO.

When one realizes what a laudable work is being done by the Charity Organization Society, it will be seen that the appeal for financial assistance is plainly warranted. This association, which is conducted most economically and has for its object the relief of those in "sickness, sorrow and distress," asks your financial co-operation, and this paper takes great pleasure in endorsing so worthy a cause. It should be understood that the summer campaign work is of vital importance and to this we refer.

Just by way of illustration, we Just by wal of illustration, we call to your attention to what was done to doctors and clinics, 34; tuberculosis cases cared for, 51; boarded with private families, 14; given two weeks' outings, 51; day trips to Boynton Beach, 141. These undertakings represented an outlay of $916.83. To meet this expense, voluntary subscriptions amounting to $784.36 were received. This meant a deficit of $132.47.

Now comes anothe rsummer when there is imperative need to carry on the same line of campaign and therefore we desire to call your attention to what a small contribution would mean. A contribution of $1.00 would provide ice for ten families; $2.00 would provide a day's outing for a poor tired mother and her children; $3.00 would allow a week's stay in the country for a child predisposed to tuberculosis, and $5.00 would defray the expense of giving an overworked girl a week's vacation.

If this sort of charity appeals to you, send your check to the treasurer of the Charity Organization, J. Albert Lane, Babcock building, or to any of the other officers who are Dr. Henry M. Maxson, president; Mrs. Charles E. Ryder and William S. Tyler, vice presidents, and Dr. William H. Murray, secretary.

THE HORSE SHOW.

To use the vernacular of the famous P. T. B., the "greatest show on earth" in its line is to be seen at the association's picturesque park, the tenth annual exhibition of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club now being held having been declared by competent judges to be by all odds the finest outdoor show ever held in this country. To say that there are over four hundred entries means but little, great as the number is, but the fact that the horses entered are the most celebrated in this country is significant.

Naturally there was a large crowd present yesterday afternoon when the judging was begun and there is a still larger assemblage this afternoon. Tomorrow, however, will be the big day, for then the principal events will take place. This means that society from New York, Philadelphia and other centres will be well represented and the fetching gowns will be an attraction in themselves. Whether you are interested in horses or not, go to the show tomorrow for there will be a sight worth seeing.

It has turned out just as all expected who know Woodrow Wilson's reputation for sounding a warning against evildoers in politics and being able to prove his charges. Senators Williams, Reed, Overman, Walsh and many others have given testimony substantiating the President's claim that "an insidious lobby" is active in Washington to defeat the tariff bill. In sounding the alarm the Chief Magistrate has opened the way for the enactment of rules to rid the Congress of this baneful influence which was considered nothing unusual when the Federal lawmaking body was the House of Millionaries making laws for the benefit of the interests but which with the awakened and aroused progressiviem will not be tolerated by a true Democracy.

Just at this time, senior statistics are issued at the many universities and colleges. They contain almost every fact and fancy pertaining to the hopling who is about to receive his sheepskin and go out and evolutionize the world. Of course, there is always some who say they will "take up journalism" for taey consider that there is urgent need for them in that line. After a few years plugging away they will prefer to be known as newspaper "workers," for they will realize that journalists are born, not made, and that there are mighty few of them in the world.

The contributing editor for tomorrow's issue will be George E. Webster, A. M., Ph.D., instructor in manual training in the North Plainfield High School. Dr. Webster has recently accepted an invitation to become vice principal of the Rye, N. Y. High School. He will devote the editorial column to the discussion of a problem now agitating the borough taxpayers.

Ambassador Chinda may be a wily little statesman but he is up against a hard proposition when he tackles "The Schoolmaster."

MISS BERTHA VOGT NOW MRS. FAIRCHILD

The Ceremony Takes Place at Home of Bride's Sister, Mrs. I. L. McVoy.

Miss Bertha Vogt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Vogt, Sr., of Los Angeles, Cal., and Henry H. Fairchild, of Riverdale, N. J., were quietly married at 8 o'clock last night at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. I. L. McVoy on East Front street. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a traveling gown of gray material, with hat to match and she carried white roses. Miss Dorothy Case, a niece of the bride, was the bridesmaid. She wore a gown of yellow messaline and carried pink roses. The best man was Edward Scherer, of Berne, Switzerland. After the ceremony congratulations were offered and supper was served. The home was attractively decorated with roses and honeysuckle. The bride received a large number of gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Fairchild will leave next week for Switzerland, where they will visit the native home of the bride for the summer. Upon their return in the fall they will live on a fruit ranch near Los Angeles, near the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Fairchild is a retired manufacturer.

PURE FOOD CONSUMERS ENJOY A DUTCH SUPPER

The regular seance of the "Pure Food Consuming Society," consisting of graduates, teachers and students of the Brown School of Delineation and Dress Making, was held at the home of Miss Ella Adams last night, baseball bicycle and foot races and other sports were features prior to a farewell reception to a quantity of baked-beans, potato salad, pickles, frankfurters, rolls, coffee, cocoa, lemonade, cake and ice cream.

Following the business session, piano selections by Miss Katherine Kelly, popular songs by Miss Emma Lane and duets by the Misses Laurie were enjoyed.

REPORTS HABITS OF HEAD HUNTERS

Philippine Official Writes Hideous Facts.

METHODS OF THE IFUGAOS.

Six Out of Seven Tribes Practice Decapitation of Enemies—Use Heads as Ornaments In Houses—Families Lose Respect For Victims—Weird Burial Rites Are Observed.

Writing in the Geographic Magazine, Dean C. Worcester, formerly of the University of Michigan, now secretary of the interior of the Philippine Islands, gives some interesting particulars concerning the head hunters of the island of Luzon. Six of the seven of the tribes found in the northern part of the island have been addicted to head hunting. Take the Ifugaos, for example.

"When I first entered their territory in 1903," writes Mr. Worcester, "many of their houses were ornamented with fresh human skulls, and I saw various victims of head hunting raids.

"When an Ifugao war party returns with a head it executes a ceremonial march, or dance—one hardly knows which to call it—which defies successful description. The men have their split rattan raincoats on their backs. On the insides of these raincoats are pockets, which form convenient receptacles for gory trophies. The warriors carry beautifully fashioned and deadly steel headed lances and serviceable, plain board shields, strengthened by rattan lashings to prevent splitting. Zigzag white marks are painted on the shields, indicating a ceremonial occasion.

Creeping on Victim.

"The warriors do not approach standing, but creep along the ground and in this position execute a sort of lockstep, beating upon their shields with billets of wood and bending in perfect unison far to the right and then far to the left. Some of the men make threatening motions with their lances. It is impossible for me to describe the weird effect produced, but I hope yet to be able to use a moving picture camera on a file of men engaging in this strange ceremonial, which they will doubtless soon forget, as head hunting has now practically ceased among them.

"When the dancing ground is reached the head is impaled upon a short stake and the warriors circle around it in the characteristic war dance of this tribe. Some of them take off their ornaments and hang them on the head, at the same time jeering at it as if it were capable of hearing and understanding them. Dancing and feasting may last for days.

Skulls as Ornaments.

"Ultimately the skull, which has not been mutilated in any way, is boiled and thoroughly cleaned. The lower jaw is fastened in place with rattan and the trophy is taken home by the man who won it. It serves him as a household ornament. It may be placed with other skulls on a board shelf beside the door of his house; it may find a resting place within, over the fireplace; it may be placed outside at one corner, with the skulls of carabaos and pigs which have been eaten at feasts.

"I have seen a house with a tasteful ornament frieze of alternating carabao skulls and human skulls extending around it at the height of the door. I have seen others with great open work baskets of skulls under the eaves.

No Reverence For Victim.

"A man who loses his head is considered to have treated his family and friends somewhat shabbily. He is not buried as an ordinary person would be, but is carried to a resting place on some hillside far from his native village. A tunnel is excavated in the earth, his body is carried into it and placed in a sitting position, and the tunnel is then filled. A lance is thrust into the ground over the grave to show that he was killed in war, and an anito image rudely fashioned out of grass may be left to watch over his last resting place."

SIMPLIFIED SPELLING TAUT.

Filadelfia Publik Skuls Wil Adopt Sistm.

Simplified spelling will be taught in the public schools of Philadelphia. Superintendent of Schools Brumbaugh says that the system will be gradually introduced to avoid confusion.

"Simplified spelling to be taut in our skuls" is the slogan which will be carried by the various members of the board of education. Brumbaugh is confident that the spelling of today will be shaken from young pupils' heads. "If we spell as we pronounce," he said, "it will mean less affectation."

Chinese Have New Alphabet.

Chinese soldiers have formulated a new alphabet, after a study of all the alphabets of the world, which will supersede, it is said, the cumbersome ideograms which were the pride of the ancient Chinese as well as the puzzle of the modern world. Five vowels have been taken from the Latin, four from the Greek, four from the Russian, one from the Chinese and two are elongated signs, and seven are reversed ideograms. Fourteen consonants are Latin, three Russian and two Greek.

SUMMER RECESS FOR COMMERCE CHAMBER

Busy Meeting as a Final Windup Held Last Night —New Member Elected.

Announcement of the adjournment of all formal meetings of the Chamber of Commerce until fall was announced at last night's meeting of the chamber and the committee activities will continue as heretofore, each body meeting from time to time to submit reports. The advertising committee reported that placards bearing the slogan "The City by the Hills," had been placed in the local trolley cars and further advertising was planned at the final meeting when a committee was authorized to have cuts made of the drawing "Where Essentials Meet" and anyone desiring to use the cut on stationery or in pamphlets of any kind will be supplied with one free of charge.

The committee investigating the garbage and ashes disposal system submitted a very encouraging report and presented data that has been collected from a number of cities of this size throughout the country. A committee consisting of Harry McMenimen, chairman; J. J. Varley and Stanley E. Gunnison, Jr., was selected to keep alive the interest in the coordinating idea during the summer recess. Fred Lounsbury, Jr., was elected to membership at last night's meeting.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. M. J. R. VAN NUIS

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary J. Randolph Van Nuis, who died Tuesday following a stroke of paralysis, were held this afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George T. Harris, on Clinton avenue, where she had made her home for over ten years. Rev. Frederick J. Hubach, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, officiated. Interment was made in the Willow Grove cemetery, New Brunswick.

The pallbearers were her two sons, Frank and Charles Van Nuis; two grandchildren, William and Alfred Van Nuis; George T. Harris her son-in-law, and Samuel Dayton, a nephew. Beside those mentioned, two daughters survive. They are Mrs. Christiana Evans and Miss Laura Van Nuis, both of this city. Mrs. Van Nuis was born in this city eighty-four years ago and lived here until 1854 when, following her marriage, she lived in New Brunswick for many years.

THE TRIAL OF MARY IS ON AT PROCTOR'S

Written by a former New York reporter who received the incentive to write the play while covering the cases in Magistrate "Barney" Dan Finn's Court, in New York, "The Trial of Mary," the headliner at Proctor's theatre this week, teaches a great moral lesson. John J. Caullett son of former Riparian Commissioner Henry T. Caullett, is the author. In the play Mr. Caullett has pictured one of many similar happenings and misfortunes of life that were revealed in Judge Finn's court. Intermingled with the sadness of the pitiful court scene, when "Mary Goodwin" is brought before the magistrate charged by the "Rev. James Parker" with the theft of a diamond ring, are the real Irish wit of the judge and the fickleness of manner of the minister.

It is plainly seen that the weeping defendant, Mary Goodwin, will receive the sympathy of the court and when she completes her tearful testimony telling how she stole the minister's ring and sold it that her mother's life might be saved by an operation, which the money thus unhonestly secured would pay for. Needless to say, Judge Howatt renders his decision according to the dictates of his conscience rather than those of the statute books, announcing his verdict with these words "Go Mary, and sin no more."

HERE'S WHERE TO GET AMERICAN FLAGS FREE

Judging from the number of answers received in the misspelled word competition it has met with popular favor.

Among the words marked as misspelled were "column," "entrants" and "stick-to-itiveness." The last of these words was printed in quotation marks which signified that it was an original word of some significance not found in a dictionary. It was correctly spelled, however.

On page five in the contest advertisement today will appear several misspelled words. The Plainfield Daily Press will again give five American flags to the first five persons sending in the most misspelled words appearing in contest "ad."

Sharpen your wits. Get in the game. All answers must be mailed to The American Flag Editor.

IMPROVEMENTS FOR UNION COUNTY JAIL

Elizabeth, June 6.—The Union Council Board of Freeholders at its meeting yesterday, adopted a resolution regarding the conditions of the county jail, and the jail committee will endeavovr to remedy matters. It was also recommended that the jail force be increased from two to three and to inaugurate an eight-hour working day. James Johnson, formerly a keeper, was made a deputy warden at an increase in salary from $75 to $85 a month.

Upon the recommendation of Sheriff Wright the prisoners will be permitted to smoke in the corridors. There was a consideration of sewage conditions at Bonnie Burn and they will receive attention. The $125,000 appropriation for new buildings there was approved and Benjamin King was made county auditor at a salary of $1,500.

The board decided to take out a blanket policy covering all county employes on account of the provisions of the Employers' Liability Act. The collector was authorized to borrow $200,000 in anticipation of taxes. It was further decided to pay the salaries of the small board members when properly presented.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the board to purchase lands between Summit and Martine avenues, Fanwood, for the purpose of straightening South avenue.

Benajmin King, of Clark township, a former director of the board, was elected auditor and bookkeeper until January 1, 1914, at a salary of $1,500 a year. The election of Mr. King means a new order of things in the work of the board. He will be required to be in the office of the board every day during the usual hours of the county offices and his duties will be much greater than heretofore. Until today Mr. King was auditor of the board at a salary of $1,000 a year.

Besides transacting usual routine business, the board yesterday voted an additional bond issue of $125,000 for extensions and improvements at the Bonnie Burn Tuberculosis Sanitarium. This makes a total of $335,000 that has been appropriated for the new county institution, the original cost of which was estimated at less than half this amount. It is planned to erect new buildings and make improvements to those that have already been built.

PROFESSORS AS DUPES IN SMUGGLING OF CHINESE

Immigration Commissioner at Seattle Discovers Big Conspiracy.

Evidences of a conspiracy to smuggle Chinese laborers into this country in the guise of students under section 6 of the Chinese exclusion act have multiplied to such an extent that Immigration Commissioner De Bruler of Seattle, Wash., has sent a report to the head of the service at Washington regarding the operations of the Chinese and Americans whom he believes to be involved in the illicit traffic.

Aside from the report, it is explained that to get the Chinese across the Pacific many persons of good standing and quite innocent of the bold schemes of the directing geniuses of the conspiracy are employed. These have included university professors and attorneys of established reputations in this country and even Chinese who have been under the impression that they were helping in the laudable work of aiding educational progress in China. In his official report Mr. De Bruler says:

"Last summer an American with two Chinese students went to China and gathered together about 100 boys, for whom they secured section 6 certificates. Sixty-six of these boys were admitted at this port and forty-four at the port of San Francisco. All were destined to a private school of this city."

From sources deemed reliable it was learned, he declared, that the men were used as laborers and that each paid $1,000 or more to be brought over.

HE LIVES ON A MEAGER DIET.

Gardener Eats Only Bread, Potatoes and Porridge and Thrives.

Dr. Hindehede, the famous Dutch food scientist, who recently visited America and experimented for Horace Fletcher of thorough mastication fame, has just published some new results of his experiments. He now enjoys Danish state aid. He cites the case of Frederick Madsen, a gardener, a sound and strongly built man, but one who has never done anything to develop his strength. This gardener has for about ten years lived very plainly on rye bread, potatoes, oat and barley porridge, etc., and has never touched meat or tobacco, coffee, tea, beer or any spirits. He usually drinks water, rarely milk.

On this diet he does his gardening work, including digging and other severe work, and in spite of his extremely frugal living, unusually poor in albumen, he can get through quite as much as any meat eating man. For forty days this man lived exclusively on potatoes, and, contrary to what is generally supposed, this food proved easily and almost fully digestible, only 3 per cent remaining undigested against from 6 to 10 per cent of meat and milk—in fact, he was in every way suited by the potato fare and was quite prepared to go on living on it.

FIRM PAYS ITS MEN TO BATHE

Employees of Philadelphia Plant Rewarded at 15 Cents Per.

To promote health and comfort among their 700 employees Harrison Bros. & Co. of Philadelphia have offered to give every man employed at their plant 15 cents each time he takes a bath.

There are no strings to the offer. All that is necessary is that the bath be taken in the elaborately fitted bathrooms of the concern. As soon as a workman finishes bathing he will receive a check from an attendant, and on pay day he may have the checks cashed at the rate of 15 cents apiece.

The idea was suggested by Dr. Francis D. Patterson, former chief police surgeon of Philadelphia, whom the company has secured to look after the welfare of the men. Dr. Patterson is an old University of Pennsylvania football player and oarsman.

BELGIAN PRINCESSES LOSE.

Court Withholds $12,500,000 From Leopold's Daughters.

The court of appeals at Brussels has delivered final judgment regarding the $12,500,000 of the late King Leopold's estate claimed from the Belgian government by his daughters, the Princesses Louise and Stephanie.

The court dismissed the appeal, in spite of the advice of the public prosecutor to the contrary.

The suit was concerned with the entire Kongo property of the king. Recently the princesses rejected the proposals of the ministers of justice that they take $7,500,000 as their share. The property will now go to the state and the Niederfulbach foundation.

CANAL TO BE READY MAY, 1914

Colonel Goethals So Informs Steamship Company.

The excavation of Culebra cut, in the Panama canal, is completed, except three miles at Culebra, embracing the area of slides. A little more than 10,000,000 cubic yards of excavation remains. This work will be finished in October.

A steamship company cabled to Colonel Goethals recently asking when it could advertise for traffic through the canal and asking the probable date when the first ship would pass through. Colonel Goethals answered that the canal would be completed and ready for ships in May, 1914.

Only an Upset Market Makes Possible This Sale of 6,245 Suits for Men

We are clothing merchants of fifty-two years standing. Our business is to keep a good clothing store every day in the year.

Our patrons know that they can find here at all times the best clothing it is possible to buy at each price-grade.

But we do not keep our eyes shut to the ever-changing condition of the market. Nor are we tied fast, hand and foot, with certain clothing manufacturers whose clothing we are compelled to sell.

We are always free to do the best we can for our customers.

When, a few weeks ago, we found that some of regular manufacturers were receiving cancellations of orders due to late deliveries (because of factory difficulties and the cold, rainy Spring) we made an inspection of their stocks on hand and in process of making.

We found everywhere a feeling, that, on account of the proposed lower tariff rates on woolen fabrics, it was wise to dispose of everything they had, and face the new season without incumbrance.

We looked over 30,000 suits, selected those which were up to the Wanamaker standard—amounting to 6,245 suits—and these, the pick of the market, we are now selling at the exceptionally low prices—considering the quality—of

$23.50 $18.50 $15.50 $13.50 $11.50

"These suits are worth everything you have said about them," remarked a critical clothing man of experience, who looked over many of them yesterday. We had announced they were $15 to $45 grades, and with these values in mind he made his observations.

"They are all gentlemanly fabrics," he said; "these staple worsteds, for instance, are found in every good tailoring shop, and they are sold nowhere, made-to-measure, for less than $50."

"The beauty of that fabric," he observed, indicating another suit, "is that it will always remain the same—and the suit will remain the same because it is well made—well tailored."

a very fine fabric, made by a tailor whose models are nearest to the English of any we know—and whose wholesale cost on any suit is never less than $17.50. This particular suit would cost at least $20 wholesale. We looked at the price tag and it was marked in this sale, $18.50.

Other clothing merchants and many clothing manufacturers, some from distant cities, where they had seen the announcement in the New York papers, frankly came to see what this sale would amount to. Many of them told us it was the most remarkable selling of men's clothing they had ever known.

It all goes to show that no one knows what he can do until he tries.

Two weeks ago when we almost doubled, in amount of sales, any single day in our clothing history, we were rather proud.

Yesterday we almost doubled this former record-making day.

We are not so proud now as we were, for we see now we are only beginning to do the clothing business.

RULINGS CONCERNING AUTOS.

Trenton, June 6.—Fines aggregating $21.95 and one revocation were the penalties imposed by Commissioner Lippincott for violations of the automobile laws. The fines collected were under the provisions of the law permitting the commissioner of motor vehicles to sit as a committing magistrate. Max Bamberger, of Long Branch, for operating a car without a license and driving an unlicensed car was fined $5.65. Bamberger pleaded guilty to the charge. Another pleading guilty was Dr. Edgar J. Haines, of Medford, Burlington county. He was charged with driving two cars with one license set. The commissioner collected $5.65 for this violation. The largest penalty collected was $10.65 from William J. Hager, who pleaded guilty to driving his machine at the rate of forty miles an hour on the Middletown turnpike, Monmouth county. The license of Richard S. Conner, of Camden, was revoked. The complaint against him was made by George E. Strouse, a justice of the peace, of Hammonton. Strouse informed the commissioner that Conner was brought before him for violating the motor vehicles law and that he had imposed a fine. Conner led the justice to believe he would call later and make settlement, but had failed to do so. Although cited to appear yesterday Conner failed to put in an appearance and the commissioner revoked his license. The case will be taken up by one of the inspectors in a day or so.

QUERIES, COMMENT AND ANSWERS

Query—What are the maximum dimensions of a package through the Parcels Post?—F. H. M.

Answer—The length of the package plus the width must not exceed seventy-two inches.

Sporting Editor:

Query—A says Callahan, of Brooklyn, is the smallest player in the major leagues. B says Bush is the smallest player in fast company. Who is correct?—G. H.

Answer—You are both wrong. Boston scribes claim Maranville is the "pee-wee" of the big leagues, though I never had my tape measure handy when he was around.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Please tell me where I can obtain copies of the marriage laws of the States of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.—L. A. M.

Answer—The Secretary of State at the Capitol of any of the States you mention (look them up in the Atlas) will furnish you with the correct marriage (and divorce) laws of the commonwealth he serves. You will find an epitome of the marriage laws of every State in the Union, though, in the World almanac.

Sporting Editor:

Query—How did baseball originate?—H. M.

Answer—Archaeologists say that the mound dwellers used to play baseball, but our great national game is generally supposed to have been based on the game of rounders and originated therefrom. (It is believed that baseball was played as far back as the Garden of Eden.)

Sporting Editor:

Query—Let me know the date when General Grant's body was removed to the Grant Tomb on Riverside Drive, New York.—H. J. K.

Answer—General Grant's body was removed to the tomb on Saturday, April 17, 1897.

LOCAL GOLFERS IN TITLE TOURNAMENT

Jerome D. Travers yesterday again showed that, as a golfer, he is in a class so completely by himself as to be isolated when he won the gold medal by five strokes in the fourteenth annual New Jersey championship tournament, at the Baltusrol Club. In tallying 73 the metropolitan and national title-holder also established a new mark for the revised and extended course. Oswald Kirkby, Englewood, present title-holder, was second at 78 and Howard Griffin, Baltusrol, once star of the East Jersey League, third at 79. Incidentally it ought to be asked if the affair ought not to be a golf contest pure and simple, not a combination of golf and Marathon. The start was made just after 8 a. m., and it was just 5 p. m. when the last man was sent off It was dark when the final pair returned results. The team match, run off along with the qualifying round, proved a tie between Englewood and Morris County, at 340 strokes, and will be played off Saturday. Baltusrol was second at 346, Atlantic City third at 366, Princeton fourth at 382 and Plainfield fifth at 387. Essex County could muster but three men.

Scores made by Plainfielders representing the Plainfield Country Club are as follows: H. D. Hibbard, 100; R. S. Rowland, 93; J. Whitney Baker, 99; W. T. Glenney, 95—387. Max Marston, who won the interscholastic championship on the Plainfield Country Club's links several weeks ago, was trapped so often on his outward journey that he was 46 to the turn. By coming back in 40 he fell one stroke under the qualifying mark. In the third set L. B. McWhood beat W. T. Glenney 3 and 1; and Roy Webb beat R. S. Rowland 1 up. In the fourth set H. D. Hibbard beat Frank Enos 3 and 2. The qualifying scores of Plainfield were as follows: R. S. Rowland, 45, 48-93; W. T. Glenney, 49, 46-95; I. W. Baker, 53, 46-99; H. D. Hibbard, 48, 52-100, and T. S. Wheeler, 61, 56-117.

SLOCUM IS BACK FROM THE SOUTH

Southern Climate Does not Appeal to the Plainfield Twirler.

Plainfield's representation in the minor leagues, so creditable at the beginning of the season, is gradually decreasing and but two remain in the league ranks. The latest player to return to "The City by the Hills" is Louis Slocum, who set out originally to burn things up in the Carolina League as a member of the Winston-Salem aggregation. Although he made a good showing the eighteen innings he pitched Louis was handed his release and went to Brunswick, Georgia, where little Tommy Mullin is setting the field on fire with his stunts around the difficult corner. Tanned by the rays of the Southern sun, Slocum blew into Plainfield Wednesday afternoon after nearly two months of ball playing in a hostile country. In eighteen innings, he allowed but four hits, fanned twenty and walked three but Manager Clancy saw fit to let him go.

While in Brunswick, Georgia, he visited Tommy Mullin, who is playing as a member of that team in the Empire League, having a salary limit of $1,000 which Slocum proclaimed to be less than a good twirler could earn playing week-end semi-professional ball in the metropolitan district. He finally decided to pick up and hit the trail for Yankee Doodle land with the result that he is once more on Plainfield soil and ready for any offers that may come his direction.

New Brunswick at High Bridge.
Bound Brook at Somerville.

When Plainfield fans go to Parker Field tomorrow afternoon to witness the Central New Jersey League game between the Pets and Bob Bogardus' Dunellen clan, a number of new sights will be evidenced on every side, and it will take them some time to get used to the new surroundings, which, by the way, are the most complete on the league circuit. Plainfield's field has been improved by an army of carpenters during the past week until it now resembles a real, up-to-date league ball park with all of the side accessories.

The grandstand has been treated to a roof which will help shelter the fans from the attacks of Old Sol and Jupiter Pluvius and the seating capacity has been increased to 1,200. The rebuilding has not been confined to the grandstand, however, as Manager Ernest Dorflinger has annexed the signatures of Eddie Stallings and Joe Harter who appeared as local favorites last season. During the early part of the season it was conceded that this pair would play with Driscoll's Brunswicks and the fact seemed even more certain when Dave entered a team in the league, but Manager Dorflinger has finally induced the two stars to play the left field and center field berths for the local aggregation and they will be on deck tomorrow afternoon to help conquer Dunellen, who, by the way, is holding on to the loftiest berth. Eddie and Joe are a pair of the best hitters, fielders and base runners playing semi-pro ball and should prove a valuable asset to the Pets. The team will take the field as follows: McGee ss, Craig 3b, W. Stallings 2b, Joe Harter cf, E. Stallings lf, Nelson c, Garretson 1b, Dorman lf, Randolph p, substitute, Moran.

At High Bridge the recently entered New Brunswick team will try to score another victory at the hands of the cellar berth holders, while Bound Brook will play its opening game at Somerville.

GREATEST OF ALL "BIG NINE" MEETS

Seventeen College and Universities in the Finals Tomorrow Afternoon.

Madison, Wis., June 6.—The battle of the Western colleges for track and field honors commenced this afternoon at Camp Randall in the presence of an immense throng of spectators. No previous meeting of the "Big Nine" conference ever attracted so large and representative a list of entries as the meet this year. In the finals tomorrow seventeen colleges and universities of the Middle West and Pacific Coast States will be represented. The University of California, which won last year's meet, is preparing for an heroic attempt to pull down the premier honors again. Considerable interest centers also in the probable performances of the athletes from Colorado University, which institution is represented for the first time. In addition to the representatives of these two universities in the Far West nearly all the star performers of the University of Chicago, Ohio State University, University of Wisconsin, University of Minnesota, Purdue University, Iowa State College, Indiana University, Notre Dame University, Wabash College, Oberlin College, University of Illinois, University of Missouri, University of Kansas, Northwestern University and the State University of Iowa will figure in the different events.

STERLING TEAM CALLS OFF ITS ENGAGEMENT

Manager Joe Alberts, of the Scotch Plains baseball team, announced this morning that the Sterling team, of Jersey City, which was originally scheduled to furnish the Sunday afternoon attraction at Scotch Plains, had cancelled the engagement and he has substituted the strong Danbury Club. Eddie Kraft will be on the firing line for the home aggregation and Jack Walton, another Somervillian, will guard the keystone territory.

The Danbury Club scored a ten inning 4 to 3 victory over the Cypress Hill's combination at the latter place recently and are considered to be one of the fastest delegations in the "Met" district. A week from Sunday the third and deciding game in the New Brunswick-Scotch Plains series will be played at the latter place. To date each aggregation has won one contest and the third will no doubt be bitterly contested.

N. P. H. S. MANAGER AFTER A THIRD GAME WITH RIVAL

Manager Spencer, of the North Plainfield High School baseball team, is arranging a third game with Somerville High School for the championship of Somerset county. Both teams have won one game and this will be the play-off. The game will either be played on Parker Field or on the new Bound Brook baseball grounds and it is almost certain that the former place will be used because of the need of an absolutely neutral grounds. This will be the last and also one of the hardest games of the season for the boroughites because the teams are so evenly matched "Ernie" Stahl would in all probability do the twirling for the boroughites as he has in the last two games but owing to family bereavements he will be unable to play for the remainder of the season. Townley will probably do the pitching if Spencer pitches the game against P. H. S. This game will be played the early part of next week, probably Monday afternoon.

ANNUAL BOAT RACE TO THE BERMUDAS TOMORROW

Philadelphia Pa., June 6.—The official measurements were made today and all other preliminary arrangements completed in anticipation of the start tomorrow morning of the annual motor boat race to the Bermudas. It is expected that at least four boats will make the start. Among them will be the Dream, the winner of last year's race. The Dream is owned by Commodore Lagen, of the Philadelphia Yachtmen's Club, which is promoting the race.

The winner of the contest will be given the custody of the Bennett Challenge Cup and will also receive $1,000 in cash. The distance of the race will be 734 nautical miles, starting from the Public Pier in Philadelphia and finishing off Five Fathom Hole at St. David's Head, Bermuda. The rules of the race are the same as the former contests, with few exceptions. The boats must have a water line length of not over sixty feet and not less than thirty-nine feet. They must be properly equipped with boats, stores, water, nautical instruments, sails, and fuel sufficient to cover the distance one and a half times between Philadelphia and Bermuda. No boat will be allowed to start with less than a crew of six persons, at least one-half of whom must be amateurs.

A RIDE ON WINGS OF THE CYCLONE

How a Shoe Salesman Saw Towns Crushed.

STOOD ON A SPEEDING TRAIN

Witness on Rear Platform Traveling In Heart of Devastating Wind, Sees It Creep About Villages and Sweep Them Away—Houses Crumpled and Tossed About.

Living, breathing and traveling in the heart of one of the greatest hurricanes which ever has swept over the United States, leaving death and destruction in its wake, was the experience of W. P. Commar, a shoe salesman, who stepped off of the Burlington train after traveling for miles with a cyclone that wiped whole towns off the map.

"I never want to witness another thing in this world so fraught with horror," he said. "I boarded the train at Lincoln, Neb., and traveled in the heart of the cyclone for miles and watched its deathlike hand creep about the towns we passed and crush them in a twinkling. I helped to carry in the human beings who, bruised, crushed and hysterical, we stopped to pick up and take to Omaha for medical attention.

"I had stepped out on the back platform for a breath of air. It was about 5 o'clock, maybe a little before, and I noticed a peculiar light in the sky. If you have ever read south sea island stories you will know that an uncanny, yellow glare seems to precede a hurricane. Well, there was that light in the sky when I noticed it first. But there was something else that seemed far more terrible to me at the moment.

"I don't know that I can describe it, except to say that at first thought some one behind me had whispered. It was a whisper, but a whisper of voices we are not supposed to hear in this world. It was sibilant, strange, ethereal, and it sounded like the peculiar sucking hiss that one hears when a train rounds a curve. But there was a strange power back of it. I don't know why it affected me in the manner it did. But somehow it was a forecast—a threat of frightful things to come.

Cloud Grew Larger.

"All the time the sound grew, and I noticed that the queer cloud in the sky was growing larger. It was black and cone shaped, with the small end toward the earth. Then I knew what was going to happen. I was fascinated. A moment before there had been light, clear and white, with just a gentle wind to ruffle the few clouds in the sky. Now all was changed.

"The general whistle had grown to a roar, and strange mutterings filled the air. Then all of a sudden I saw that the high cloud was enveloping everything. For a moment my heart stopped, and my breath seemed to be drawn from me as if by a powerful bellows. My face was peppered with flying gravel. There was a terrific roar, a shuddering of the earth, and the cyclone had crossed our trail not fifty feet behind us.

"For a moment I could not catch my breath. My face was stinging with the sand and gravel that had been hurled against me. I went inside the car.

"The wind crossed the track and swept on in a northeasterly direction, as near as I could tell. By that time we were near Ralston, Neb., which is within twenty-five or thirty miles of Omaha. Far up the track I could see the lights of the town. For one moment I wanted to hide from the sight, but curiosity dominated me and I returned to the platform. There was one man there, a Mr. Coon, and we were soon joined by other passengers.

"Not a man of us said a word. Fascinated, we watched that little group of houses where human beings were waiting unknowingly for the hand of Providence to strike them. I felt like crying out a warning to them, but the vacuum following the storm, stole my breath again, and my reason finally got the better of my impulse.

One Crash For Whole Town.

"One shattering crash, a whirlpool of flying wood, shingles, and with a roar of triumph that was nothing short of demoniacal the storm swept on. We looked again. From the chaos of swirling boards and debris there emerged now and then a housetop. Whole buildings went rolling along the ground as if impelled by some force within them. Box cars on sidings, hurled through the night, split open with sickening crashes and ejected their merchandise. One of these cars, a car minus the usual trucks, was flung through the air to land in an open field. There followed a sickening sight, for with an unearthly screech the sides of the car fell apart and a number of men, railroad section hands, fell out. Some of them moved, some were whole, and some were torn to shreds.

"The engineer stopped the train, and we rushed over to the village. There was hardly a house standing in the way it was built. Everywhere, in every stage of life and death, were men, women and children. Faces into which color would never come again stared up at us. One man was rammed halfway through the side of a frame building. He was muttering when we reached him, but soon died."

LICENSE IS SET ASIDE.

Trenton, June 6.—In setting aside a liquor license granted to Charles J. Collins, at Somer's Point, the Supreme Court yesterday asserted that the public has a right to know by what rule excise matters are governed. The granting of the license was refused in certiorari proceedings brought by V. B. Scull, primarily upon the ground that the Common Council had not required the customary fifteen days' notice of the application to be given. The giving of such notice was in accordance with a policy adopted by the commission in 1911, the rule requiring it not having been revoked. In disposing of the question thus presented the court said: "Whether the resolution was binding as an act of the Legislature or not, it was a formal declaration of policy on which the public had a right to reply. It was unreasonable to adopt a different policy without notice, and grant the license at the same meeting without even waiting for the Mayor to approve the resolution, as the charter requires. The public have the right to know by what rule matters of this kind shall be governed."

FLEMINGTON CHOIRS GRADUATE

Flemington, June 6.—The graduation exercises of the children's choirs of the Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches were held in the Baptist church, Wednesday evening. Diplomas were presented to fourteen graduates. Those who graduated into the senior choirs of the different churches were: Baptist, Perry Miller, Luella Rittenhouse, Sadie Bird and Eleanor Primm; Presbyterian, Elsie Chamberlin, Fred Smith, Alice Eise, Ruth Case, Howard Godley and Olive Hortman; Methodist, Mary Bodine, Linda Post, Stanley Bodine and Marian Galvin. Robert Lunger, of Boston, was the baritone soloist. Professor Norman Landis and Miss Grace Leeds Darnell played the organ. A musical program was rendered by the combined choirs and a quartet composed of Mrs. Dorman T. Connet, Mrs. Arthur F. Foran, Miss Helen Thomas and Miss Helen Williams.

MIDDIES GIVEN DIPLOMAS.

Annapolis, Md., June 6.—Commencement week at the Naval Academy culminated today in the graduation exercises, when two-score of embryo admirals went forth into the world to serve their country on the seas. The graduates received their diplomas from Secretary Daniels. It was the first visit of the Secretary of the Navy to the Academy and he was given an enthusiastic reception.

The Care of Wicker Furniture.

Wicker furniture that is unstained, especially if it is used for porch or garden, soon looks shabby, and it should be stained or varnished or enameled as a protection against further shabbiness. It is a good plan to use the furniture for a season without staining it; the natural color of wicker and willow is pleasant. The second season it can be stained, and can be restained after that whenever it needs it—once in two years, if a flat-finish stain is used, less often if it is enameled.

Before staining or painting any wicker or willow furniture clean it thoroughly. The best way to do this is to prepare a tubful of hot suds and douse this over the chairs and other furniture in pailfuls out of doors. Then rinse the furniture with a spray from a hose or else with clear water thrown over it in pailfuls. Dry the furniture thoroughly in the sunshine before staining or painting.

Easy to Do.

It is really very easy to paint or stain willow or wicker furniture. This year, in fact, a good many women of wealth have made it a fad to finish their own veranda or summer cottage furniture. For the woman who must be economical there is solid satisfaction in knowing that in carrying out a fad of women of wealth she is also saving a good deal of money. A simple chair costs at least a dollar more stained or enameled than unstained; yet the stain for a good sized chair costs less than ten cents. Beside the paint needed there must also be a good brush; but one for twenty-five cents will paint dozens of chairs and tables and muffin stands and wood baskets and other pieces of wicker or willow, and can then be put away to use again next year.

For a Dull Finish.

A dull finish is generally preferred at the present time by interior decorators, who use willow and wicker, to a shiny finish. This dull finish can be obtained either by using a stain in a so-called flat finish, or by using a varnish stain and rubbing it in with a cloth as you put it on. To do this have a pile of little squares of old cotton cloth and after evry six or eight brush strokes lay the brush down and rub the stain as nearly dry as possible with a piece of cloth. As soon as the cloth is too sticky to use, take a fresh piece.

It is really easier to apply a dull-finish stain, even when you must use a cloth to get the desired lack of luster, than it is to apply enamel. But enameling is easy enough. The enamel should be put on rather thin, and should be put on evenly and as swiftly as possible. If a heavy, thick finish is desired, put on a second coat after the first is absolutely dry.

The brush for enameling and staining can be kept clean in turpentine, and should be put away between painting sessions in a cup of turpentine. If white or light enamel is used, and darker stain or enamel is also used, two brushes will be found a convenience.

Home Hints.

Homemade cakes will be nicer if the flour is put in last.

Whole peppers are better for seasoning soups and sauces than ground pepper.

Nuts when bought ready shelled should be scalded, dried in the oven and put away in glass jars.

Grated cheese over mashed potatoes makes a pleasant change.

Lard is much better to grease cake pans than butter. Butter will burn and cause the cakes to stick and char.

Bananas that are not quite ripe may be baked in their skins for from twenty to thirty minutes and served hot with cream.

When milk, soup or other foods boil over on the stove cover the spot quickly with salt. It will do away with any unpleasant odor.

Busy Summer For Women.

Mrs. Ida Husted Harper will travel abroad this summer, attending the many conventions in which women will take part. She is a delegate to the meeting of the executive committee of the International Council of Women at The Hague and from there will go to Amsterdam to the industrial meeting of the Dutch women.

She will then attend a two days' convention of suffragists at Berlin and afterward attend congresses in Dresden, Prague and Vienna, finally going to Budapest for the week's congress of the International Woman's Suffrage alliance, of which Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt is the president. She and Mrs. Catt will then travel together in Russia, Poland, Turkey and other countries, returning to the United States in October.

Wristband Umbrella.

Don't let your pretty new hat get ruined because of the nuisance of "toting" an umbrella. If you have a wristband umbrella you won't in the least mind carrying it, even when rain is not a certainty, for the leather strap at the end of its abbreviated handle holds its ferrule far from the ground and out of the way of your ankles. Any handle can be adapted to this new fashion. Just take your pet umbrella to the jewelry repairer, show him where you wish the handle amputated and the strap adjusted, and in a few days you will have a hat protector that will never be a bore to carry.

—Only one housewife in ten has an expense allowance so liberal that she does not feel the need of searching for economy opportunities—and this fact is the big reason why a merchant can make his store advertising "make" his store!

Cookery Points

Cherry Shortcake.

For cherry shortcake make a soft dough by mixing together two cupfuls of flour sifted with a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder, a teaspoonful of salt and half a cupful of shortening, which may be half each of butter and lard or bacon fat. Add two tablespoonfuls of sugar and mix with a well beaten egg. Add enough milk to make the dough of the right consistency. Roll out in two layers and bake in the same pan with flecks of butter between.

When baked the two layers will separate easily. The cherry filling should be in readiness to spread between the shortcake and on top. Large ripe cherries are pitted and crushed slightly in a bowl with sugar. Taste the juice to tell if it is sweet enough. Prepare the cherries some time ahead and you will find them much nicer. Serve with or without whipped cream.

Frozen Fruits.

Combination of fruit flavors will often bring about cooling and delicious results. Peaches and plums combine perfectly and frozen in a sugar sirup yield a most delightful sweet. Boil one quart of water with one pound of sugar until they form a rich sirup, then strain and stand aside until cold. Pare twelve fine ripe peaches and chop fine with a silver knife. Scald one pint of plums, remove the skins and the stones, mash the pulp and add to the peaches. Crack the pits to remove the kernels, blanch and pound. Add the fruit and the mashed kernels to the sirup. Let it stand for thirty minutes and then freeze.

Blackberry Jam Cake.

Rub to a cream half a cupful of butter and then gradually add one cupful of sugar, the beaten yolks of three eggs and the whites of two, reserving the third white for frosting. Take half a cupful of thin cream or milk, a level teaspoonful each of cinnamon, allspice and two scant cupfuls of flour, and last of all stir in one cupful of blackberry jam or preserves. Bake in moderately hot oven for about three-quarters of an hour. This makes a nice pudding if eaten as soon as baked and a currant jelly or lemon sauce is served with it.

Gold and Silver Omelet.

Have ready as many eggs as there are people to be served. Separate the yolks from the whites and beat each thoroughly, then add to each a dash of salt and pepper or paprika and a little milk. Pour both egg mixtures simultaneously into the pan, letting the white omelet cover one-half of the bottom and the gold omelet the other half. Cook them gently until firm throughout, taking care that they do not burn. Then fold the white or silver one over on to the other and serve immediately.

Souffle Glace.

Half a pint of cream, one tablespoonful of grated lemon rind, four eggs, half a pound of sugar, half a gill of wine, one tablespoonful of lemon juice and a pinch of salt. Mix the yolks of the eggs, lemon juice, lemon rind, sugar and salt. Stir over a slow fire until thick. Cool. Add the whites of eggs, well beaten, and the cream, beaten until stiff. Add the wine, fill the mixture into paper cases, pack in a pail and pack the pail in ice and salt for four hours.

Burnt Almond Ice Cream.

Blanch and chop half a pint of almonds. Cook four tablespoonfuls of sugar to the caramel; add the chopped almonds. When cold pound to a powder. Put one pint of milk into a saucepan with half a pound of sugar and the yolks of four eggs. Stir over a slow fire until it coats the spoon; then strain and cool. Add one pint of whipped cream, a pinch of salt, one teaspoonful of almond extract and the pounded almonds. Freeze.

Grape Cup.

Pour half a cupful of boiling water over four tablespoonfuls of grape jelly and stir until dissolved. Add the same quantity of cold water, one tablespoonful of sugar and a little lemon juice.

Place a lump of ice in a glass pitcher and pour the liquid over. Any kind of jelly will answer if the grape is not at hand. If currant jelly is used then less lemon juice will be required, currants being rather tart.

Summer Sandwich.

Cucumber and green pepper minced fine and seasoned with mayonnaise make as tasty a hot weather sandwich as it is easy to find. If the sandwiches are not to be used at once the juice should be squeezed from the vegetables after they are minced, for otherwise the bread will become water soaked.

For Afternoon Tea.

To vary the afternoon iced tea drop a sprig or two of fresh mint into the pot with the dry tea and turn the boiling water over it. A bit of the crisp, fresh mint in each glass looks refreshing on a hot afternoon.

New Wrinkle For Potato Salad.

Instead of onion, try mixing the potato salad with cucumbers cut in small pieces. Onions may be used, too, but unless the quantity is small the flavor of the potato and cucumber blend will be lost.

Some Cookery Suggestions

MIXED VEGETABLE SOUPS.

SOUPS in which several fresh vegetables are combined make acceptable accessories to the bill of fare. The flavor may be varied according to the kind of vegetables used, and the soups may be made with meat, cream, milk or a stock, as the taste or convenience dictates.

Soup With Stock.

Puree of Vegetables.—Take a cold potato, carrot and turnip, cut them into thin slices, add to them a tablespoonful of chopped celery top, a cupful of stewed tomatoes and two quarts of water in which meat has been cooked. Simmer gently for an hour, then press through a fine sieve. Return to the fire, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, stir until it reaches the boiling point, add a grated onion, a teaspoonful of salt and a saltspoonful of pepper. Boil a few minutes.

Quickly Made.

Soup With Beef Extract.—Take one-half cupful diced raw potatoes, one-quarter cupful diced raw carrots, one cupful tomatoes, one tablespoonful finely minced onion, one teaspoonful finely chopped celery, one tablespoonful finely chopped parsley, one teaspoonful salt and a few grains of white pepper. Pour over all one quart cold water. Bring slowly to boiling point, then simmer gently until vegetables are tender. Brown one level tablespoonful flour in one tablespoonful butter, add hot water to this to make as thin as cream. Add this and one teaspoonful extract of beef to the other mixture.

Variety in Ingredients.

Soup With Stock.—Take two ounces of butter, a breakfast cupful each of shelled peas and chopped carrots and turnips, one teacupful each of chopped onions and rice, four medium sized tomatoes, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, three-quarters of a pint of stock and salt and pepper. Melt the butter in a saucepan, add the carrots, turnips, onions and sliced tomatoes. Stir over the fire for five minutes. Then add the stock, which must be boiling. Wash and add the rice. When all the vegetables are tender rub them through a hair or wire sieve. Reboil and season well. Add cooked peas and parsley. Serve in a hot tureen with croutons of bread.

The Mice Crept Into the Basket.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—How the Mouse Family Went to The Seashore.

JACK and Evelyn laughed very hard. Daddy had just said that he would tell them about the mouse family's trip to the seashore.

"The weather was very hot, and the little mice were not feeling very well," daddy began.

"'If we could have a day at the shore I'm sure we'd all be in much better health,' Mrs. Mouse said to her husband.

"Mr. Mouse grumbled something about times being hard and seashore trips expensive, but Mrs. Mouse just frowned.

"'It needn't cost us a cent,' she said. 'I heard the cook say last night that she was going picnicking tomorrow at the shore, and all we've got to do is to go with her.'

"'Oh, indeed!' Mr. Mouse murmured. 'If the cook is going, of course I haven't any objection. No doubt she will provide well for us.'

"'No doubt,' snapped Mrs. Mouse. 'Take my word for it she has everything in that basket of hers that is good to eat.'

"So Mrs. Mouse got Evelyn and Wilbur, her two children, ready, and when they had had their bath and were brushed and combed Mrs. Mouse called to Mr. Mouse, who was still busy curling his whiskers.

"Followed by the youngsters, she trotted to the dining room and hopped on to the table. An open basket was there, and Mrs. Mouse, pushing the children ahead of her, jumped in.

"'You'd better hurry if you don't want the cook to catch you,' she warned, and Mr. Mouse was after her like a flash. He was none too soon, for the cook came into the room just then and slammed the lid of the basket down.

"The trip to the seashore was a delightful one for the mice. The cook had filled the basket with all sorts of good things for herself and friends, and the mice nibbled at cake and cheese and pie till they couldn't eat any more.

"When they got to the seashore the cook set the basket down. She didn't open it, though, until lunch time, and Mr. and Mrs. Mouse had just time to hustle the children out of the basket and get them out of the way before somebody raised the cry of mouse.

"They were off and safely under a pier by that time, though. The mice spent a jolly day frolicking about through the sand. They picked up so many good things to eat which picnickers had thrown away after their luncheons that Mrs. Mouse said she had made up her mind to spend the summer there. On one of the piers she found a nice hole in which they could make their home, and, although Mr. Mouse grumbled a good deal about it being damp and bad for his rheumatism, stay they did."

At Terre Haute, Ind., the United Powder and High Explosive Workers of America will meet on Tuesday of next week for their annual convention which is expected to last two days.

It is expected that within a short time an international union of elevator conductors and starters will be formed. Local organizations are being formed in many large cities and their membership is increasing.

A $500,000 office building will be erected in the downtown district of St. Louis by the Order of Railroad Telegraphers to take the place of their present inadequate quarters. The plans for the building have already been approved.

The American Flint Glass Workers' Union of North America has sent a protest to Congress against the proposed reduction in the tariff on glassware, on the ground that foreign competition, even under the existing law, is keen.

The Bricklayers and Mason's International Union promises to be the next to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor. A referendum vote is to be submitted soon and as the administration favors the affiliation it should carry by a handsome majority.

Joseph C. Colgan, of Chicago, who went to Roanoke, Va., to conduct a strike for the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railroad Employes, has started a daily newspaper and named it "The Square Deal." Reports from Cincinnati state that the car men have organized a union in Covington, and also all interurban lines entering Cincinnati, including the latter city, the union now has 3,000 members in that locality.

A law has been passed recently in New Zealand which makes a fine possible for any person that works more than eight hours a day. The law first was applied to women and girls working in hotels, but now it includes everybody. Each city and town in the island chooses a day for itself that gives to the working classes a half holiday. It may be Saturday or any other day in the week.

A new trade union has been formed in London, Eng., recently. It is named the Home-Makers' Trade Union and its aims are given as follows: To assist wage earners in their endeavor to obtain better wages and conditions; to insist as a right upon proper proportion of men's wages to be paid to the wife for the support of the home; to improve in every way the status and condition of women.

An exhaustive inquiry into the conditions of labor for women in country districts is to be undertaken by a special commission in connection with the German Society for the Promotion of Working Women's Interests. The work will naturally occupy a considerable time, as the whole area of Germany is to be covered, and the investigation will include domestic and housing conditions as well as industrial and agricultural.

A minimum wage of $9 per week for all women and girls employed in interstate commerce work and a prohibition against the employment of girls under fifteen years of age are proposed in a bill introduced by Senator Chilton, of West Virginia. Under the terms of the measure it would apply to all women employed in transportation, telegraph and like interstate service.

ACT ON JUDGE'S DEATH.

Elizabeth, June 6.—At a special meeting of the trustees of the Evergreen cemetery resolutions of condolence were adopted on the death of former Judge Edward S. Atwater, who for many years served on the board. The minute was ordered spread upon the records of the cemetery association and a copy was sent to the relatives of Mr. Atwater. A brief review of the work of the decedent in the interests of the cemetery is contained in the resolution. It showed that since 1879 Mr. Atwater had been a member of the Board of Trustees and for years had been secretary and treasurer of the association. The flags of the Union County Courthouse and the City Hall are at half-mast because of the deaths of Mr. Atwater and former Sheriff Robert G. Houston.

PARIS HONORS PEARY.

Paris, June 6.—Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary was formally received today by the University of Paris. The event was attended by a distinguished company, that gave the American explorer a cordial welcome. Prince Roland Bonaparte presided, and in his introductory address declared that though the opening decade of the twentieth century had been notable for heroic achievements, nothing moved the world to greater wonder than Peary's annexation of the North Pole.

REV. DR. WHITNEY GOES TO REWARD

Venerable Retired Clergyman and Former College President Passes Away.

AGE EIGHTY-THREE YRS.

Once Head of Centenary Institute Had Long Been Ill—Survived by Wife and Three Daughters and One Son—The Funeral on Monday

Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney, who was president of Centenary Collegiate Institute, Hackettstown, and for eighteen years president-emeritus of that institution, and a widely-known figure in Methodism, died at his home, 821 First place, last night. Last Friday he fell at his home, fracturing his hip and that injury together with other complications from which Dr. Whitney had suffered for several years, caused his death. Following the accident a week ago he was only conscious at brief spells and his death was expected momentarily.

Dr. Whitney was born at Georgetown, District of Columbia, July 30, 1830, and was graduated from Wesleyan University, Class 1858. For one year following he was principal of the Macedon Centre, (N. Y.) Academy and that same year became principal of Oneida, (N. Y.) Seminary, remaining there until 1861, when he was transferred from the New York to the Newark Conference.

After coming to New Jersey, Dr. Whitney's first pastorate was at Somerville, the early part of 1861. He then went to the Old Water Street M. E. church, Elizabeth, where he served from 1861-62. Leaving there he was pastor of the M. E. church at Newton, Sussex county, from 1863-65 and from 1866 to 1867 he was pastor of the First M. E. church, this city.

Dr. Whitney served as pastor of Trinity church, Jersey City, in 1868, and that year was elected president of Centenary Collegiate Institute at Hackettstown, the institution being removed from Newark. He served in the capacity of president for twenty-six years, and under his direction this well-known educational institution prospered, and Dr. Whitney was always held in the highest esteem and regard by the whole student body. Especially among many Japanese students was Dr. Whitney beloved, and after removing to Plainfield he continued to keep in touch with many of these students.

Following his removal to this city about eighteen years ago, Dr Whitney was made president-emeritus of Centenary Collegiate Institute. Dr. Whitney frequently contributed to magazines, prepared Sunday-school lessons and among his best known books are "Hand Book of Bible Geography," and "Lesson Compend."

Dr. Whitney is survived by a wife who is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. P. M. French, of the borough; three daughters, Miss Vincent Whitney, Miss Bertha Whitney and Mrs. Martin B. Stutsman, all of this city, and one son, Harold Whitney, of Westfield.

The funeral service will be held at the First M. E. church, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, the pastor, will be in charge, and will be assisted by Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, District Superintendent of the Elizabeth district, of the Newark Conference; Rev. Dr. Jonathan M. Meeker, president of Centenary Collegiate Institute, and Rev. Dr. A. M. Tuttle, of Summit. The burial will be in Fairmount cemetery, Newark.

TRIO STOLE AUTO; ARRESTED IN NEWARK

William Banks, colored, of West Fourth street, who recently had his chauffeur's license revoked for reckless driving and had been employed since by William R. Overland, owner of the garage at 205 East Fifth street, sought revenge on Mr. Overland last night because the latter discharged him, by stealing a car from the establishment, the police allege. The machine belongs to George Clark. Banks, accompanied by Raleigh Cruse and James F. Lang, also of this city, was arrested in Newark with the stolen car in their possession. The prisoners will be brought to this city.

UNION DEMOCRATS BOOMING FIELDER

Gen. D. F. Collins and Others Favor Acting Governor for the Nomination.

STATEMENT IS ISSUED

Elizabeth, June 7.—Recent political developments indicate that Acting Governor Fielder will have an easy time in carrying Union county at the primary election next September, when he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor. With the announcement today that General Dennis F. Collins, State committeeman from this county, favors the nomination of the acting Governor, it appears that all party factions will unite to support him. Congressman William E. Tuttle, Jr., chairman of the Democratic County Committee, has made no statement on the Governorship but there is little doubt that he will accept the trend of sentiment in favor of the acting Governor. Edward Nugent, former president of City Council, who is credited with being one of the factional leaders, is known to have been working in the interests of Acting Governor Fielder for some time. All of the Union County Assemblymen are also understood to favor the acting Governor's nomination.

In the three-cornered fight at the Democratic primary Acting Governor Finelder looks like a winner, with Frank S Katzenbach second, and Mayor H. Otto Whittpenn, of Jersey City, trailing. Mr. Katzenbach has many friends, made long ago in this county, but there seems to be very little sentiment for the Jersey City executive. Some weeks ago it was generally thought that General Collins would support Mayor Wittpenn, because the latter was said to have the indorsement of President Wilson. Recently, however, it began to appear that the county committeeman was veering to Acting Governor Fielder, and his announcement today was not a surprise It was made through City Attorney Joseph T. Hague and was as follows:

General Collins' Statement.

"I indorse Governor Fielder's candidacy for Governor because I feel that he is the strongest candidate that the party could nominate. He is particularly fitted for the office by a long legislative career. He has consistently fathered progressive legislation, and since he has been acting Governor he has demonstrated that he was well fitted to carry into effect the laws recently placed upon the statute books.

"I have investigated the feeling of prominent Democrats in the county, and now feel that there is an overwhelming sentiment throughout Union in favor of Governor Fielder. The stand Governor Fielder has taken on legislative matters has met with the approval of the voters of Union county."

City Attorney Hague also issued a statement indorsing the candidacy of the acting Governor. It was as follows:

"I have known Governor Fielder for the past ten years. I served with him in the Legislature in 1904 and always found his judgment sought on important matters during my term as a member of the House of Assembly and since. He is well qualified to fulfill the duties of Governor.

"Governor Fielder is a man of matured years, and is independent. He will see that the laws are impartially enforced. I consider him the strongest man that the party could nominate for the coming election."

MEN'S AASOCIATION ACTED AS HOSTS TO THE WOMEN

A special program of vocal and instrumental music followed by the serving of refreshments featured the "Ladies' Night" program presented by the Men's Association of Warren chapel in the chapel last night and the affair was largely attended. The program included soprano solos by Miss Elizabeth Goddard, violin solos by Miss Helen Harman, vocal solos by Mr. Wills and recitations by R. A. Pentecost.

The refreshment committee headed by George Hoagland served eatables consisting of ice cream, fruit punch and cake.

Mrs. Charles H. Schenerman, who has been staying with her mother, Mrs. J. Newton Jenkins, of East Sixth street, for the past year, leaves Monday to join her husband in Saranac Lake, N. Y. Mr. Schenerman's health is very much improved and he will resume business early in the fall.

TRAVELING MEN ENJOY BANQUET

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Sixth Annual Session of Grand Council, U. C. T. of New Jersey and Delaware Was Largely Attended.

A short business session this morning followed by automobile trips to Duke's Farm and other places of interest in Plainfield and vicinity brought to a close the sixth annual convention of the Grand Council of the United Commercial Travelers of New Jersey and Delaware, held yesterday and today in this city. In many ways this session was the most successful in the history of the order. While in Plainfield the one hundred and thirty-five delegates, many of whom were accompanied by their wives and children, were the guests of the Plainfield council, which prepared an attractive program to make their stay in this city an enjoyable one.

The most auspicious part of the convention took place last night in Sebring's Auditorium, where a banquet, followed by a reception and dance, was enjoyed. The cuisine was prepared by the local Travelers under the direction of Frank W. Weed. James E. Field, of Piscataway township, acted as toastmaster and speeches were made by W. S. Kulp, of Trenton, chairman of Railway, Grievance and Legislature Committee of the Grand Council; Edo Van Winkle, of Paterson, and Grand Secretary James H. Moody, of Haddonfield N. J. The spacious auditorium was elaborately decorated with yellow, blue and white streamers and flags and emblems of the order. The table decorations consisted of cut flowers and ferns. Concert music was rendered by Suhr's string orchestra during the serving of dinner.

Mr. Kulp told of the efforts being made to have legislation passed making it compulsory for the railroads to carry and be responsible for "commercial baggage." He explained that the rules and regulations of the railroads regarding baggage include "wearing apparel" only and that no provisions were made for the caring of traveling salesmen's samples, which is known as "commercial baggage." The speaker asserted that although the railroads accommodate drummers by listing their samples as "wearing apparel" they do so simply as an accommodation, but are not compelled to by law and can at any time refuse this favor. And in case of the loss of samples by any cause, the speaker continued, are not responsible for same.

Urging that the laws regarding the sanitation of hotels and that the inspection requirements of same be more strictly enforced, Mr. Kulp continued, severaly attacking the many newly constructed hostelries in Asbury Park and Ocean Grove. "Our wives and children," he said, "are about to wend their way to these popular resorts, where the majority of hotels have inadequate or no fire-escapes, although they have been but very recently erected. Our loved ones will go to these hotels to enjoy their vacations. And some day the penalty of such negligence will be paid by a terrible loss of life. We and many others will be the sufferers." The speaker continued saying that at the next session of the Legislature these reforms will be advocated.

Saturday Half Holiday.

During June, July, August and until September 20, the Plainfield Daily Press will go to Press promptly at 1 p. m. on Saturdays. Our readers and advertisers by getting copy in the office early on that day will greatly assist the management of the paper in giving the employes who have served so faithfully during the winter, a deserved half holiday. Classified advertisements will be received until noon on Saturdays.

OUR JUNE NUMBER GREAT MAGAZINE

As the supplement to this issue will be found the June number of the Plainfield Daily Press Magazine, which as customary, is given absolutely free. If it is not enclosed in this copy of the paper, promptly notify the office.

In this number of the superb magazine, James Oliver Curwood, the noted Arctic traveler, begins a powerful and fascinating story of the Northwest. It is "Pound by Pound," and is one of the best stories this distinguished author has ever written. The illustrations are by Anton Otto Fischer.

There is a laugh in every line of J. W. Muller's truly humorius story, "An Adventure on the Amber Jack." Raymond Thayer does the illustrating. "The Great Divide," a character study, by Alice Winter; "It's Immaterial to Me," a charming tale by Berton Braley, and "The Friend in the Garden," an unusual story wherein the mystic plays a prominent part, by E. F. Benson, are other features. In fact the number is replete with good fiction and up-to-date fashions.

KEEPING EVERLASTINGLY AT IT IS WHAT COUNTS

Three fine automobiles, all fully equipped, and other valuable prizes—and all they cost is a little hustling. No financial expense to the contestant whatever—simply keeping everlastingly at it. Isn't that the keynote of any success in life. Persistency wins every time.

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try, again." Don't get "cold feet" when new at the game. It is equally hard for all contestants for none has had any experience. It's a scratch race; no handicaps.

This big contest is not one in which any entrant must get a given number of subscriptions to win. One more than the other fellows have lands the lucky one the grand prize, a Henderson car.

If a friend doesn't take the Plainfield Daily Press, show him copies and invite him to read them and be sure and request him to make comparisons.

Read the particulars of the great offer, made by this paper on page five today. If not already entered, become a contestant today. It is never too late to win.

FRIDAY'S FLAG CONTEST.

So many answers were received in the misspelled word contest held in connection with the automobile contest advertising in last night's Plainfield Daily Press that it was impossible to check them up in time to announce the winners in today's Press. The list of the five persons entitled to the five flags will be published in Monday night's Daily Press.

Society was particularly active last night, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Waring gave a dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean, Miss VanNest and Herbert Weston, all of Washington.

The Misses Finch, of Park avenue, gave a large dinner party, the guests including Mrs. Robert Lance, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fowler, of Peapack, and Miss H. D. Atterbury of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan. Runkle entertained Schuyler Smith and Edward Ely, of Squadron A, of New York, at a house party, while Captain Biddle, U. S. A., was the guest of Captain Chauncey Humphreys.

Walter Abel, proprietor of the Baltimore Sun, and Wallace Lanahan, a banker of Baltimore, owners of the Blenheim Farm, are among the visitors to the show, having a number of fine entries and they have been entertained by friends.

One of the large social affairs, last night, was a dance given at the Plainfield Country Club, by Mrs. Horace N. Stevens and Mrs. G. Cooke. There were more than one hundred guests and the dancing was continued until an early hour with an intermission during which an elaborate supper was served.

Reginald C. Vanderbilt expected to attend the show yesterday, but a pressure of other matters prevented. However, he and Lewis E. Waring motored out from New York, Mr. Vanderbilt going on to Princeton for the students' celebration, yesterday afternoon and last night.

MRS. AMY NUCKELS DIES AT ATLANTIC CITY HOME

Mrs. Amy Nuckels, prominent Philadelphian, the divorced wife of the former racing king and who a short time ago caused a sensation in this city when accompanied by her five-year-old daughter, Muriel, tried to kidnap her son, Preston, Jr., from Mt. St. Mary's Convent, at a midnight hour, died yesterday morning following a sudden attack of heart disease. Death occurred to the eccentric woman surrounded by a corps of faithful servants in her palatial Atlantic City, N. J., home, which is known as the "Idyl Hour."

Mrs. Nuckels, it will be remembered, came to this city acompanied by her little daughter, who it eventually was found out she had taken from the custody of her husband after the latter had been granted a divorce, and after her unsuccessful attempt to obtain possession of Preston, Jr., was arrested in North avenue. When arraigned before City Judge De Meza she was told to leave town.

CHAMPION CLASSES ARE JUDGED ON CLOSING DAY OF HORSE SHOW

Great Crowd Expected at the Exhibition—Military Mounts Will Be Shown and the Watchung Hunt Cup Will Be Awarded in the Class for Hunters—Yesterday's Awards.

An unusually attractive program of events is offered for this the closing day of the Plainfield horse show and under favorable weather conditions a record-breaking attendance is expected. The fact that the championship classes are to be judged will serve to arouse unusual interest among exhibitors and patrons. These will include classes for single harness and saddle horses.

Another big feature of the program will be the militia mounts, military jumping teams and the champion classes for hunters, in which the Watchung Hunt Club cup will be awarded.

Honors were pretty evenly divided the second day of the show, and the awards all seemed to meet with popular approval. Judging Class 21, "The Nala" Challenge cup, for horses to be shown in single harness, was not an easy task. A. W. Atkinson's Corinna, Edward B. McLean's Guardsman and George G. Rohlig's Dignity all looked good, but in the final decision, Corinna captured the blue.

This cup was offered by J. W. Harriman last year to take the place of the trophy won by himself with Nala, and it must be won twice to become the personal property of an exhibitor. Some of the familiar contestants were missing.

Edward B. McLean captured two blues and a red, and Mrs. McLean a red during the afternoon. The former took a first in Class 3, for harness horses, with Aaron, and a first in Class 43 for hunters and jumpers, with Overall, while Mrs. McLean won a second prize in Class 5, for harness horses, driving Sporting Extra, which she had just purchased. The exhibitors handled the reins in all but the jumping class.

One of the very interesting classes of the afternoon was 40, for ponies under saddle. Among the entrants was Master A. S. Herr, 4th's, Topsy, of this city, the smallest pony in the show, and while the little fellow failed to win a prize, he deserves special mention for the clever manner in which he exhibited his pony. Miss Constance S. Regan with her entry, Joy captured the blue. If the awarding had been left to the crowd she doubtless would have been equally successful. She rode her pony like a veteran.

William Ziegler, Jr., with his entry, The Pilot, won a blue in Class 7 for harness horses.

There was considerable interest in the classes for hackneys, draught-stallions and farm horses. Emil Seelig's Royal Victoria, easily won the blue for the hackneys, while Grant B. Schley's Scotland's Herald got the first honor for stallions and the Fairholme Farms' entrahts took all the honors in the class for farm horses.

Miss Eleanor Rasmussen, a member of the "Sunshine Girl" company, scored two triumphs riding in Class 46 for hunters and jumpers, first capturing a blue with Mr. McLean's Cocktail and a red with S. Bryce Wing's Benito. All the hunting and jumping classes were good and in the opinion of many furnished the best sport of the afternoon.

Charles W. McCutchen won two reds with his fine entry, White Oak Maid, one in Class 7 and the other in Class 62, and his other entry, Jim Grey took a fourth prize in the latter class, being driven by Mrs. J. J. O'Donohue. Hearty applause was given to Mr. McCutchen as he drove about the ring.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. O'Donohue both appeared in the hunting and jumping classes with Merry Widow and Lion Heart and their performances was greatly admired by the crowd. Yesterday's awards:

The assessment value of the borough has doubled in the last three years owing largely to the development of land owned by H. C. Lockwood & Co. Over fifty houses have been built and many more are in the course of construction. Five new streets, Hunter, Willoughby, Russell, Farley and Paterson, are now being macadamized and there are a number of thoroughfares which will be macadamized during the summer.

The number of school children have increased to such an extent that the Board of Education has found that another school is needed. The Jersey Central Railroad has found it necessary to stop several additional trains daily to accommodate the increasing number of commuters.

The Board of Education and supervising principal, S. Dana Townsend, are fully satisfied with the results of the departmental teaching in the three upper grades of School No. 1, and have decided to adopt the same plan next year. The entire school work has advanced this year under the work of competent teachers. Mr. Townsend has found it necessary to divide grades one, two and three into sections and a B with each section under a different teacher. The eighth grade is one of the largest classes in the school's history there being twenty. The enrollment of School No. 1 is 300 and that of School No. 2 58.

Neither side reached second until the eighth when a three bagger by Washburn and an error let the winning run across the pan.

"PINCH" MULLIN IS PLAYING GREAT BALL

Local Boy is Starring in the Empire State League in Brunswick Uniform.

Paper clippings coming from Brunswick, Georgia, to this city, seem to indicate that Tommy Mullin, Plainfield's little infielder who is playing the shortstop position for the Brunswick nine of the Empire League, is burning things up in that organization, which, although recently organized, has a bright future and looks like a permanent fixture in the baseball world. A traveling man who knows ball players when he sees them, said the other day in referring to the league, "Take it from me, this is the fastest minor league in the country right now, no less than a dozen players will go from the Empire and stay up too."

Mullin is vinning applause for his grand work all over the circuit. One paper says, "His fielding is almost errorless and he sure does clout the ball. His team mates are calling him "Pinch" because he hits so well in the pinches."

ALBIE CARLSTROM GOING WELL WITH LAWRENCE CLUB

Albin Carlstrom, the former Plainfield shortstop, who is playing first base on the Lawrence team, has gone twenty-two games at the initial sack without making a single misplay. He has played the twenty-seven games played by the locals this season and in that time he has made but one error.

Carlstrom has accepted 249 chances without an error. He made his only error in the game at Fall River, Monday, May 5, when Woodman, going to first, collided with him and the player dropped the ball. He has made 231 putouts and nine assists since that time without slipping up.

Carlstrom has had, since the season opened, 283 putouts, thirteen assists and one error. His average is .997. It is doubtful if any first sacker in the country can show as good work.

GIRL ATHLETES IN PARKER FIELD MEET

Miss Crane Displays Some Good High and Broad Jumping in Stillman Meet.

A new feature was introduced in feminine athletics in this city yesterday afternoon when the girls of the Stillman Grammar School conducted their first annual field and track meet, as a preliminary to the boys' meet which was held on Parker Field later in the afternoon. A program of athletic stunts especially compiled for girls' competition was run off and some excellent performances were chalked up during the afternoon.

The jumping ability of Miss Dorothy Crane was perhaps the most conspicuous factor in the affair, this versatile little feminine performer doing the stunts with an ability that would do credit to the efforts of any boy athlete. Not only is Miss Crane a proficient jumper, but she is also an accomplished runner, baseball and basketball player. During the season she gained the position of second base on the Stillman School class team, by superior playing over a number of male contenders for the berth and she is a classy fielder and hard hitter. In yesterday's events her work was watched closely and her mark of three feet six inches in the high jump called forth considerable comment on every hand, and the fact that she leaped ten feet seven and one half inches in the running broad jump increased her prestige to the all around championship of the school. A summary of the feminine events follows:

Potato race (Juniors)—First, Miss Sweeney.

Relay race (Interclass)—First, Class 8-D, time 70 seconds; second, Class 8-A, time 71 seconds; third, Classes 7 and 8-D, tied for this position.

Running high jump (Juniors)—First, Miss Mary Crouse; second, Miss Katie Himmelfarb; third, Miss G. Sweeney.

Running broad jump (Seniors)—First, Miss Dorothy Crane, distance 10 feet, 7½ inches; second, Miss Mary Dall, distance 10 feet, 5½ inches; third, Miss Mary Johnston, distance 10 feet, ¾ inches.

Running broad jump (Juniors)—First, Miss Jenny Huelson, 9 feet, 11½ inches; second, Miss G. Sweeney, 9 feet, 10 inches; third, Miss Mary Cruse, 9 feet, 5½ inches.

Officials—Scorer, Miss Hazel Coddington; judge, Miss Easton.

WILL BOB GET CLOUGH?

Bob Bogardus' announcement that he had signed Outfielder Johnny Clough, of the crack Lakeside A. A., is followed by a notice coming from a manager in the Elizabeth N. J. factory league, who says that he has secured the outfield guardian to do duty for his team beginning July 5. He is employed in the shuttle department of the Singer factory and will be eligible to play in the Singer League after July 5. He is considered to be one of the best outfielders in the semi-pro game and is expected to appear on Parker Field this afternoon when Plainfield plays Dunellen.

RECEPTION FOR ALUMNI.

Members of the North Plainfield High School Senior Class tendered a reception and dance to the school's alumni in the Debele's Hall last night, the affair being largely attended by graduates and undergraduates. Th ereception also afforded an opportunity for the school body to congratulate the N. P. H. S. baseball team on its excellent showing made agains tthe Plainfield High School boys on the baseball diamond in the afternoon.

COLORED PEOPLE'S CLUB.

The organization of a social club was effecte dlast night at the weekly dances and receptions for colored people at the Washington School, these officers being elected to serve for one term: President, John Gate; first vice-president, Seymore Van Blake; second vice-president, Wesley Saunders; secretary, Gertrude Randolph; corresponding secretary, Elvito Marcellus; treasurer, Lesley Kinslow.

DOGS AND CATS WILL BE LICENSED THERE

Owners of Bow-wows and Kitties Must Pay $2.50 Per in the Borough.

Dogs and cats that have been running at large in North Plainfield beginning July 1 will have a license fee of $2.50 per animal, levied on their existence, according to the provisions of an ordinance adopted by the Borough Council last night. The edict which will probably spell doom for many cats and dogs, especially the former, was introduced by Councilman E. S. Boyer. The ordinance calls for the execution of all such animals in the event of the owner being unwilling to pay the fee.

The councilmanic session last night was devoid of any unusual interest, although following adjournment many councilmen joined with citizens in the discussion of the sewer system to be installed and the educational problems of the borough. Some advocated the sending of the High School pupils to Plainfield, while others were just as firmly convinced that it is for the best interests of the borough that the High School be maintained.

A map showing building lots on Hudson Terrace, Watchung avenue, was approved. The report showing expenditures in the various departments of the borough was as follows: Police department, $408.76; fire department, $347.70, and street department, $649.74.

The following building permits were granted: N. Meyers, barn on Duer street; Frank Mobus, garage in Codington avenue; Henry McGee, garage in Orchard avenue; Edmund Rushmore, addition to garage in Sycamore avenue; R. C. Campbell, addition to dwelling in Rockview avenue, and Albert Steiner, chicken coop in Somerset street.

Anthony was appointed special bacteriologist and pathologist of the local health department at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Health held last night, during which the reports concerning the city's sanitation compiled by Health Officer Chandler were submitted. A total of twenty-six cases of communicable diseases were reported, twenty-seven dairies have been inspected, 215 carnival employes examined and eighteen barber ships inspected.

During the month there have been thirty-four births, four still births, thirteen marriages and twenty-two deaths. Eight plumbers' permits were granted, twenty-five milk permits, twelve for the collection of garbage, one for offal removal, one for the removal of dead animals and one to the Plainfield Ice and Supply Company for ice. Sixteen permits were filed and granted for the right to conduct barber shops.

SENIORS ENJOY DANCE AT THE HARTRIDGE SCHOOL

As an appropriate farewell, the final event incident to the graduation of eleven pupils from the Hartridge School Miss Emelyn B. Hartridge, the principal, gave a dance at the Hartridge auditorium last night. It was profusely decorated with spring flowers, daisies being massed about the platform, where the orchestra was seated. Many friends of the graduates as well as their parents were in attendance. The gowns were exquisite. Some of the leading members of the younger Plainfield society set were present.

A SURPRISE PARTY.

A farewell surprise party was given for Mrs. William Spaulding at her home 207 Stebbins place, last evening, by a company of forty friends. An enjoyable evening was spent, during which refreshments were served. Mrs. Spaulding is a native of Edinburgh, and during her visit in Scotland she will visit many places of interest. During the evening there was vocal and instrumental music, concluding with the song, "Will Ye No Come Back Again."

A SURPRISE PARTY.

Joseph Randall was given a birthday surprise party at his home on Brook avenue, last night, when fifty friends called on him. The affair being arranged by Mrs. Randall and Mrs. Herbert Schuldenfrei. Mr. Randall received a number of gifts. When the guests departed early this morning all left their best wishes for many happy returns of the day.

WHO KNOWS WHAT OUR NATIONAL FLOWER IS?

Congress Has Never Decided That Question For Us.

The question of whether we have a national flower was raised recently when members of the Woman's Suffrage party objected to the use of the American Beauty rose by anti-suffragists as the emblem of their cause. The objection was based on the assertion that the American Beauty is our national flower.

There is certainly no official national flower. Congress has never decided that any particular blossom shall stand as the badge of a citizen's patriotism.

We are therefore as a country a thistle behind Scotland, a red rose behind England and a shamrock in the wake of the Emerald Isle.

But there has been some unofficial agitation on this subject. About twenty years ago the newspapers instituted a voting contest for the public school children as to what shall be the national flower. Some of the agitators as a result of the contest submitted the goldenrod as a very appropriate flower to decorate the lapels of all good citizens.

Some states even fell in line with the idea, made the goldenrod the state flower, appropriated some fine rhetoric, if not money, and immediately forgot all about it. Other states decided on other blooms as being more appropriate floral designs, and so the matter rests today.

A good many persons wear the goldenrod under the impression that it is the official flower of the nation. But in many cases they wear it only once, for there is a little joker in the lovely goldenrod, so we are now told, and that little joker is named hay fever.

CANE FROM PAUL JONES' SHIP.

Relic Loaned to Continental Memorial Hall at Washington.

Among the relics added or promised to the collection in Continental Memorial hall, Washington, is a walking stick made from the timbers of the Alliance, one of the ships in John Paul Jones' squadron in the battle with the Serapis. The cane will only be loaned to the collection.

Neither the date of the breaking up of the ship nor the time the cane was made is known accurately, but enough has been learned to establish the authenticity of the relic. It was given to Captain U. Shillaber, who carried it on three voyages around the world on sailing ships. He willed it to his brother, who left it to Mrs. Emma S. Clement of Newton, Mass. It was acquired by the John Paul Jones chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution last year.

TICKET SELLER A SCULPTOR.

Boston Girl Studies Art In Subway Booth.

Miss Bessie Paeff of Boston recently was awarded a scholarship in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts school. It entitles her to free tuition for one year and $100 in addition.

The remarkable thing about Miss Paeff's progress in art is that she has done some of her best work while employed as a ticket seller in a Boston subway station. The title of "the subway sculptor" was bestowed upon the young woman when it was learned that she had modeling clay and sculptor's tools in the ticket booth and was studying art in her moments of leisure.

Miss Paeff, according to her employers, has not let the artistic temperament interfere with her work. She is considered one of the best ticket sellers in the service of the Boston subway system.

TRYING TO STOP TIPPING.

New Plan to Be Introduced In Swiss Hotels—Success Not Expected.

A number of Swiss hotels are going to experiment the coming season with a view to suppressing the tipping tyranny.

Five per cent of the total charges will be added to the bill to cover ordinary services, and guests will be freed from running the gauntlet of porters, waiters, etc., on their departure. Visitors will be expected to give tips for extraordinary services.

During the winter some hotels experimented with a view to the total suppression of tips by charging 10 per cent on the bill, but the plan failed, and it is the general belief that the new scheme will also fail.

ASTOR MESSAGE ON A BOARD.

Plank Picked Up Near Place at Which the Titanic Sank.

Captain J. Willis of the British tramp steamer Longscar announced recently, on the arrival of his vessel at Boston, that he had found a small board bearing a message scratched in the wood and signed "John J. Astor."

Captain Willis said the board was found floating on the ocean when the Longscar was about the latitude and longitude where the Titanic sank in April, 1912. He did not reveal the nature of the message, but said he had telegraphed Colonel Astor's widow, Mrs. Madeleine Force Astor, informing her of the discovery.

Liner Kills a Whale.

The Hamburg-American liner Carl Schurz recently ran into and killed a whale which was lying asleep in the steamer's course. The shock of the collision was sufficient to greatly frighten the passengers, but the ship was not damaged.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, JUNE 7, 1913.

The editorial columns of this paper are conducted on Saturdays by representative citizens who are free to express their own views. George E. Webster, A. M., Ph.D., of the North Plainfield High School, is the Contributing Editor for today.

THE BOROUGH HIGH SCHOOL PROPOSITION.

Shall we abolish the North Plainfield High School and send our pupils to Plainfield or shall we not? This is a vital question which is engaging the attention just now. The answer to this question is not a simple one. It more or less directly affects the entire citizenship and justly demands the calm, dispassionate and thorough consideration of all the facts and ought to be settled wisely and permanently. Hasty or arbitrary or factional methods should not prevail in determining such a weighty proposition.

This is not a question of uniting all of the municipal functions and institutions but of doing away with our High School under the present system of separate municipalities which is a very different proposition.

Our point of view is that of one who has taught in North Plainfield High School for five years; who feels a deep interest in its welfare and who is loyal to the school, to its Board of Education and to the people whom he has served. We believe it is also a disinterested opinion as we are about to sever our connection with the school and have nothing to gain or lose, whichever way the matter is decided. We do not wish to decide the question for North Plainfield but only to present a few of the pros and cons for their consideration.

First: Among other factors we must consider that of sentiment. The pupils, the alumni and many citizens of the borough cherish a profound and deep-rooted pride in North Plainfield High School. Its history, traditions and reputation are matters of vital concern to many and they clamor for the perpetuation and growth of this institution without loss of personality and individuality. North Plainfield has a reputation far and wide for its good schools which rank among the first in the State.

There exists a spirit of good natured rivalry between Plainfield and North Plainfield and it tends to spur each High School on to its best efforts. This is a wholesome stimulus to both parties.

Secondly: Parents demand the best possible advantages for their children specialy during the critical high school period. Possibly the most important factor in education is that of the personal contact between student and teacher. Medium sized classes with individual attention are the things which make the small college more desirable for undergraduate students and they may be considered adequate to offset the advantages of larger schools, with larger classes, even though their equipment and facilities may, in many respects be superior. If this argument is true for colleges it holds good for high schools, only more so. The growing high school pupil needs all the individual training and attention he can get.

The Commonwealth of New Jersey demands an intelligent, well-educated citizenship. Education is the cornerstone upon which rest the safety and security of our Republic. Education, therefore, is not a luxury but a necessity.

Thirdly: Good schools are the best asset a borough can posses. They are an advertisement of the first class. Real estate values are determined largely by the character of the schools. The miser is not the most economical man. The good economist is the one who can invest where his investment will be safe and bring good returns. Everything worth having costs something and we cannot expect to enjoy the blessings of a good school without an investment.

Suppose, however, that we grant that good schools are a necessity and that they are a good investment for the individual and for the commonwealth. Let us lay aside the personal element and sentiment and suppose that the alumni are willing to refer to their Alma Mater as an institution of the past. Suppose we lay aside also the consideration of immediate property interests in the Borough. Let us suppose that the voters of North Plainfield are willing to abolish their high school and send the pupils to Plainfield. What would be our temporary gain and what problems would remain?

We have thoughtfully perused the motley array of statistics so gratuitously presented. We have seen comparisons of our school with schools existing under entirely different conditions—the most of which schools are either giving ony a two-year high school course or do not pretend to have the same standards as North Plainfield High School. Let us scrutinize the facts a little further by comparing the present cost of the high school to North Plainfield with the probable cost should the pupils be sent to Plainfield.

Under the present conservative administration of the Board of Education, the expenses of the High School might be summarized as follows:

DISBURSEMENTS.

Regular teachers' salaries	$7,325
Text books and supplies	325
Athletics and commencement	300
Or a total gross expense of	$7,950
REFUND.
Rebate from State for teachers' salaries, attendance and tuition	$5,720
Present net cost of High School to Borough	$2,230

Or for 113 resident pupils less than $20 per capita.

Estimated cost of sending High School pupils to Plainfield would be at least $25 per capita plus cost of transportation as follows:

DISBURSEMENTS.

Tuition at least $50 gross for 113 pupils	$5,650
Transportation	325
Or a total gross expense of	$5 975
Rebate from State for tuition $25 net each for 113 pupils	$2,825
REFUND.
Or a total net expense of	$3,150

This on a basis of 113 pupils would be nearly $28 per capita.

SUMMARY.

Estimated expense to send to Plainfield	$3,150
Present total net cost about	2,230
Present saving to Borough estimated at	$ 920

Assuming, for argument's sake that an estimated saving of $920 is too high, $920 would go a long way toward paying for pro rata services of supervising principal and special teachers, together with a due proportion of heat, light and janitor service, which others have seen fit to incorporate in High School expenses. As a matter of fact these expenses would remain virtually the same whether the High School is abolished or not.

A significant question, then, for the borough to decide is whether a state of agitation and uncertainty is justifiable for the consideration of a few dollars expense more or less. Even though this $920 were an expense instead of a saving, the increase in the tax to any individual property owner would be too insignificant to merit any consideration whatsoever.

Fourth. But even should North Plainfield decide to do away with its High School and suppose Plainfield were willing and able to take our pupils now, how long could she accommodate us? If Plainfield continues to grow, will she not ultimately need all her facilities for her own pupils? And sooner or later, will she not say to us that it is no longer possible for her to accommodate the pupils of North Plainfield? Then where would we be? Would not our last state be worse than the first? Plainfield cannot consistently act as a charitable institution for our benefit, nor do we believe that the borough wishes her to do so. Can this question be settled satisfactorily and permanently by such a temporary makeshift?

Again. If the borough pupils be sent to Plainfield it seems inevitable that they would be discriminated against as to scholarship, social position and athletics. This is no reflection on Plainfield but a mere recognition of human nature as it exists. No student body, in the very nature of things, can treat outsiders in exactly the same fashion it deals with its own people. Many of our girls and boys would drop out of high school rather than submit to such a change.

Finally. If we send our High School pupils to Plainfield, we must pattern our grade work after the grade work of Plainfield as other schools have, on sending their pupils to Plainfield. This means that North Plainfield, a residential community, must abolish many of the excellent features of its grade work to fit the needs of Plainfield grades where conditions are entirely different than here.

To summarize, then, it is not only a question of expense or of pride or of general efficiency. The crux of the matter is the particular efficiency of the Borough High School for borough pupils. Those who favor the abolition of our High School must either have no children in our High School and therefore lack sympathy for those who have or else they have a deep-rooted conviction that our High School is not as efficient as it ought to be to merit continued existence. It remains for us to prove that this conviction is unwarranted and untrue, to prove that the Borough High School is pecularily adapted to serve the interest of this borough. The acid test for any school is not how many enter but how many, in spite of every temptation and discouragement, remain to graduate. This year, out of a total enrollment of 146, we have lost only three High School pupils; one pupil being dropped; one leaving on account of sickness and one moving out of the district. Can any High School in the State of New Jersey show a better record on enrollment than this? When students like a school, they remain in it, if they possibly can, and students are, in the main, pretty good judges of school efficiency. The facts speak for themselves, let the impartial now decide.

Our graduates are all making good in their various lines of endeavor, whether actually out in the business world or measuring their strength with undergraduates of other schools in various higher institutions of learning.

Ask our High School students, our alumni, our parents and our loyal and public spirited citizens who have at heart the welfare and interest of the borough and its institutions, what they think of the proposition. Give their reply due weight while considering the other factors which enter into this case.

KAISER'S JUBILEE TO BE CELEBRATED

Berlin, June 7.—All of the details have now been arranged for the commemoration of the Kaiser's jubilee. The Germans are determined that the celebration of his 25th year of reign shall be one of the greatest festive events since the creation of the empire. The celebration proper, which will take place the week of June 15, will be preceded by numerous festivities and public functions. The first of these will take place tomorrow, when 30,000 athletes will parade before the Kaiser on the occasion of the dedication of the stadium constructed in the Grunewald race course, outside Berlin, for the Olympic games of 1916. A levee and court attended by all the high civil and military officials will be held Monday, and on each of the following days there will be gala performances in the Berlin theatres.

The celebration will reach its climax on Monday, June 16. On that day all Berlin will celebrate the jubilee with monster processions to the royal palace, and the Kaiser, surrounded by his entire family, will show himself on the balcony, or possibly in the historical corner window, to his loyal Berliner. This will probably be the only occasion during the week of the jubilee when the public at large will have an unrestraicted opportunity to see the Kaiser and to show their appreciation of the man, who during the quarter of a century that he has been on the throne has placed the nation in the front rank of the industrial, commercial and naval, as well as the military Powers of the world.

In anticipation of the celebration Berlin is already becoming filled with visitors from abroad and from the various parts of the empire. The pageantry features of the week will attract nearly 1,000,000 visitors, it is estimated, and citizens are already busy with preparations. These preparations, by the way, include the increase in price of nearly everything that is sold for food, while the price of lodgings and hotel accommodations has increased enormously.

Special envoys, in addition to the regular ambassadors, will be sent by most of the rulers of the world to the celebration. The twenty-five rulers of German States, including the Kings of Saxony, Bavaria and Wurtemburg, will come to Berlin personally to congratulate the ruler of the empire.

The decorations for the jubilee promises to surpass anything of the kind ever seen in the German capitol. It is estimated that not less than $500,000 will be expended on the decoration of the streets and public buildings. The Kaiser himself has designed the color scheme that will be used for the embellishment of Unter den Linden, Pariser Platz, Koenigstrasse, Friedrichstrasse and other of the principal thoroughfares and public squares of the city. The expense of the decorations will be shared by Berlin and the eighty largest cities in Germany.

The Kaiser has intimated that he does not desire to receive personal gifts on the occasion of his jubilee. He asks those who wish to celebrate his reign by gifts to make them to educational, charitable and philanthropic institutions. One notable exception will be made to the rule. The exception will apply to the gift from the imperial army. A committee has been formed under the presidency of General Field Marshal Count von Haeseler, who in the name of the German army will hand to the Kaiser a costly field marshal's baton, to the cost of which every officer of the army has contributed.

The Kaiser will signalize his jubilee by commuting the sentences of many prisoners and pardoning others. He will also grant titles of nobility and will probably record a number of orders and decorations.

The general harmony of the celebrations promises to be disturbed by the discordant note of the Socialists, who are said to be planning to hold immense mass meetings during jubilee week to protest against the increased military and naval expenditures. To offset the effect of these demonstrations the loyalist press is laying great stress on the fact that the Kaiser during his reign of twenty-five years has been one of the strongest peace factors in Europe.

SCORES OF ENTRIES FOR HORSE PARADE

With more than 100 entries already received, the first annual horse parade to be given July 4 under the auspices of the Elizabeth District Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals promises to be a big feature of the safe and sane Independence Day celebration. Lists of the various classes for which prizes and ribbons will be awarded are being sent out to all horse-owners in the county by Dr. F. A. Zucker, superintendent of the society, who as chairman of the committee of arrangements is working hard to make the event a success. By the time July 4 rolls around it is expected that there will be about 500 entries, making the procession one worth going miles to witness.

All horses, mules and ponies in Union county are eligible to participate. According to present arrangements, they will be assembled at the Second Regiment Armory on the morning of July 4, at an hour to be announced later, where the judging will take place prior to the parade. At the conclusion of the procession, the route of which has not yet been fully decided upon, the prizes will be given to the winners. Competent judges of horse flesh will be selected to make the awards in each class.

Aiming to stimulate the owners and drivers to take greater pride in the care and management of their horses and vehicles, the society has decided not to charge any entrance fee as a special inducement for a large number of contestants. Many large supply houses of the country and local merchants and individuals interested in horse-breeding already have donated handsome prizes for the event.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

By FRANCES MARSHALL

Walking as a Summer Exercise.

The fact that American women cannot walk for more than a mile or so without fatigue has long been commented on by foreigners, especially by the English, Scandinavians and the Swiss, with a good deal of contempt. For a few years it has seemed that the so-called athletic girl would make this comment undeserved. But the plentifulness of automobiles and trolley cars and the present use of French heels and thin, pointed shoes for walking bid fair to put the athletic woman in the background.

To be sure, there are and always have been plenty of women who can tramp for many miles a day, and there are many others who systematically and out of choice walk instead of ride when they are going a distance of a mile or so; and, in spite of the alluring display in the shoe-shop windows, there are still women who wear heels sufficiently wide to support the foot and soles sufficiently thick to make walking on rough roads comfortable. And these women and all others ought to make a practice of walking in the summer.

Summer Exercise.

Walking is the least expensive and really the most satisfactory—so far as results are concerned—of all forms of exercise, according to physicians. Moreover, lack of exercise is just as bad in summer as in winter.

It will be worth while to work out a regular schedule for the summer campaign of walking. If it is possible, a short walk, of a mile or two, early in the morning, should be planned. No violent exercise in the sun should be taken in the middle of the day—and walking, to be of best service, should be classed as violent exercise. The rest of the exercise can be mostly pleasantly taken either late in the afternoon or else early in the evening. There is no reason under the sun why walking on summer evenings, as late as 8 or even 9 o'clock, in midsummer should not be indulged in. The air then is cool and clear and refreshing and there is no danger of getting overheated in the sun.

Training Children.

In training children to walk, begin by having them walk a stated distance every day—a quarter of a mile at a time, perhaps, or around the block, or down to the bridge and back, or across the fields to the big willow tree. Let the children keep a distance. Let the children keep a record of their improvement in the distance covered and the time needed to walk a certain distance from week to week. Such a record might prove helpful, even to grown-ups.

Good Form

Announcement Cards.

When a marriage has been celebrated quietly before the immediate family or just a few friends announcement cards are sent to inform others of the ceremony. These are in several forms, the following being the accepted style:

Mr. and Mrs. John Gray announce the marriage of their daughter
Alice to
Mr. Andrew Hall
On Friday, June the sixth,
Nineteen hundred and thirteen,
Saint Mary's Church,
New York.

Often a large visiting card of the bride and groom is inclosed with an announcement. This has the address of the new home and the day at home of the bride.

If there are no relatives to issue an announcement the news can come directly from the happy pair in this manner:

and Miss Alice Gray
announce their marriage on Friday, June the sixth, Nineteen hundred and thirteen,
at Saint Mary's Church,
New York.

Now a few words about recalling wedding invitations. Illness, death or, alas, disagreement between the engaged ones which results in a broken engagement sometimes makes it necessary to recall invitations. Fortunately orders can be filled in a very short time by first class engravers, who are prepared for these events. To every one on the list of names who has been honored with an invitation should be sent a card a little larger than a correspondence card with a message which can be worded like this:

Owing to the sudden death of Mr. John Gray's father, Mr. and Mrs. John Gray beg to recall the cards issued for their daughter's wedding.

Announcement cards require no acknowledgment. Persons who observe strictly the receipt of cards call on the parents, who are the host and hostess, within two weeks of the notice of the wedding. A very gracious thing is the sending to the bride or groom a little note of congratulation. The posting of a visiting card to either one or to both with a phrase expressing sincere good wishes is also correct.

Announcement cards need not be acknowledged by gifts. Your familiarity and wish in this matter should decide. No married couple wish to be interpreted as bidding for presents when they announce their marriage. It is foolish and uncalled for to send a gift when only a slight acquaintance exists. Your sincere good wishes should go with the gift. Without them the most expensive present is worthless.

Letters of Introduction.

Writing a letter of introduction is a task that falls more often to a man than to a woman, but there comes a time in the life of almost every woman when such a letter is a necessity. Perhaps she wants to give it to a friend who is going to a distant city or to a cousin or other relative. But just here a word of caution is necessary—don't be too lavish in giving these letters. Most people are averse to having strangers introduced to them by mere acquaintances. Don't address such letters to any one but intimate friends or give them to Tom, Dick and Harry.

A letter of introduction should be short and straight to the point. Something like this is all that is necessary:

My Dear Mrs. Smith—This letter will introduce to you Miss Dorothy Clark, who is going to spend a month or two in Colorado Springs. She is an intimate friend of mine, and as I want all the people I am very fond of to meet her I am sending her to you.

Any little attention you may extend to her will be gratefully appreciated by me. Cordially yours, MARY BROWN.

Letters of introduction should never be sealed by the person giving them, and if they are not business letters, but simply friendly letters like the foregoing, they are rarely delivered in person, but sealed and sent by the recipient to the man or woman to whom they are addressed together with the card of the recipient on which is written the address of the house where she is stopping. And if you should receive such a letter of introduction from a friend you must call without delay upon the person introduced to you by letter.

Notes of Condolence.

Unfortunately it falls to the lot of all of us to have to write letters of condolence occasionally. And even people with the warmest hearts in the world often dread this duty extremely and, putting it off to the last possible moment, sometimes turn out a stiff and stilted note that inadverently wounds those whom they intended to comfort.

Letters of condolence should be short and simple. Almost all one can say at such a time is to let the friend know that one is deeply sorry and feels for her in her grief. Don't harrow already overwrought feelings by too familiar allusions to the deceased. Such a letter should always be sent shortly after the funeral has taken place. Letters of condolence must be answered by the recipient or by some relative or friend who kindly undertakes the task for the bereaved one.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY'S POULTRY MEN TO MEET

The regular meeting of the Middlesex County Poultry Association will be held Monday evening, June 9, in the Shore Course building, College Farm. The special feature of the evening will be an address by Judge W. H. Card, of Manchester, Conn., secretary of the National Rhode Island Red Club. He will lecture on "Breeds of Poultry." His remarks will be illustrated with crayon. Judge Card is an exceptionally clever artist and a very witty and humorous talker, bringing into his talk many bits of personal experience.

A membership contest also closes at this meeting. To the member proposing the most new names for membership to the association, there is to be given the chicks hatched from fifteen eggs. This prize was offered by the Poultry Department of the Experiment Station, and yesterday eleven Rhode Island Red chicks were hatched from the fifteen eggs set.

—Renting a flat, or house, or other property, is strictly "a classified advertising matter." Any other way of finding tenants is impracticable, costly and—sometimes—impossible.

Some Cookery Suggestions

FOR AFTERNOON TEAS.

LIGHT rolls or buns to serve with afternoon tea or to accompany summer lunches are nice. Sweet buns in which there are plenty of currants go well with berries and for children are preferable to cake.

Tempting Buns.

Sweet Buns.—Dissolve one cake of yeast in one pint of lukewarm water, add flour to make a moderately stiff sponge, let rise, then rub together one-fourth of a pound of butter, one-fourth of a pound of sugar, two eggs, one cupful of warm milk, a little salt and add all to the sponge. Let rise one hour, then mold, put in pans, let rise until light and bake.

Tea Buns.—Place together in a bowl one pound of flour, half a teaspoonful of soda and as much cream of tartar. Mix thoroughly and rub in two ounces of butter till it is quite absorbed. Add a little sugar and a quarter of a pound of currants well washed and dried and a teaspoonful of caraway seed. Beat an egg into a pint of milk and mix with the other ingredients. Place the dough in small lumps on buttered baking tins and bake in a hot oven.

Rice Muffins.—Into a quart of flour mix one teaspoonful each of salt and baking soda and two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar. Add two tablespoonfuls of sifted crushed loaf sugar and stir in by degrees two eggs beaten up in a breakfast cupful of milk and work until the paste is light and smooth. Then add two breakfast cupfuls of cold boiled rice. Turn into well buttered tins and bake in a brisk oven. These are equally good hot or cold.

Spiced Rolls.

Cinnamon Rolls.—Cream one tablespoonful of butter mixed with a half cupful of brown sugar, add two eggs, one cupful of milk and two teaspoonfuls baking powder sifted with enough flour to make a dough easily handled. Roll half an inch thick, sprinkle with cinnamon and roll dough up same as jelly roll. Then slice off pieces from this roll about three-fourths of an inch thick. Sprinkle granulated sugar over the slices and bake in moderate oven.

Coffee Cake.—Take one teaspoonful of brown sugar and the same quantity of golden sirup, half a teacupful of butter, one cupful of very strong coffee—all sediment being carefully removed—two eggs, a cupful of currants, the same quantity of stoned raisins, a quarter of a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, half a teaspoonful of ground cloves, the same of cinnamon, a teaspoonful of carbonate of soda and sufficient flour to bind the ingredients, which must be well mixed. Put the dough into a buttered cake tin and bake in a quick oven for one hour.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Little Radish That Knew Her Place.

Mrs. Brown Pulled the Radish.

ONIONS? Evelyn turned up her small pink nose when daddy said he would tell her and Jack a story about an onion and a radish.

"They grew in Mrs. Brown's garden, side by side, under the ground where the earth was rich and soft," daddy began.

"The onion and radish were very great friends, and they were happy and contented until the little onion one day poked the tip of its little green nose above the ground and got a glimpse of the big old garden.

"'It's very dull underground,' the onion said. 'The garden is very beautiful. It is warm and light and sunny. Let us hurry and grow up there.'

"But the little radish said: 'Oh, no; it is not our place to grow up into the light. Let us stay down here where we belong. There is plenty of work for us to do here.'

"But the onion muttered something about 'stupids that were willing to stick at home and never see the world' and went on pushing his way through the earth to the light. Day after day it kept on growing upward until at last its green tops fluttered in the sunlight and it was happy and proud of the interest the bees and insects seemed to take in it.

"Meantime the radish was grubbing along underground, working as hard as it could, while its friend was having such a good time in the sunshine. Though it worked so hard it daily grew more round and fat and red.

"One day Mrs. Brown came out into the garden to look for vegetables. She was going to make a salad. When she noticed the long green tops of the onion she said, 'There is the very thing I need,' and she pulled it out of the ground.

"'Ah, it isn't any good, after all!' she exclaimed as she saw that there was nothing to the onion but its green top, which would be no use in her salad.

"So she threw the onion out into the pigs' trough, and I believe even the pigs didn't care much for it.

"Meanwhile the little radish kept on growing, and one day when Mrs. Brown wanted some radishes she went out and dug the brown earth away from it and pulled it up. It was a fine plump pink vegetable, and Mrs. Brown was much pleased with it.

"'It is like some people, the little radish is,' said Mrs. Brown; 'better than it seems to be at first glance.'

"And the radish tasted so much better than it looked that Mr. Brown praised the salad in which it was served.

"'Ah,' said the little radish, 'I may not have seen so much of the world and had so good a time as my friend, the onion, but I've been of some use, and this is a much better end than being thrown into the pigpen.'"

The New England League is certainly running a tight race this season. Only one game was played in the league the other day, but as a result thereof half of the teams in the circuit changed their positions.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Query—Will you please publish the date when the Giants next play at the Polo Grounds, also when they next play a double header at home. —G. W.

Answer—The Giants return from their Western trip June 23 and the first home game will be played Tuesday afternoon, June 24, with Philadelphia. The National Commission sets the date for double headers and should there be any postponed games to play off when the Giants return to the Polo Grounds it is more than likely that there will be a double attraction the first Saturday, June 28.

Query—I am about to engage in the real estate business and will require a notary public's commission. To whom will I apply for one and what is the commission?—N. M.

Answer—Apply to Governor Fielder, State House, Trenton. The fee is $5. Enclose money order with application.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Can you solve this puzzle for me? A says it can be done, B says it cannot. A cannot do it himself, by the way. This is it: Put a rope around four posts and across the center without cutting it. I have tried it so much I am walking a rope in my dreams.—K. L. C.

Answer You can't get me to acquire any somnambulistic habits. The stunt you mention cannot be done, I know because I used to try it "years ago." But if you insist you may keep it up. Take this tip though: Use a pencil and a piece of paper for your experiments, the problem remains the same and all you lose is the fresh air you'd get marching around the poles.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, larger than New York city? —G. H.

Answer—How long have you been over? Decidedly not.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Kindly tell me where I can secure some information regarding the Lawrenceville Preparatory School. —J. M.

Answer—Write to the Superintendent of the School, addressing the Lawrenceville Preparatory School, Lawrenceville, N. J.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Kindly let me know when the basketball season officially opens? G. L. H.

Answer—Like baseball and football, the basketball season does not have an official opening date, but amateur, collegiate and professional quintets open informally. As the football season closes on Thanksgiving Day, the various basketball teams usually start their schedules the following Saturday or about December 1.

BASEBALL NOTES

Max Carey, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is well up in the list of National League base-stealers and run-getters.

Brief, of the Browns, batted safely in sixteen straight games, while subbing for Manager Stovall at first base.

Followers of the White Sox declare that "Lefty" Russell will prove to be the greatest recruit pitcher of the year.

The St. Louis Cardinals are the only team in the National League having as many as four players batting for .300 or better.

McGraw's Giants have suffered two serious loses in batting leaders, both Doyle and Meyers having fallen out of the .300 list.

Catcher Bert Whaling looks to be one of the greatest finds of the year. He is a fine performer behind the plate and a good batsman.

George McGuillan, the old Philadelphia pitcher, has been doing so well with the Columbus team that big league scouts are trailing him.

It has long been a baseball custom to designate a day and celebrate in honor of some veteran of the game and now the youngsters are to have their innings. New York is to have a "Keating Day" and Boston will stage a "Maranville Day."

As the other National League teams are now speeding up a bit, the Phillies and the Superbas will have to go some in order to remain out in front.

Jake Gettman, who starred in the old Eastern League for several years, is doing his old-time heavy clouting with the Hastings Nebraska State League team.

The Cleveland Naps have had a little something on Washington and the Red Sox so far, and look to be the team that will give the Athletics a run for the American League bunting.

Milan, who led the American League base-stealers last season, is topping the bunch again this year, while Bescher, National League leader last season, ranks seventh at the present time.

Pitcher Orvie Overall can line up with the real "comebacks." He is getting better with every game and his recent showing indicates that he will win a lot of games for the Cubs this year.

Manager Miller Huggins is doing his share of work in boosting his Cardinals up the ladder. He is hitting well over .300 and stands at the top of the National League's list of run-getters.

Davy Jones will no doubt strengthen Topsy Hartsel's Mud Hens. The Hens have been going badly this season, and sorely needed a player of the caliber of the old Detroit outfielder, to brace up.

GOOD'S HOMER WON SCHOLASTIC TITLE

Captain Monroe Good's home run, the second of the game, coming in the tenth inning of the scheduled interscholastic clash between the Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools on Parker Field yesterday afternoon brought the Collier loving cup offered by Paul R. Collier for competition in the league, to the Plainfield High School boys, the final score being 4 to 3. Up to the closing innings the game had been a listless fight, neither team showing evidences of real baseball, but things began to take on a serious aspect in the seventh inning, N. P. H. S. being brought to realize that they really had a chance to win, while the P. H. S. boys became convinced, although rather late in the argument, that the boroughites were outclassing them in all around play. Both pitchers weakened in several instances, but on the whole the opposing box artists were pretty evenly matched. Spencer had to contend with several discouraging slip-ups and wild heaves which were anything but excusable, while Matty Coughlan's support was gilt edged for the most part, the five errors being made behind him, being of the farcial variety.

By some good batting and base running in the third inning N. P. H. S. pulled out a one run lead over the Plainfielders making the score 2 to 1, P. H. S. having garnered a counter in the second round and the loyal borough cohorts were given cause to go wild over the incident. In the next stanza, however, the locals secured a counter and things remained in this condition until the seventh when Good pounded out a circuit clout and Conroy pulled a borough tally across by smashing out a two bagger scoring Townley who was running for Newt Spencer.

Although a vanquished aggregation, the North Plainfield team deserves a lion's share of the credit forthcoming from a battle of this kind for their efforts to down the fast going P. H. S. nine were anything but unfruitful. Going on the field a 5 to 1 favorite the locals thought they had the game sewed up but when they tried to tease the boroughites in the early stages, the latter took the matter seriously and began to gain counters at the expense of the Plainfielders' fool-hardiness. While Spencer was treated to his bumps at times, he also did his share of the starring. His hit presentations were exactly the same as those of Matty Coughlan, while six batters on each side whiffed the atmosphere, which by the way was great for the game of baseball. Although a trifle over anxious at times, he was not a bit less steady than Coughlan who balked and walked two, against Spencer's four free trips.

Rosenson and Good weilded the willow to good advantage for the Plainfielders each getting a pair, while the boroughites' bingle garnering was pretty evenly divided up. When the score books of the respective scorers are compared there seems to be a wide divergence of opinion existing and in some cases a player is getting a whole lot more than he deserves while in others it is just the reverse. A feature of this sort is deplorable but it is up to the High School officials to get together and remedy it.

First Soldier Killed a Pennsylvanian - Death of Reynolds - Stories of John Burns and Jennie Wade - Meeting of General Gordon and General Barlow - Gloomy Day for Union Army.

GETTYSBURG has an immortal place in history because it was there fifty years ago that one of the greatest battles of the world was fought; it was there that the greatest conflict of the Civil War occurred; it was there that took place the only engagement north of the Mason and Dixon's line; it was there it has been conceded, that the Confederacy met its most effectual check, for from that time on its fate though delayed was certain; and it is for these and other reasons it is fitting that it should be there that private and public bounty should be more generous in perpetuating the memories of that field of carnage than any other of that great strife between brothers.

It ministers to the pride of one as well as saves that of the other that the turning point in that terrific struggle between the States should be located on the north of that historic line which divided the slave States from the free Commonwealths. To the North it means that an invasion by the foe has been repelled, while to the South there is consolation in the fact that the decisive battle of the war which sealed their fate was not fought on the battle-scarred soil of the Old Dominion.

After Chancellorsville, Lee and his council of war determined to invade the North, and in a few weeks he was over-running southern Pennsylvania between Chambersburg and Harrisburg. The Army of the Potomac followed him to check his onward march and after some manoeuvering portions of the two armies met just north of the city of Gettysburg—the Confederates coming in from the North, while the Union forces were to the south, and it is said that this is the only time in the Civil War when the two armies stood opposing each other with the Southern troops coming into the engagement from the north. Lee and his army were cut off from retreat into Virginia by the Federal Army to the South of them. On June 28th, Private George Sandoe, a member of a volunteer cavalry regiment from the State of Pennsylvania, went down before a Confederate bullet when on scout duty—the first man killed at Gettysburg.

The night of June 30th passed peacefully, but early on the morning of July 1st, it became evident that a battle was imminent. The troops were then in the positions shown by the accompanying map. Buford was early in the saddle and he watched eagerly for the Confederates to disclose their purpose. He had not long to wait for shortly before ten o'clock there was a shot from the enemy which was returned by the Union forces—three shots being fired as the signal for a general engagement along the line, and the Battle of Gettysburg was on.

It is not the purpose of the writer to give a technical or even a general description of the movements or manoeuvering of the two armies, but merely to relate incidents of that fearful carnage. The tragic death of General John F. Reynolds occurred less than an hour after the beginning of the battle. The best account of this has been given by a member of the Union Army Signal Corps. He was watching from the tower of the Theological Seminary, on the edge of the town. "The engagement was desperate," he declared, "and the Union forces seemed to be getting the worst of it when I suddenly saw the corps flag of General Reynolds. I had no one to communicate with so I sent one of my men to Buford, who rushed up and seized my glasses, and on seeing Reynolds said, 'Now we can hold the place.' Very shortly after this General Reynolds and his staff came up and seeing Buford in the cupola he cried out 'What's the matter, John?' 'The devil's to pay!' and going down the ladder he met General Reynolds, who said, "I hope you can hold out until my corps comes up.' 'I reckon I can,' was Buford's reply. Reynolds then suggested that they ride out and see about it. "General, do not expose yourself too much," said Buford, but Reynolds laughed and moved nearer still. After giving some directions to Buford, which showed his determination to concentrate and to fight, General Reynolds again mounted his horse and rode away to meet the head of his column. The woods at this time was full of Confederate sharp-shooters who were picking off men here and there. When General Reynolds, accompanied by his aides, Captains Mitchell and Baird and Orderly Charles H. Veil, rode up one of the Union regiments was approaching the woods. Reynolds exclaimed, 'Forward, men, forward for God's sake, and drive those fellows out of the woods!' He turned to look for his supports and to hurry them on, but before he could speak again the bullet of a sharpshooter had penetrated his brain and he fell forward, dying, upon his horse. His fall was not noticed by the troops who swept on and compelled Archer's brigade to surrender. General Reynolds' horse carried the body a short distance, when it was borne to the rear in a blanket just as Archer himself was being brought in a prisoner." The death of General Reynolds was a severe blow to the Union forces, and no casualty of the war brought more widespread mourning. A splendid statue has been erected to his memory near the spot where he fell. It will be noted that in this statue the horse has two feet off the ground, which indicates that its rider was killed. Statues on the field at Gettysburg where the horse has one foot off the ground indicate that the rider was wounded, while those having all four feet on the ground show that the rider escaped unhurt.

Even the death of General Reynolds could not stay the fury of the battle. General Abner Doubleday succeeded to the command of the First Corps. By one o'clock both sides had been greatly reinforced and the line of battle extended north of the town from Seminary Ridge to the banks of Rock Creek. About the middle of the afternoon the Union troops were being pressed back towards Gettysburg and five thousand men under the command of General Carl Shurz had been captured, nearly half of the right wing of the Union forces were either dead or wounded and the left wing had been forced to take refuge on Cemetery Ridge.

It was in the first day's battle that the old Constable John Burns made his appearance. This man has the distinction of being the only civilian who fought in the Battle of Gettysburg. He was born in New Jersey and was of Scotch parentage. He had as a mere boy served in the War of 1812, fighting against the British, and at the opening of the Civil War he tried to enlist but was declared too old. He became a constable of Gettysburg in 1862, and when the battle occurred he was in a fighting mood. After the first hour of battle Burns secured a gun from a wounded soldier and filling his pockets with cartridges rushed through the Union lines and begged permission to fight. His offer was accepted and he was ordered to the woods, but this was not to his liking and he persisted in going forward on the skirmish line. He was known to his friends as a dead shot and he picked off whomever of the Confederates he selected. During the battle he was wounded three times and left for dead on the field by the hospital corps. He finally dragged himself to a log house and fainted at the door. Later he was recognized and sent home where under his wife's care he recovered and lived until 1872. A splendid monument has been erected to his memory by the citizens of Gettysburg. It stands on Stone Avenue and shows the old man with his gun in his hand and in the costume he wore during the battle—baggy trousers and a swallow-tailed coat.

The only civilian killed during the Battle of Gettysburg met death on the first day. It was a young girl by the name of Jennie Wade. As the wounded soldiers were being brought into town it was discovered that the food supply was running short and several of the Gettysburg women began to bake bread. Jennie Wade who lived in a modest home on Baltimore Street, was one of them. All day long she worked, the bread being given to friend and foe alike. During the progress of the fight her home came in exact range of the two lines of battle and she was admonished to leave it but refused and continued her work. Just before the first day's battle ended a stray bullet pierced her heart and the girl fell dead in the kitchen of her home. At about the same hour a Confederate officer of high rank was killed near the house and his comrades were preparing a coffin for him, but before it was completed they were compelled to leave and the body of the dead girl was buried in the coffin intended for the Southerner. She was interred in the Citizen's cemetery at Gettysburg and a beautiful monument has been erected over her grave. It is said that both her father and her lover were fighting on the Union side at the time she met her death, and that her father was killed in the engagement.

One of the curious incidents of the first day's battle was that neither of the commanding officers desired to have the battle take place at Gettysburg. General Meade was anxious to fight at Pipe Creek, and General Lee desired to meet the Union forces at Cashtown, but the battle focused near Gettysburg. The colored population were in a state of panic, for they had been taught to believe that they would be totally annihilated when "the rebels" arrived, and many of them managed to get farther North, dragging all their earthly belongings with them. An old resident of the town tells how he saw the negroes moving, and how when the little children did not walk rapidly enough their mothers would say, "Fo, de Lord sake, you chillun come right 'long quick! If dem Rebs dun kotch you dey tear you all up!" The warning usually had the desired effect with the thoroughly frightened pickaninnies. However, when the Confederates came it was found that they wanted food, money and horses and that little attention was paid to the colored people who remained in the town.

At one time during the battle General Gordon, of Georgia, had charged across Rock Creek and reached the summit of a hill now known as Barlow's Knoll. He observed a Union officer of high rank lying on the ground. He dismounted and finding the officer was General Barlow he asked if he could do anything for him. Barlow declared that he was dying and expressed a wish to see his wife before death came. General Gordon rode away and dispatched a messenger to Mrs. Barlow, who was staying at the Eleventh Corps' headquarters. She was conducted through the Confederate lines and found her husband still alive on the field. She had him taken to the Bender home nearby, where by her careful nursing he recovered. Twenty years after the battle General Gordon and General Barlow met at a banquet in Washington:

"Are you any relation to General Barlow who was killed at Gettysburg?"

"Yes. I am the man," answered Barlow. "Are you any relation to the General Gordon who was reported dead at Gettysburg?"

General Gordon was under the impression that Barlow had died soon after he left him on the field, and as there was a General Gordon of the Confederate army killed each thought the other dead.

The first day's fight was a gloomy one for the Union forces, and had the Confederates known of the complete disorganization of the Federal troops they might have pursued and captured a large part of the army. General Meade was several miles from the field when he received the news of the death of Reynolds. He at once sent Hancock to take general charge until he himself should arrive. General Hancock came on the field late in the afternoon and his presence had a tendency to cheer the fallen spirits of the men. He assured them that reinforcements would arrive during the night and that victory was surely in sight on the morrow.

Thus ended the first day's fight on that great battlefield, hours before the arrival of General Meade, and had it been all to tell of Gettysburg, another defeat of the Army of the Potomac by Lee's gallant sons of the South would have been added to the many which had preceded it. But both of the commanding Generals decided to continue the engagement there, and orders were issued to gather in their respective outlying forces for the terrible carnage which would follow on the morrow's morn. Lee had lost Jackson at Chancellorsville—perhaps the greatest Corps Commander the world has ever known, and there was no one to take his place. Stuart for some unaccountable reason had failed to appear on that day and his exact whereabouts were unknown. But Meade had gathered in all his available forces and the two armies rested that night within a short distance of each other waiting the coming of the dawn, when the trumpets should sound the roll-call for the day—the last one on earth to many thousands of those brave soldiers who on that beautiful July day were to go to their final roll-call beyond the grave.

Making Flags for Our Navy

Laying Out a Chinese Flag With Its Dragon Center

A Completed Flag

Pressing a Large American Flag

IF it has ever been your good fortune to enter a foreign port when an American man-of-war was anchoring there dressed for some holiday in all its regalia of flags, pennants and bunting, each having its appropriate meaning, you have seen flying proudly among them the Stars and Stripes—the most conspicuous and beautiful of them all. Whatever your national pride may be on such an occasion you probably do not know where, by whom and under what circumstances these emblems of nationality are made, and that back in your native land there is a body of faithful and skillful women whose labor and good taste are producing this part of the equipment of our battleships.

The manufacture of flags is, perhaps, the most picturesque work done for the Navy by women. Flag making is interesting everywhere, but especially so on the third floor of the Equipment Building in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, where all the flags flying on our battleships are made. Mr. Thos. Maloy is the master flagmaker, but the general work is in charge of Miss Mary Woods. This lady came to the flag room in 1882, when only three or four women were at work. She does the best part of the marking and cutting and is unusually celev in making patterns for foreign flags, many of which contain the queerest and most fantastic figures.

During the working hours the room is a perfect riot of color, for piles of bunting of every conceivable shade are all about. Between forty and fifty expert needlewomen are employed, their wages ranging from $1.52 to $2.50 per day. All flags are cut from measurements, and the large ones are laid on the floor for that purpose and marked off with chalk. It is remarkable with what accuracy these women work, for there is rarely the variation of a fraction of an inch in the lots of several hundred flags ordered of one size.

The material used is purchased by sealed proposals and one year alone $50,000.00 worth of material was consumed, the quantity of bunting made up that year being one hundred and twenty-one thousand yards. About $20,000.00 was paid out for labor during the year. All the material must stand the [illegible]ing test, which means soaking [illegible] washing in soap and water [illegible]rd being exposed to the b[illegible] several days. It must [illegible]ngth test as well and not tear under moderate weight. the flags are all made of bunting, although some silk is used in carrying out the designs in many of the foreign flags. An American battleship carries the flags of all nations and her equipment in this line consists of two hundred and fifty-five flags. These emblems cost the Government about $2,500.00. The flags used on each battleship fill a large sized delivery wagon.

The largest flag made is 36x19 feet, and the smallest one 36x19 inches. The Stars and Stripes are turned out in nine different sizes, and being simple in construction these flags require very little handsewing. The stars are cut with a machine known as a plunger and is operated by one of the five men employed to do the heavy work. The President's flag takes the longest time to make of any of the American emblems and is made in two sizes—14x10 feet and 5x8 feet. It consists of a dark blue background with the coat of arms of the United States in the center. The eagle must be embroidered by hand in silk—the most delicate and dainty workmanship being required. Several women are employed, whose sole duty is to embroider certain parts of flags. The silk used on the Presidential emblem costs the Government nine dollars per pound. The pressing of a flag, too, requires a skillful hand for each and every part must be clear of wrinkles and the embroidery must be pressed in such a fashion as to make the embroidered figure "stand out." "This is no place for unskilled labor, I can assure you," said one of the pressers. "Of course, we use electric irons, but one must be exceedingly careful, for a scorched flag would not go, and as this is practically the finishing touch to the work just think of the loss in having to remake the flag, or at least replace the scorched part."

Some of the foreign flags are both difficult to make and costly as well, for the material used in them is far more expensive than that used for our own flags. In many instances the smaller the country the more costly the flag. This is exemplified in the case of both the Costa Rican and San Salvador emblems. The flag of the former contains two hundred and thirty-eight pieces and requires the labor of several women in its construction, while that of the latter country is the most expensive of all the foreign flags manufactured, costing about $52.50 per flag. Some of the foreign standards have to be made entirely by hand and the fitting of the figures is tedious work, but no matter how difficult the task Miss Woods and her assistants manage to put out perfect flags for all nations.

A rather humorous incident is told by a naval officer which proves how up-to-date the flagmakers really are, as well as how the United States Government is prompt in having flags ready for all occasions. As the story goes, shortly after the birth of a South American Republic a few years ago one of our battleships steamed into port of that country. She ran up the flag of the new Republic and saluted. Much to the surprise of the officers the salute was not returned. Finally, a small boat was seen approaching the battleship and a few minutes later an officer came on board begging the loan of the flag of the new Republic, for as yet they had none at the fort. The captain ordered the emblem given to the man and a few minutes after the little boat reached shore the American salute was returned with the borrowed flag waving over the ramparts of the fort. Before the flag was returned hundreds of natives came to view for the first time the new standard of their country which had been manufactured in Brooklyn.

The Siamese flag which has a white elephant in the center requires skillful needlework, for in the better class of flags the elephant must be embroidered in white silk. The emblem of the new Republic of Portugal also contains some rather expensive hand embroidery. The Moorish flag is the cheapest of all foreign flags and costs about twenty-one dollars.

In making these emblems of other lands it is sometimes necessary to have the silks and bunting dyed, for the exact shades are rarely obtainable. Of course, a shade darker or a shade lighter, even though it would pass unnoticed by the average person, would not pass for every flag must be absolutely perfect in shading as well as in workmanship, no matter what the labor or expense may be. As each flag is finished it is marked with the number of the contract lot and stamped with the name of the country it represents. All the portiers, porthole and berth curtains for the ships are cut, hemmed and finished in the flag room. These are made of linen velour. The table linen, cloths and napkins for the Navy are woven at Belfast, Ireland, and have the coat of arms of the United States in the center. They are sent to the flag room to be cut and hemmed. Ninety thousand yards of Russian crash is imported at a time to be used for dish cloths on shipboard, and these, too, are finished in this room together with the thousands of towels used on the men-of-war. Table covers for the officers' quarters are made of heavy felt cloth embroidered in silk. This embroidery is done by a woman who uses a sewing machine especially adapted for this purpose. The cloths cost the Government sixteen dollars apiece. The price of the same article when made on the outside is forty dollars. The letters for the baseball suits are cut out and sewed on by the flagmakers. The making of skylight blinds and the repairing of the flags also come under the [illegible] room.

TWO GUILTY ONES GET TERMS OF THREE MOS. EACH

Somerville, June 9.—Joe Sugar, who was convicted in the Somerset County Courts two weeks ago of stealing a quantity of lead pipe, etc., from the residences of Emile Robiole, on Gaston avenue, was sentenced on Saturday to three months in the county jail. His counsel, former Judge Case, made an earnest plea for clemency on behalf of his client, but Judge Beekman said that as he had stood trial, thus putting the county to considerable expense, and as the crime he was convicted of was a serious one, he was compelled to impose the sentence he did.

Edward J. Hallinger, of Harlingen, convicted of embezzlement and larceny, was also sentenced to three months in the county jail. Hallinger had been employed by a woman at Belle Mead to conduct a meat market, and it was claimed that the venture was a failure because Hallinger made off with nearly all of the money which she had invested.

Edward Holeman, of North Branch, pleaded guilty to the change of stealing a horse and wagon from the estate of J. B. Duke, where he was formerly employed. He was placed under $1,000 bail to appear for sentence next Friday.

LOCAL SONS OF ELI HELD ANNUAL DINNER

"Rooters" Returning From Yale-Princeton Baseball Game Entertained.

A more appropriate time than Saturday night could not have been selected to hold the annual dinner of the Plainfield Yale Club, for the merry-makers provided amusement and not a little college spirit for a large number of those who stopped at Pedeflous' on their way home from the Princeton-Yale baseball game. The program of the local Yale Club was an informal one and all of the graduates and friends of Old Eli who stopped at the mountain resort long enough to eat dinner were treated to a recital of college songs and yells which were sung and shouted in a reminiscent way by the Plainfield graduates who were enjoying their annual get-together affair.

Intermingled with the Yale "rooters" were many Tiger cohorts and they did a lot of speculating on what might have happened had the Yale-Princeton game been finished, instead of ending as it did in a scoreless tie, rain having inteferred at the expiration of five innings. Owing to the large number of guests at the resort the Plainfield organization's dinner was held up for some time and while waiting the members rehearsed college pranks and dwelt on the oft-told campus tales, this part of the evening adding much enjoyment.

Before and after the banquet was served a number of informal speeches and piano selections were rendered, all of which were greatly appreciated. Frederick W. Yates acted as toastmaster and during the evening presented Louis A. Williams, Jr., with a silver loving cup as an appreciation of the members of the club, Mr. Williams having been the club president since 1904. About forty local graduates attended the dinner, going to the place in automobiles.

MISS BATES BRIDE OF WILLIAM WYKE

Their Wedding Takes Place Quietly at Monroe Ave. M. E. Parsonage.

E. church, by Rev. Frederick J. Hubach, the pastor.

The bride arrived in this country on Saturday, being met in New York by Mr. Wyke and immediately came to Plainfield to be married. The ceremony was the culmination of a romance begun in England, where the bride and groom lived as boy and girl. Mr. Wyke came to this country some time ago and later it was arranged for the young woman to follow him here and be married.

The couple was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Sweetman, of 739 West Third street, who acted as bridesmaid and best man. After the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the groom. Mr. Wyke is employed in this city as a machinist.

STRIKERS RETURN AFTER AGREEMENT

Electrical Workers' Demands Will Be Met by Employers on July 14.

UNION'S STATEMENT

Apprentices Eliminated — Edward Craig Alone Does Not Agree—The Men Have Returned to Work and All is Peaceful.

The Electrical Workers' Union, local 262, whose district includes Plainfield, Bound Brook and Somerville, settled its differences with the masters Saturday night and the strike which had been in progress for several days was called off. The journeymen returned to work today. By the terms of the settlement which was reached after a long conference, the journeymen will receive an increase of twenty-five cents a day, from $4 to $4.25 and on July 14, they will receive an additional increase of twenty-five cents, making the rate $4.50 for an eight-hour day. The demands for the apprentices was eliminated from the controversy, it being agreed that they are not under the jurisdiction of the union during their first year. It is understood that all of the masters, except Edward Craig, signed the agreement.

William Lunger, the agent for the Building Trades Council, who was authorized to make the official announcement for the journeymen, issued the following today:

"Electrical Workers, local 262, which district takes in Plainfield, Bound Brook and Somerville, came to an agreeable settlement with the master electricians Saturday night, following the strike which began June 2, because the masters would not sign a new yearly agreement as in previous years. The trouble was largely due to the fact that a master employed another master to assist in wiring a house, whereas he should have employed an electrician a member of the union.

"This was contrary to the rules of the Building Trades Council composed of various crafts. In the absence of myself, Delegates W. H. Harding and Eugene V. Lorton were notified and advised the men on buildings to stop work until the matter was settled. This condition existed at the new hospital building and the men were called off the work there.

"A joint meeting of the board of arbitration was called for Friday night, and after a long session arrangements were made to have the master electricians meet with the board Saturday afternoon. At that time a new agreement was taken up. After several hours' deliberation the masters conceded the point in dispute about wages, and as a result all buildings and work affected was again declared 'fair,' and work was resumed this morning.

"The members of the electrical union, through the Building Trades Council, wish to express their thanks and appreciation to the joint board for giving its valuable time to settle the dspuite, and believe that the public should appreciate this work, as a result of which the city is kept free from so-called labor trouble as experienced in other cities. The Buildings Trades Council also extends its thanks to the masters for their cooperation and interest in dealing with the journeymen."

VARIETY SHOWER FOR MRS. BUELAH WATERS

Mrs. Edward O. Clark, 120 Watchung avenue, the borough, gave a variety "shower" at her home Saturday afternoon, in honor of Mrs. Beulah Waters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Erwin Waters, who will be married on Wednesday to Joseph C. Blimm, of Darrow avenue. Mrs. Waters received a large number of gifts from relatives and friends. They were placed in a large basket, which bore the words, "Matrimonial Basket," and were brought into the parlors by Katherine Clark, the young daughter of Mrs. Clark. The opening of the packages afforded lots of fun for the guests and pleasure for Mrs. Waters. The home was attractively decorated with roses.

During the afternoon the guests played "500." Mrs. Mabel Geer received first prize, Mrs. George Monck, second prize, while Mrs. Harry Blimm was awarded the consolation prize. After the game refreshments were served. Mrs. Waters and Mr. Blimm plan to be married in New York on Wednesday and after a trip will reside in this city. Mr. Blimm is engaged in the grocery business on East Third street.

ITALIAN ON TRIAL AS A MURDERER

Papalillo, Who Stabbed to Death Deers, a Colored Man, Faces Jury.

DISPUTE OVER DOLLAR

Expected That Prisoner Will Know His Fate in Forty-eight Hours—Bergen and Connolly Are on the Bench.

Mateio Papalillo, of 213 West Third street, twenty-nine years old, the alleged murderer of Thomas Deers, colored, of 217 West Third street, today began his fight to save himself from the electric chair and he will probably know his fate within forty-eight hours. The trial, which was started this morning before Supreme Court Justice J. A. Bergen sitting with Judge James C. Connolly, of the Union County Courts, in Elizabeth, is being rushed with all possible speed. Prosecutor Stein and Assistant Prosecutor O'Connor represent the State and will ask for a verdict of first degree murder. Victor D'Aloia, of Newark, is counsel for the defense.

Two Elizabethians selected to do jury duty were dismissed because of their statements that they were strongly opposed to capital punishment. Charles Ball, of Fanwood, is foreman of the jury. Other jurors are Raymond C. Burdick, George Davie and Albert Nedley, all of this city, and Robert Elderton, of Westfield.

Harry Van Emburgh, C. E., appearing as a witness for the State, produced plans and specifications of the property where the alleged murder took place Saturday, April 12, and Frank C. Langhorne, a local photographer, presented pictures of the scene of the crime and photographs of the murdered Deers, showing the stab wounds in his stomach.

Salvatore Del Docio told conflicting stories. He was regarded as a strong witness for the State judging from his tatements made directly after the death of Deers.

Papalillo presented an appearance of stolid indifference. He was arrested by Detective-Sergeant Flynn directly after a quarrel over house rents involving a matter of $1. According to the police Papalillo stabbed Deers several times in the stomach. The latter died in Muhlenberg Hospial four hours after the attack. Before his demise the colored man made a statement charging and identifying Papalillo with the crime.

RESISTED POLICE CHIEF AND WAS NEARLY CHOKED TO DEATH

Charged with drunkeness and resisting arrest, Fred Orr, of Grove street, was banished from town by Recorder Gano in the borough court, this morning. Orr, who is an habitual drunkard, came here for treatment at a local sanitorium some months ago, and was discharged from that institution a short time ago, when it was thought that he was eintirely cured. Preferring to stay in North Plainfield rather than to return to New York, Orr was given work at the sanitorium and lived in a house on Grove street with his wife, who came here from the city.

Of late Orr had been drinking heavily again and the house on Grove street became an annoyance, so frequent were the fights between him and his wife, which disturbed the whole neighborhood. It was while in a drunken rage last night that Orr assaulted his wife and Chief Weiss, of the borough, was summoned to the scene. When he saw the policeman, Orr made a rush for him and a fight lasting for nearly fifteen minutes followed, during which the police chief nearly choked the man to death in subduing him. He finally put the "nippers" on Orr, however, and in the borough court this morning Orr was penitent. His wife was sent from the city yesterday and he followed after Recorder Gano's ruling this morning.

MRS. MORRELL ENTERTAINS.

The Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church, held its last meeting of the season, Friday afternoon, when the members were entertained at the home of Mrs. A. M. Morrell, on Madison avenue. The young women spent part of the time sewing and the rest in a social way, during which Mrs. Morell served refreshments. The delightful hospitality of the hostess was a feature.

FUNERAL OF MRS. BRANCH.

The funeral service of Mrs. Edna Branch, colored, who died at Winchester, Mass., on Friday last, was held yesterday afternoon at the Mt. Olive Baptist church. Rev. Dr. M. W. Vaughan officiated. The burial was in the Methodist cemetery on Plainfield avenue.

HORSE SHOW END IS SPECTACULAR

TRACK WAS MUDDY

The judging of the various championship classes, together with the showy military mounts and the hunting and jumping classes made the closing day of the Plainfield horse show on Saturday one of especial interest to the large crowd. Just as the judging of the championship classes began a severe thunder storm threatened to stop the show, but notwithstanding the heeavy downpour, the judging was continued, although not without some diffculty and inconvenience to the patrons. All found ample shelter in the grand stand, but there was more or less sympathy expressed for those compelled to exhibit their entries, as well as the judges.

The one surprise of the afternoon, perhaps, was the winning of the championship saddle class for horses 15.2 and under, by Miss H. D. Atterbury's Nickel Plate, Miss Cynthia Kearney's Dixie being obliged to take the reserve. Miss Atterbury's gray gelding did not appear until this class was called, and upset the opinions of those who had counted on Dixie to win this premier honor. Nickel Plate also defeated such entries as Sultana, Kildare, Poetry and March Winds, all good ones, and made him eligible to compete for the championship.

Broadlawn Farm's fine entry, The Whip, won the championship saddle class for horses under 15.2, in competition with Edward B. McLean's Aaron, Highstep and Pall Mall. The reserve went to Aaron. In the champion harness class, William Ziegler, Jr.'s The Pilot, won a notable victory in taking the blue, A. W. Atkinson's Corinna being awarded the reserve.

Perhaps the greatest local interest was in the champion hunting and jumping classes, especially that for the Watchung Hunt Club cup. Mrs. Brown Rolston with Sister Brown, finally came into complete ownership of this cup, having won it three times, and she received a generous round of applause. Lion Heart and Merry Widow, with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. O'Donohue in the saddle, all gave fine performances in these jumping classes, while John Schuyler Casey with Foxy Foot won the admiration of the crowd

The jumping was attended with more or less risk, for the track was a sea of mud following the shower, but fortunately there were no accidents of any serious consequence. S. Bryce Wing's Alarm took the blue in the champion hunter class; also the blue in the Corinthian class for hunters and jumpers.

The Plainfield Riding and Driving Club's challenge cup was won by Broadlawn Farm's chestnut mare, The Whip, with Mr. McLean's Aaron second. All of these decisions seemed popular, judging by the applause.

The military mounts were interesting. It the class for officers' chargers, Alden S. Blodgett's Justice took the blue, with Major F. B. Barrett's Artillery second, and H. L. Watson, of West Point, with Chesapeake third. Justice took another blue in Class 53 for militia mounts, with Artillery second, while in the military jumping classes, the Essex Troop, First Cavalry entry, captured the blue, with Calvary and Justice second.

The show was by far the most successful in the history of the club. With practically three days of clear weather, there was a marked increase in the attendance. Great credit is due the officers and committees of the club for the way in which everything was arranged. Lewis G. Timpson, as chairman of the grounds' committee, was one of the busiest men at the show and through his personal attention there was not a hitch to mar the comfort or convenience of the patrons. The exhibitors and others expressed great pleasure with the treatment accorded them. The work of the judges was considered above reproach and their decisions met with general approval on the part of exhibitors and spectators. Saturday's awards:

Class 6—Pairs harness horses. First, Edward B. McLean's br. m. Sporting Extra and br. g. Arion; second, George G. Rohlig's b. g. Manhattan and b. g. Dignity.

A PRACTICAL way to clip the ever-climbing cost of living is to stop heat waste in the house furnace. And—the way to save furnace heat is to install a furnace that delivers heat to the house instead of to the chimney.

They embody a great improvement over other furnaces—a square firepot which, because it has more surface, radiates more heat. This means an actual increase of efficiency at no increase of fuel cost. This firepot is non-clogging, and maintains a live fire because it clears easily.

If you would like value received for dollars spent for coal, install a Square Pot Furnace.

"BURN DINNERS, NOT BUILDINGS," SAYS GERMAN SUFFRAGETTE.

"A burned dinner is of far more value than a burned villa for convincing Englishmen that something is wrong," writes Frau Duerrin, a prominent suffragist of Nuremberg, Germany, in a letter advising the British militants to adopt a "household boycott." The letter was made public by the Women's Social and Political Union of England.

"The household boycott means refusal by women to perform household duties," Frau Duerrin explained. "You Englishwomen should drop militancy and adopt this plan. I would even neglect the children and make the men dress them.

"Let the men get their own meals, look after the children and attend to their own clothes, and in a few days they would be glad to assume only half the authority in the household and give the women half authority in politics."

ANOTHER BODY FOUND ON GETTYSBURG FIELD.

Remains of Confederate Soldier Taken From Leaf Mold.

Mute testimony to another of the many tragedies of the battle of Gettysburg was found recently in a wild mountain region eight miles west of the little Pennsylvania town when the body of a Confederate soldier and much of his equipment were discovered under almost half a foot of leaf mold, the accumulation of half a century.

The discovery was made by Clarence A. Wills while surveying a tract of land seldom traversed, save by hunters. He was first attracted to it when he stepped on the end of the barrel of the old musket. Digging away the leaves, he found the hammer and lock and the trademarks showing the English made gun which was much used in the Confederate army. A belt buckle, part of a canteen, several dozen Confederate minie balls and other equipment were found upon further search, and finally a shoe was found.

All were close together between two high rocks and would possibly never have been discovered had not the surveyor's line chanced to run over the spot. All the wooden and cloth portions had long since decayed, and the body of the man to whom they belonged had long since disintegrated.

A flattened bullet bore testimony to the manner in which he met his death. The two large rocks at which the find was made are on an eminence which commands a view for twenty miles or more and overlooks the route of Lee's retreat after the battle. A large rear guard followed the Confederate army and is known to have been scattered over the territory where this discovery was made. Kilpatrick's Union cavalry pursued over this same ground, and the theory of the local historians is that the Confederate skirmisher was standing on one of the rocks when struck by a Union bullet, fell between the two and either died immediately or was in such a weakened condition that he was unable to climb out. There have been numerous discoveries of the bodies of buried soldiers on the Gettysburg field, but this was the first instance for many years where evidence of a body lying dead on top of the ground has been reported.

DREAM WARNS OF DANGER.

New Jersey Woman Finds Her Aged Parents Near Death.

In obedience to the call of her perents, whom she saw beckoning to her while she dreamed, Mrs. May Allen of 513 Kenney street, Newark, N. J., accompanied by her husband, Charles J. Allen, called at the home of the old folks—Mr. and Mrs. Donald Dorley—at 288 East One Hundred and Forty-eighth street, New York.

She had dreamed that her father, aged eighty, and mother, seventy-nine, were sinking in a marsh and calling to her for help.

The Allens received no response when they rang the bell at the Dorley apartment. The janitor, Gustav Lawson, tried in vain to open the door. Policeman Hough was summoned, and the three men together broke in.

In the dining room, seated opposite one another, with their heads resting on the table, were Dorley and his wife. One of the cocks on the kitchen gas range was open. The couple were nearly dead.

WOULD SEND ALL TO JAIL.

New Jersey Judge Thinks It Would Do Us Much Good.

Judge Robert Carey of the common pleas court of New Jersey believes it would do everybody good to spend one day a year in jail. In addressing a meeting of ministers on "The Prisoner at the Bar" the jurist said:

"If I had my way every man and woman would serve one day in jail each year. What a different view of life they would get! We would all exhibit then a new kind of Christianity and a new charity."

HE GOT A SURPRISE.

The Official Who Insisted Upon Seeing an Indian Girl's Face.

On the old Rosebud Indian reservation in South Dakota they still laugh over the peculiar predicament into which a new Indian agent once got himself.

The agent, an unqualified "tenderfoot," was inspecting an Indian school. Noticing that as soon as he entered the room every girl present brought her hair forward over her face, he asked the teacher to tell them to throw it back so that he might see their faces. But this they refused to do until, after much urging, one girl did finally uncover her face.

After school was over the agent wondered at the strange actions of the girl who had showed him her face. She followed him to his house, entered after him and set about getting his dinner.

ASKED HOW HE LIKED HIS NEW WIFE.

As he spoke no Sioux and she no English he could get no explanation from her.

Finally, to his relief, the teacher rode up. Shaking with laughter, he asked the agent how he liked his new wife! Then the latter understood what he had done. In certain tribes of the Sioux Indians all a man needs to do in order to get a wife is to induce a girl to uncover her face. The agent had proposed in the usual way—and been accepted.

In vain did the agent plead that he already had a wife in the east. There was only one way to get out of it. It cost him the equivalent of fourteen ponies to persuade the Indian girl's father to take her back again.—Youth's Companion.

A Lost Fortune.

Lowell once met an acquaintance of dubious standing, whose cheerful face and happy demeanor led him to ask the cause of such exuberant felicity. "Why," said the genial smiler, "I've discovered a way to make my fortune. We all know that the reason for the fine flavor of the wild duck is the wild celery on which it feeds. Now, I propose to feed it to the domestic duck and supply the market." Some weeks later, on meeting his acquaintance again, Lowell found him quite depressed and inconsolable. "Why are you looking so unhappy? I thought the last time I saw you that you were on the point of making your fortune with ducks. Wouldn't it work?" "No," was the reply: "the —— things won't eat it."

THE LIVE CHURCH.

That the Church is alive to the fact that its success depends on proper and persistent publicity as much so as does that of the modern business enterprise is becoming more apparent every day. The man who has something to sell must let as many people know it as possible and the more people who learn of it the greater will be the growth of his trade. He realizes, as does every one in this day, that through no other channel can as many be reached as through the daily newspaper. This also applies to the Church. It has something to offer, but in a spiritual and not a material way, and to get people to accept it, the Church must reach out for them and for it the same medium, of course, is the best.

Regular advertisements of Church announcements are becoming quite common in newspapers, and the gospel of right publicity is being preached directly to the religious bodies. Only yesterday, in Balitmore, Md., thirty advertising men occupied as many pulpits and told the congregations about the high standards of modern advertising and the benefits to be received by churches that take advantage of it. Right here in Plainfield, some churches fully appreciate the desirability of using printers' ink—and paying for it at the regular rate. In each Saturday's issue of the Plainfield Daily Press will be found in the display advertising columns the announcements of Grace Episcopal church, of which the Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, a firm believer in this method of reaching the masses, is the rector. The First Baptist church, of which Rev. Dr. Philip H. Strong is pastor, has recently been using large space in the advertising columns to promote its Sunday school membership campaign. The Temple Baptist church, of which Rev. E. C. Conover is pastor; the First Presbyterian church, of which Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring is pastor, and the Congregational church, of which Rev. Charles L. Goodrich is pastor, have also resorted to the advertising columns of this paper to reach the public generally. These clergymen, we feel sure, will testify that "Advertising Pays" as much for the Church as for the business man.

A GREAT GATHERING.

The opening of the quadrennial conference of the World's Alliance of Young Men's Christian Associations in Edinburgh, Scotland, on Wednesday will afford a sight that would gladden the eyes of the late Sir George Williams, were that staunch Christian worker alive today to view the striking evidences of the marvelous growth of the organization or which he was the founder.

At the opening of the conference the call of the roll will be answered by delegates representing all parts of the civilized world. Not only will Great Britain, the United States, Canada and Australia be well represented, but virtually all of the countries of Europe, together with South Africa, the South American Republic of Brazil and the Asiatic countries of Japan, China, India, Korea and Ceylon will have delegates on hand.

The conference will continue its sessions through the remainder of the week. Many eminent speakers are on the program and there will be discussions covering every phase of the great work that is being carried on by the World Alliance. Delegates will present to the conference reports showing the growth and progress of the Y. M. C. A. in their respective countries. These reports will show that the organization now numbers nearly 9,000 branches throughout the world, of which nearly one-fourth are in the United States and Canada.

Bryan, Roosevelt, Friedmann, Thaw, Gaynor, Pankhurst, Waldo, Chinda, Huerta, Whitman et. al., will please get out of the limelight and permit Miss Sweet Girl Graduate to occupy the centre of the stage.

The militant suffragette, who threw herself before the King's horse at the English Derby, has succumbed to her injuries. The militants call her a martyr, but sane people will put the case down as one of suicide.

FLETCHER'S FAMILY IS TAKEN TO MUHLENBERG

Four members of the family of Charles Fletcher, of Plainfield avenue, were removed to Muhlenberg Hospital this morning, two suffering from scarlet fever and two more threatened with it. Two children, Stanley, aged 4 years, and Helen, aged 2, are dangerously ill and Mrs. Belcher and another daughter are threatened with the disease. These two new cases make ten that have been reported in this city since May 1.

OPEN AIR SERVICES AGAIN PROVE POPULAR

Rev. Dr. J. R. Atkinson preached an interesting but brief sermon at the open air services held yesterday afternoon at 5:15 o'clock under the auspices of the Grace Episcopal church. The lawn about the parish house, which was the scene of the meeting, seated a congregation much larger in numbers than that which was present last Sunday, when the open air services was introduced to Plainfielders. The success of the innovation for which the rector, Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson, is responsible, proved that the movement is a popular one and solves the problem of attracting the attention of the churchgoer on the hot Sabbath days of the summer months. Included in the congregation were people of interdenominational faiths, all of whom equally enjoyed this manner of worship.

GERM CAUSES RHEUMATISM.

Chicago Physician Says He Has Found the Bacteria.

That rheumatism is caused by a germ is the theory of Dr. Edward C. Rosenow of Rush Medical college, Chicago, who also says he has discovered the identity of the hitherto unknown bacteria.

Dr. Rosenow made known his discovery for the first time in describing his work to the staff of the Chicago Tuberculosis institute. He said he based his theories on experiments made upon rabbits, into which he had injected rheumatic germs taken from human beings.

He said he found the tonsils of several patients inflamed. When bacteria from the tonsils were injected into the rabbits the identical symptoms developed, he said.

"There is nothing to indicate that rheumatism may be transmitted through the air," said Dr. Rosenow, "and I believe the germs lurk in food and first lodge in the tonsils."

Dr. Rosenow's discoveries will be the basis of experimental work in search of a cure for rheumatism.

TRINIDAD'S ASPHALT LAKE.

One of the World's Hot Spots, Torrid, Desolating and Enervating.

In "The Path of the Conquistadores" Lindon Bates, Jr., tells of the famous asphalt lake of Trinidad. He says:

"The straggling village at its edge is an extraordinary spectacle. Not a house but is twisted out of plumb. The land is the source of never ending litigation, because the slowly shifting currents of the pitch bottom in a few years move yards and gardens on to other men's property, distort boundaries into every possible shape, carry landmarks a hundred yards away.

"The abomination of desolation is this lake. In spots a palm killed by the asphalt droops disconsolately. A few tufts of grass have secured a footing in places. But for the rest it is a solid mass of black, dull, evil smelling pitch, with pools of water here and there, in which swim little parboiled fishes. Against any of the hot spots in the world, bar none, this can be backed.

"A wicked looking blacksnake six feet long glides into the bushes near the margin of the lake. It has been sunning itself on the asphalt. No wonder the serpents are supposed to be creatures of the devil. As for ourself, fifteen minutes' stay takes away every bit of vitality we can summon. Not enough interest is left in life to inquire what the negroes hewing with mattocks at the asphalt receive in wages. They earn the pay, whatever it is.

"The lake is ninety to a hundred acres in extent now, but it is gradually shrinking with the removal of the enormous quantities that have been taken out."

THE CAMPFIRE.

It Is Said to Have Been the Origin of the Smelting Furnace.

The origin of the smelting furnace was traced in a recent lecture to the campfire. If by chance a lump of ore, either of copper carbonate, tinstone or brown iron ore or hematite had been one of the ring of stones surrounding the camp or domestic fire and had accidentally become embedded in its embers, it would be reduced to metal.

The metals which occur—native copper, gold and iron—were the first to be known to man in the localities in which they occurred, but until the art of smelting metals had been invented the discovery and use of the native metals were insufficient to effect to any great extent the old stone age culture.

Gold, though doubtless the first metal to be known in many localities, owing to its wide distribution in the sands of rivers, was useless for any practical purpose. Copper, however, or an alloy of the metal with tin, antimony, or arsenic, was extracted from ores at a very remote period, and it or its alloy was first to be applied to practical use.

In fact, the first metal to be obtained by primitive man by smelting copper ores depended on their composition, and in the localities where tin did not occur it was a more or less impure copper.—London Standard.

Also a Great Master.

The persons in the gallery who were most impressed with the J. Pierpont Morgan collection of pictures were two small girls, one eight and the other ten years of age. Uncertainly they spelled out the names of the paintings, which conveyed very little, and they were truly moved, of course, by the dashing Duchess of Devonshire and the small princess by Velazquez, and the wonderfully engaging young lady by the unknown Spanish painter. Lastly they came to the portrait of Mr. Morgan himself, and from this they appealed directly to the attendant on guard.

"Please, sir," they asked, "did Mr. Morgan paint all these pictures?"

The guard was a true gentleman.

"Not all," he answered.—New York Post.

The Habitat of Devils.

Captain C. H. Stigand has written a book about the tribes of British East Africa in "The Land of Zinj." Referring to Mount Kenya, whose summit was reached by the Mackinder expedition, he says that the natives "believe that the upper slopes are the habitat of devils and all kinds of evil spirits. I am told that natives who have returned from the upper slopes are not at liberty to speak about what they have seen. The idea is that they have been let off by the demons of the mountains, but if they boast about it some evil will befall them, or the evil spirits will avenge themselves."

Easy to Wed.

The man who writes to ask if he can marry on $8 a week has wasted ink.

Of course he can.

Two dollars will secure a tasty license, $5 will square the preacher, and there will be a dollar left for a modest wedding breakfast.

And then?

Cynical Foresight.

"That boy of yours may be president of the United States some day."

"Maybe," assented Farmer Corntossel. "But the chances are that he'll be one of the fellows who think they are lucky if they get appointed to be postmasters."—Washington Star.

RIVERS AND GREAT CITIES.

Wherein the Thames and London Are Different From Others.

London without the Thames is unthinkable. Not only is it the source of the great wealth and trade of the world's metropolis, but it brings food and drink to its many millions. Yet this is not the case with other great cities of the world whose rivers have had little to do in the building of their fame and position. In "The River of London" Mr. Hilaire Belloc points the contrast:

"Little sea borne traffic reaches Paris by the Seine; the Tiber could never be a street for Rome; Vienna neglects the Danube; Antwerp protects no great crossing nor has ever been the nucleus of a state, and Rouen, the nearest parallel, was not the strategical pivot of Normandy nor ever formed, as London forms, a chief fraction in the economic power of its province. The two rivers which are sacred to Lyons never fed that town; the Rhone watered but did not lead to Arles.

The towns of Lombardy depend upon the fertility of the Po valley, but the stream is nothing to their commerce or to their political eminence, and Milan and Venice and Turin are independent of it. Saragossa was the mistress of Aragon, but the Ebro did not make Saragossa, and, as for Madrid, the trickle which runs below Madrid is best described in the story of the Spanish patriot who was dying of thirst after battle, but upon being offered a cup of water said, 'Give it to the poor Manzanares'—the river upon which Madrid stands."

CHILD WEDDINGS IN INDIA.

Candy Kept the Baby Partners Quiet During the Ceremony.

Four hundred marriages were performed simultaneously at the last wedding celebration at Surat among members of the Lewa Kunbi caste.

None of the brides was more than twelve years of age, the majority being from one to seven years old, while the bridegrooms varied from three to nine. Most of the contracting parties sat or lay on the laps of their parents during the ceremony and were given sweets to keep them quiet.

The caste only celebrates every ten or twelve years.

These baby brides, of course, do not join their husbands when they are married. They wait until they reach the age of ten or eleven, when there is a second marriage. Should a baby bride's husband die before she reaches the age for the second marriage she becomes a widow and has to remain so all her life. In such cases the widow at once loses caste. Her ornaments are taken off her, and she becomes a sort of outcast, hardly treated, looked down upon and generally made a household drudge.

The husband, on the other hand, should his baby bride die before the second marriage, may marry again. In fact, he is expected to do so within a few months of the death of the bride.—Bombay Cor. Philadelphia Ledger.

A Sincere Provider.

Bobbie M. was visiting with a neighbor while his mother was in the city on a shopping trip. Bobbie and two other children played at housekeeping in the backyard, and in the course of the housekeeping Maria believed she needed supplies.

"Bobbie, you go for some ice cream and lemons at the grocery," commanded Maria, and Bobbie obediently trotted into the alley at the rear, as Maria believed, "jes' playin' he was goin' to the grocery."

Ten minutes later, Mrs. S., with whom Bobbie was visiting, went to the telephone, and the voice of her grocer inquired:

"I guess Bobbie has lost the money for the ice cream and lemons he came after. I can't find any change in his pockets. Or did you want the things charged?"—Indianapolis News.

"Stagger" Oil.

From the beginning of September until November a small fish called stickleback is caught in considerable quantities off the island of Dunamunde, at the mouth of the Dwina river, in the gulf of Riga, and also near the island of Semgallen, in the Dwina river, near Dunaberg, Russia. The fishermen make an oil from this fish which is very useful in the leather and harness industry as a preservative. The name of this fish is "Stichling" in German, the common name is "kaseljoe," and in some communities it is called "stagger."

Wisdom and Love.

How shall we help the life of the future? Simply by putting wisdom and love into our own life and into human affairs. All genuine virtue is vital and vitalizing. It carries in it the power of God to conquer evil and establish righteousness. It is a living seed, holding in itself interminable harvests of its own kind. Planted in human society, it will bear fruits of welfare through the centuries.—Charles G. Ames.

Stood by His Theory.

Thales, the ancient philosopher, declared that there was no difference between life and death. "Why, then," cried one of those to whom the remark was made, "don't you put an end to your life?" "Because," was the reply, "there is no difference."

His Mind Occupied.

"Sir!" she exclaimed when he kissed her. "You forget yourself."

"Possibly," he replied calmly. "But I can think of myself any old time. Just now you are occupying my undivided attention."—Boston Transcript.

WILL NOT RECOGNIZE CHINA.

England Is Not Ready to Follow America's Lead.

Great Britain has no intention of following the lead of the United States in recognizing the republic of China, the house of commons was informed by Mr. Francis Dyke Acland, parliamentary undersecretary for foreign affairs, speaking on behalf of the foreign office.

The British government at the time of the establishment of the present administration in China exchanged views with the governments of other powers regarding recognition, said Mr. Acland, and it was agreed that the powers should act in concert and that recognition of the republic should be conditional on the formal confirmation by the republic of the rights resulting from treaties and established usage enjoyed by British subjects. The British government, he concluded, still adheres to those views.

Boats Used For Funeral.

During the recent floods in the middle west and south a funeral at Columbus, Ky., was conducted by means of boats. It was that of a minister who died in a part of the city where all the streets were under water. A large rowboat, carrying the coffin, headed the procession. The pallbearers and mourners followed in skiffs.

WHAT JUNE 18 MEANS TO CANDIDATES

The greatest and best offer of votes on subscriptions during the entire contest! After June 18, the votes will be reduced. Compared to the last period a subscription received now will equal ten.

The early hustler will have the greatest advantage as with a continued cutting of votes it will be impossible for a candidate to wait until the contest is half over and make a spurt and defeat the one who got started early.

Present subscribers of The Plainfield Daily Press who are helping some candidat with their subscription price should do so while their help will mean most, viz., before June 18.

"Keep hustling" is the slogan of the contest. Do not allow a moment to slip by unless you think of something which would advance your interests in the contest.

With a $1.585.00 automobile at stake between now and June 18 it behooves all those who are desirous of winning to keep everlastinglie at it. The contest department does not mean to say that a candidate is expected to work from morning until night to win the automobiles, but candidates must see their friends evenings or during their spare time and let them know they are in the race.

There are but a few active candidates and there is plenty of room for new entries. At present there are not enough candidates actively interested to equal the number of prizes to be given. Somebody is going to win an automobile and that somebody's name may not be in the list at present. Someone is going to see "success" spelled in the nomination blank. Clip the blank and get started. Why not send in the name of a friend or your own and try for the $1,585 Henderson Grand Prize.

Besides the Henderson there are two other cars. The Overland, value $985.00; and the Ford Rodester, value $525.00, and many prizes of less value.. Send in a nomination and win.

BUSINESS MAN OCCUPIES MONROE AVE. CHURCH PULPIT

Claude Eckert, of Seattle, Wash., cousin of Rev. F. J. Hubach, pastor of the Monroe Avenue church, who is in the East on a business trip, spoke at the evening service at that church, last night on "The Opportunities and Responsibilities of Young Laymen in the Church." Mr. Eckert has been actively engaged in Christian work in Seattle, and in his address, last night, he spoke from a wide experience and his remarks were much enjoyed by a large congregation.

SHORTHAND BY PIN PRICKS

Blind Boy Invents Method of Recording Lectures.

Determined that his handicap of total blindness shall not prevent him from obtaining an education, Harold Dey Howard, nineteen years old, has returned to his studies in commercial law at the University of Pennsylvania.

He was allowed to matriculate only because of his scholastic record at the Overbrook School For the Blind. He is at a double disadvantage over the other students in that he cannot visualize the lessons and the university makes no provision for the Braille books with their raised letters.

Young Howard has brought his inventive genius into play by forming a system of shorthand, which he pricks in paper with a pin, thus giving him a lasting record of the lectures in his classes.

YELLOWSTONE PARK.

At One Time the Region Was Known as "John Colter's Hell."

It is probable that few of the tourists who have visited the Yellowstone National park knew that the place has also been known as "John Colter's Hell," nor were they likely to know how the name originated.

After President Jefferson in 1803 made the Louisiana purchase from Napoleon Bonaparte, for which $15,000,000 was paid, it was decided to send out from St. Louis the Lewis and Clark expedition for the purpose of finding out something about the newly acquired land lying between the Mississippi river and the Pacific coast.

John Colter was one of the privates under Lewis and Clark. He was a born adventurer, with an insatiable curiosity and the element of fear left out of his makeup. When in 1806 the exploring party headed back from the coast to St. Louis, Colter broke away and all alone set out for the headwaters of the Missouri river.

Four years later there appeared at St. Louis a worn, ragged, Indian-like, white man, who announced that he was John Colter and finally succeeded in identifying himself as a member of the Lewis and Clark expedition. People finally believed that he was John Colter, but they would not believe the stories he told.

One of Colter's prize stories was about the most wonderful place in the world, where steam came from the earth and boiling water leaped clear to the sky. There were diabolical furnaces underground and bad smells. It would have been the "abode of the damned," he said, but for the fact that he could discover no signs of human beings for miles about.

It was a good story—too good to be true. So the St. Louisans decided that the wanderer had imagined it all. In fact, the good people of St. Louis—and everybody else, for that matter—laughed over "John Colter's Hell" for thirty-four years—until Bridger, the noted scout, rediscovered the place and confirmed everything that John Colter had said about it.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

THE WILY TURK.

Subtle Ruse That Enabled Abdul Aziz to Visit France.

It is rare that a privilege enjoyed by the subjects of a country is denied to its ruler, yet by a law of the Koran the sultan may not leave his realm unless he goes sword in hand for the purpose of conquering new provinces. Das Buch für Alle tells how Sultan Abdul Aziz traveled abroad without breaking the law.

Abdul Aziz was very eager to accept Napoleon III.'s invitation to visit the exposition at Paris in 1867. But between his desire and its attainment stood the law of the Koran, which he could neither disobey nor set aside. His ministers advised him to come to an amicable understanding with Napoleon and, after announcing that war had been declared upon France, to journey to the exposition, sword in hand. This scheme, however, seemed of doubtful advisability, and finally a simpler plan was adopted.

One day the morning papers of Constantinople contained the startling news that Napoleon III. had made the sultan a present of France. Abdul Aziz was of course at entire liberty to visit his new province, and he decided to do so at once. Paris and all France were greatly amused at the subterfuge that their guest had practiced and offered no objections to his approach.

After a very pleasant visit in Paris Abdul Aziz returned to Turkey. But before he left he magnanimously gave France back to Napoleon.

Up to Date.

Mrs. Gadder—What do you know about these people who have moved in across the way? Mrs. Homer—Not a thing, except that their name is Gimpus, the man works in an office down town, the woman gives music lessons they take their dinner twice a week at a restaurant, have their washing done away from the house and the plumber has been there twice in the last four days to mend leaks in the water pipes. That's the way they usually print a conversation of this kind in the papers, you know, and I don't want to appear to be a back number.—Chicago Tribune.

Kingsley and His Pipes.

The Rev. Charles Kingsley concealed pipes all over the parish in case the desire for smoking suddenly came upon him. Walking one day with Benson, he exclaimed: "It's no use. I know you detest tobacco, but I must have a smoke." He went to a furze bush, put his arm in a hole and pulled out a churchwarden, which he filled. When the pipe was smoked he put it in a hollow tree.—Boston Herald.

A Family Secret.

Maybe it's all right for near relatives to borrow from one another. But it sounded funny when Daisy's steady exclaimed, "Your hair looks just like your mother's!" and Daisy's little brother piped up: "Course it does. It's the same hair."—Chicago News.

On the Way.

"Have you been uplifted?"

"To some extent," replied Mr. Corntossel. "I'm gettin' so it comes almost natural to say 'agriculture' instead of 'farmin'.'"—Washington Star.

Abrupt Ending.

She—My first husband was an officer, my second a solicitor, my third— He—Awfully sorry, but I never could guess acrostics.—Fliegende Blatter.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

By FRANCES MARSHALL

Soap Economy.

The first rule for affecting soap economy has to do with quality and the second has to do with quantity. The first says that it is a saving to buy soap of good quality—of some tried and proved brand. And the second says that it is a saving to buy a large amount of soap at a time. The longer soap stands, naturally the dryer it becomes, and the dryer it is when it is used, the father it goes. It should be carefully freed from its paper wrappings and piled in a dry, clean place and left there until it is needed. The supply should always be replenished before the last of the soap is actually used, so that it will have a chance to dry a little even before the first of it is needed. A shelf in the attic, covered with a strip of oilcloth, and with a strip of cloth to throw over the soap to protect it from dust and dirt, is a good storing place for it.

The woman who knows how to utilize left-over soap is as fortunate as the woman who knows how to utilize left-over food; she has an economical recourse to fall back on. One of the easiest ways to use all odds and ends of soap is to break them in small pieces and put them in a wire soap-shaker for use in the kitchen.

Another way to make use of left-overs, is to shred it finely with a knife and put it in an earthen jar. When the jar is three-quarters full pour a little water over the soap and stand the jar in the oven—moderately warm, only—until the soap is melted and jelly-like. The soap, in a half-soft condition, can be used as it is needed from the jar. This sort of soap is especially useful for washing clothes.

A Cleansing Mixture.

A chauffeur concocted a very satisfactory soap to take the place of the cleaning soap which he had bought from time to time at a garage to clean the automobile of which he was in charge. He shaved six cakes of laundry soap, and melted it with enough water to soften it. Then he mixed about a pint of sand with gasoline enough to make a thick paste and added it to the melted soap. After mixing the two pastes together thoroughly, the cleansing preparation was ready to use. It is a very satisfactory soap for cleaning bricks, hearths of all kinds cement or flagging, as well as metal fixtures about the stove and bathroom. The sand used should be very fine.

A washing fluid which is easy to make and inexpensive is made from a pound of sal soda dissolved in a gallon of water. The two mixtures are then combined and about a teacupful of the resulting fluid is used to a boilerful of clothes.

"'You must be careful not to go too close to the edge of the nest lest you fall over and the cat get you. She cannot climb up here, so you are quite safe as long as you stay at home.'

"Mrs. Swallow says very mildly: 'Perhaps if the children who live in the house knew about our babies they would watch the cat until we can teach our little ones to fly. They come out here sometimes to play, and I've found them to be very nice children. They feed the birds on the lawn every day, and Mrs. Purple Martin told me that the dear little bungalow on top of the pole in the yard where she and her family are living this year was put up by the children.'

"'You may be right, my dear,' Mr. Swallow answers mildly. 'I have not been home so much as you and have had no chance to get acquainted with the children, but how are we to let them know that we would like them to watch the cat?'

"'Don't you see the children's daddy down there feeding the horse?' Mrs. Swallow answers. 'Perhaps if we ask him to tell them he will do so.'

"'A splendid idea,' Mr. Swallow exclaims. Then both of them tuck their heads under their wings and go to sleep. Wasn't it a good thing daddy was right there and understood swallow talk?"

A Practical Lemon Squeezer.

Lemon squeezers are needed in every season, not alone in summer. A practical squeezer for the kitchen is made of nickel and glass. The part over which the lemon fits is of glass, and the rim into which the juice runs and the holder to catch the seeds are of nickel. It is priced at $2.25, but one that is really as good as this may be had for 35 cents. It is made in the same way, with a seed rim and a mouth from which to pour the juice. These latter are in Japanese Sedji ware, the green pottery which is both durable and attractive.

Woman's World

Mrs. Alice Harriman
Only Woman Publisher.

MRS. ALICE HARRIMAN.

If your capital did not exceed $325 would you venture it all upon the publication of a book of verse?

If "look before you leap" is your rule of life you probably wouldn't, but Mrs. Alice Harriman, the woman who did, lives up to the theory that "nothing ventured is nothing gained."

Mrs. Harriman, by the way, was a Seattle woman by adoption and is naturally imbued with the venturesome spirit of the great northwest, so when she decided to put out a volume of verse, "Songs o' the Sound," at her own expense her friends were fearful of success, but not surprised at the daring move.

This little volume, which appeared in a dress to attract tourists, was conspicuously displayed in all the bookstores of "the Puget sound country" and in less than ten days paid for itself and justified the author's business sixth sense, a sense she had evidently lived without up to this time.

Indeed, Mrs. Harriman was utterly ignorant of the simplest business methods when she started out. Yet in five years, alone and entirely unaided, she has built up a publishing business of sufficient importance to straddle the continent, for the Alice Harriman Publishing company has offices both in New York city and in Seattle.

The business really started in the following way: "The Songs o' the Sound" caught the eye of a wealthy and influential woman of Seattle, who asked Mrs. Harriman to publish memoirs of her father, a man of political importance and "the father of Seattle." Although ignorant of the first principles of the technical part of publishing, she consented. By studying books brought out by the big publishing houses she was able to pattern her book upon them. These memoirs gave Mrs. Harriman her first real piece of business, and the venture was so successful that other books were offered her for publication. But the publication that was most influential in determining her success was one that other publishers had fought shy of—a French translation made by Lafcadio Hearn.

Now, with the exception of her secretarial staff, Mrs. Harriman is the whole publishing outfit. She designs covers, wrappers, circulars and does the "makeup" and whatever other part of the profession demanding individual attention. Then she turns the manuscripts over to the printer and binder.

Mrs. Harriman confesses that she does not belong to the domestic type of woman, and, although she could mix a salad or bake good bread, she would be utterly incapable of turning out a sartorial confection on the slit skirt order. She prides herself upon being womanly for a' that. She would "rather write a poem than pay a visit."

"A business woman," Mrs. Harriman says, "does not have to wear mannish clothes, affect men's walk or men's language or manners." There is no reason why a woman to be successful in the business world should be "one of the boys." What a woman does need is a love of and devotion to her work, and to this devotion Mrs. Harriman attributes her success in a field not hitherto entered by woman.

Mrs. Harriman, too, is unlike her sisters in another respect—she has no feeling whatever about telling her age. Indeed, she frankly and fearlessly admits that she had never published a line or thought of bringing out anybody's ideas in book form until she had reached her forty-fifth year. Mrs. Harriman has been in business five years. The rest is plain sailing.

The Latest Slang.

When a fresh, pretty young girl replies to your inquiry as to whether a certain dance was a success or a certain young man agreeable with "Oh, perfectly fine!" or "Simply great!" you find yourself wishing she would drop the vernacular and use good English. But when some one tells you that your new hat is "snappy" and a debutante enthusiastically says that you gave a "won-der-ful party," accent on the first syllable, you smile indulgently and your sensibilities are not jarred. Slang goes out of fashion, and nothing is more stale and dreary than last year's slang. But the latest additions to the vocabulary always seem to fill a long felt want, so "simply great" and "fine" have gone their way to oblivion, while "snappy" and "wonderful" have come to stay—a little while.

—There's no job in this city that cannot be filled by a really capable worker—and all capable workers, temporarily out of work, watch the Press "help wanted" ads closely.

Available At All Times

"MARY, I wish Mrs. White would change her party line telephone to a direct line. This is the third time I've called her today, and her line has been 'busy' each time."

Party line telephone service necessarily means a divided service. It means sharing the line with others; it means a restricted use of your telephone and very often "busy" reports to those who desire to call you.

A direct line, on the other hand, is yours exclusively—always available—a clear track for incoming or outgoing messages.

The difference in cost is so slight it will pay you to investigate.

Points for Mothers

Dressing the Baby.

Mothers seem to be divided in their opinion of how to dress the baby, but their ideas are generally so extreme that they can easily be divided into two classes—the sensible, who believe in simplicity, and the foolish, who try to see how fancifully they can dress their little tots.

The elegance of baby's clothes should always be interpreted in fineness and not by fancifulness. If its little slips are to be the most beautiful they should be of the finest hand woven lingerie cloth and made so daintily that the eye can scarcely perceive the stitches in their narrow seams. That is real beauty and luxury for the baby.

The baby's first slips are the prettiest in the plain bishop style—finished with very narrow valenciennes lace edging around the neck and sleeves and brier stitching at the top of its hem. For "best" wear you may want a slightly more fanciful dress, with tiny hand embroidered yoke in the front (narrow tucks running to the neck in the back) and dainty embroidered flowers strewn here and there above the hem. Of course hemming always makes a desirable finish at the seams and is not ornate.

The infant's petticoats should be just as fine and plain as its slips. And in winter its "heavy" petticoats should be of the finest French flannel, so that they will not wash together and become weighty and bulky. The flannel petticoats should be finished with brier stitched hems. All petticoats should be made with little waists or wide waistbands.

Juvenile Nerves.

With highly strung children there is often a readiness to pick up nervous tricks from their elders. Thus from one a child learns to stammer, while from another it adopts various nervous movements of the muscles of the face or limbs. Such a child needs to be well fed and kept as much as possible in the open air, to lead a quiet life without excitement and without overexercise of the brain. Above all, it must be kept as much as possible away from those people from whom it seems to be taking the tricks of nervousness.

Reserved Boys.

Mothers, don't be too ready to think that your boy shows a want of trust in you if he occasionally keeps a secret or omits to tell you every little thing that he has done. Many boys are very reserved. They cannot bear to speak of what they feel deeply. Make your son understand that mother will always be glad to hear what he chooses to tell her, but that she does not want to force his confidence. Then he will speak much more freely to you than he would do if he felt that you were "always after him."

Screwing Up the Eyes.

Disastrous to beauty of a child's expression is the habit of screwing up the eyes. The trick points very plainly to defective vision and calls aloud for a visit to an oculist. The visit must not be delayed, for ugly wrinkles round the eyes is the least evil of this defect. A shortsighted child is severely handicaped when it begins its school life, and neglected myopia leads to serious eye trouble in later life. Properly prescribed spectacles are all that is required to end this particular trouble.

Mouth Breathing.

Mouth breathing, which is one of the signs which point to the presence of adenoids, can only be cured by going to the root of the matter and having the adenoids removed by operation. With very young children it is a wise precaution to do as the Indian squaws do, and that is to press the lips of the young child together when he first falls asleep.

Sunbonnets For Babies.

Protect the baby's eyes if the sun is very strong. Little sunbonnets of pink or pale blue chambray are both pretty and very sensible for young children. It is far easier to prevent weak eyes than to cure the weakness once it is contracted, and, while the sunshine does not always injure the eyes, you must remember that even a grown person cannot stand or work in the hot sunshine without feeling bad effects from the exposure.

Solid Foods.

The importance of never allowing a "taste" of ordinary food while the baby is small can hardly be overestimated. Not so much as "a crust or bite" should be allowed before he is nine or ten months old, and even that is better postponed until after the first year is completed.

Increase In Height.

Although perfectly healthy children differ greatly and no fixed rule is possible, the average child increases in height an inch a month between the second and fourth months. After this, up to a year, a half inch a month.

Nourishing Dishes.

Small children who are much in the open and who take vigorous exercise, should have cheese dishes and a little meat, mutton or broth for supper.

JUVENILE FASHIONS.

Belted Waists Replace the Loose Blouse.

MODISH SUIT OF WHITE LINEN.

Well dressed little boys now wear trim suits of linen, serge or mohair with straight, ungathered trousers and loosely cut waist belted in at the waistline.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—Will the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. conduct its annual athletic meet this year, and if so, on what date and where?—J. F.

Answer—Never refer to this meet as an "annual" affair It has been definitely decided not to conduct the meet this year.

Sporting Editor.

Query—A says that the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. won the cup offered for the inter-Y. M. C. A. relay race held in connection with the Charter Day athletic meet. B says that an out of town Y. M. C. A. won it. Kindly state who is right, the name of the winning team and the names of the members that composed it.—H. G. F.

Answer—You do not want very much H. G. F., but I think the following information will settle the question. The cup in question was won by the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. relay team captained by Alvah L. Conant and the other three members of the team were Bob Reid, and two of the Lozier brothers, who are prominent figures on all Elizabeth athletic teams.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Will you kindly supply the following information regarding the International Polo series: (1) time for first game; (2) place; (3) how to reach grounds; (4) prizes.—I. S. P.

Answer—Here goes: The series which calls for the best two out of three games, opens tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, on the Meadow Brook Field, at Westbury, L. I. (Weather permitting.) To get to the field take the Long Island Railroad's special trains to the field, or trolley to Westbury or Hempstead, respectively, two and three miles from the field. Good roads and varied routes for automobiles. The teams are playing for the International Challenge Cup, bought by subscription among the members of the Westchester Polo Club, Newport, as the trophy for match on its grounds in 1886.

"MAC" SAYS

No Place For An Ump.

An umpire entered heaven's gate but turned around and fled,
"Why beat it thusly from our midst?"
the good St. Peter said;
"I walked right in," the ump replied,
"I walked right in, and said—
I saw McLaughlin standing there, and walked right out again."

Many fans saw visions of a slow procession moving down Somerset street headed by a carriage with many flowers and six Central Leaguers sitting in a two-aisled wagon riding near the front, when "Warry" McLaughlin went after Frank Wilcox when he called Eddie Stallings safe Saturday afternoon.

This was only another trick of the wiley Eddie and it certainly looked as though Wilcox was in the right. But then, Warry, he is a nice boy anyway and Dunellen doesn't need to win all of the games to cop the bunting.

Sam Dorman, of the Pets, avers that he never hears the shouts of the populace, but it would be hard to convince an innocent bystander of the self same assertion.

The savant or whatever it was who avered that two heads are better than one, evidently knew what he was talking about. Several Sunday-school Leaguers are afflicted with a twin ailment of some variety.

The bloke who said that he would "eat his hat if the Yanks ever won a game of baseball in little old New York," has a severe case of indigestion today. A big Saturday afternoon for Keating and the friends from the "old home town."

Jim Scott, the smiling outfield gardian of the Spicer baseball team, is the real hard luck artist as far as home runs are concerned. In each of the last two encounters, Scotty has sent the ball for a circuit spin only to be called out for missing second by a margin of inches the first time and the second bingle was declared void by the "ump" who ruled it a foul much to Jimmy's disgust.

From the crowd and comments made in front of the Daily Press office Saturday night by those who lamped the Press score boards, it would seem that the Yankee victory appeared a little incredulous. Baseball is filled with many similar scares, beware of them.

When Bob Bogardus was anxiously awaiting the appearance of Jimmy Wolf on North avenue Saturday afternoon, Manager Ernest Dorflinger, the leading spokesman for the Plainfielders, ambled up to Dunellen Bob and asked him if he was ready for the greatest beating of his life. Ernie didn't say it in just those words but Bob started to tremble in his boots nevertheless. The intervention of a thunder storm was probably a lucky thing for the league leaders Saturday for Warry McLaughlin was not in the best of trim to fling against the Pets.

Y. M. A. A. TEAM HAD AN EDGE ON RIVALS

Rain Stopped a Good Ball Game on the Centre Street Field Saturday.

Three innings of play were completed in the Y. M. A. A.-Somerville Klinker game on the Centre street field Saturday afternoon, the game being called at that juncture on account of rain. When the termination came, the teams were deadlocked in a scoreless tie and the contest had been a stellar one up to that point, the local boys having a man on second and third when the climax came. During the third of a game played the locals got two hits against the Somervillians' one, and neither team had made an error.

Smith, the new Y. M. A. A. geaver, did somewhat of a novel stunt when he twirled but fifteen balls in the two opening rounds. Clark behind the bat, another new acquisition, looks like a find, while "Matty" Coughlin, the P. H. S. twirler, played well at the third station. Smith got a two bagger in the second inning.

SEMI-FINAL PLAY FOR SPRING CHAMPIONSHIP

The semi-final play for the Spring Championship and play for the President's cup were the attractions at the Park Golf Club on Saturday. The thunder shower which came up in the middle of the afternoon resulted in keeping many players off the course or from finishing.

In the semi-final for the championship, Peter C. Sweeny defeated U. G. Tingley, 1 up (19 holes), and R. V. Carpenter defeated William P. Taylor, 1 up, both of them being fine matches. This will bring Mr. Carpenter and Mr. Sweeny together in the finals.

Dr. H. K. Carroll, 95, 9-86; U. G. Tingley, 103, 16-87; Charles B. Morse, 103, 15-88; Peter C. Sweeny, 100, 8-92; R. V. Carpenter, 103, 8-95.

The standing for the Oakhont cup, for which the members can play any time, the winner being decided on a basis of the highest number of wins during the season, is as follows to date:

Royle T. Phillips, won 9, lost 1; J. V. Beekman, won 2, lost 0; W. P. Taylor, won 7, lost 2; U. G. Tingley, won 5, lost 2; W. V. Byard, won 2, lost 1; Nelson A. Miller, won 3, lost 2; Samuel Townsend, won 2, lost 2; J. B. Betts, won 1, lost 1. A competitor must play at least ten matches.

NETHERWOOD A. C. OPENING.

Manager Coughlin, of the Netherwood A. C. baseball team, is making preparations to open the baseball season on the Netherwood grounds next Saturday afternoon, playing some fast local team on that date. Besides a wealth of veteran material he has induced his younger brother, "Matty" who made such an enviable record in a High School uniform during the past season, to do part of the pitching. For games communicate with J. B. Coughlin, Netherwood, N. J. Only light semi-professional teams need answer.

Plainfield and Dunellen Battle it Out for Two Short Rounds.

PETS NEW PLAYERS

Big Mob Turns Out to See Locals Play Dunellen—Rain Checks Handed Out—Improvements at Parker Field.

Jupiter Pluvius reigned supreme one-half hour after game time on the local baseball diamonds Saturday afternoon, none of the local teams being able to continue the fight long enough to grab a decision under favorable weather conditions and on merits alone. A deluge struck all of the teams shortly after they took the field of play, but some aggregations managed to get somewhat of a jump on the weatherman by starting their games before three-thirty. Plainfield had just started what looked like one of the greatest ball games yet played in the Central League when the clouds broke and rain checks in the shape of pasteboard missles were handed out to a mammoth crowd of fans who chose this way to spend a week-end afternoon.

Eddie Stallings and Joe Harter were among the Plainfield leaguers who took the field against Dunellen and although but three innings were played, both of these stars distinguished themselves as real performers. Harter pulled off one of the greatest catches ever seen on a local diamond while Stallings pulled off a base running feat that made the fans sit up and take particular notice. Plainfield led when the game was announced concluded but the contest will not stand as a league point winner, however, for the regulation number of rounds were not tolled off when J. Pluvius intervened.

A large delegation of fans from Dunellen and a still larger one from this city went to the oval in anticipation of seeing a great contest between Dorflinger's clan and the league leaders but the only returns they received outside of a couple of good rounds of playing was a rain check good for next Saturday's game. The new bleachers and roof were a subject of much favorable comment, Manager Dorflinger having announced said improvements earlier in the week.

Plainfield Was Leading.

When Umpire Frank Wilcox called the game at Parker Field, Saturday afternoon, Plainfield was leading Dunellen by a score of 3 to 2 and it looked as though the league leaders were due for a beating. Warry McLaughlin was not in the best of form, while the Pets, reinforced by Eddie Stallings and Joe Harter, were putting up their best battle of the season.

Somerville In the Lead.

Somerville was leading Bound Brook by a score of 1 to 0 when the rain halted the contest in the third inning Saturday afternoon. The game was played on the Somerville grounds and it was the Bound Brook team's debut in the Central League this season.

Did Not Get Started.

Owing to the late appearance of Dave Driscoll and his New Brunswick outfit at High Bridge, Saturday afternoon, the High Bridge and New Brunswick teams did not get started in their scheduled bout before the rain intervened and as a result the umpire did not need to call the third struggle in the league.

When the cloud bursted at the beginning of the second inning of the Hope Chapel-Park Avenue clash Saturday afternoon the score stood one to one tie.

Monroes Were Ahead.

The score stood 3 to 2 in favor of Monroe Avenue Saturday afternoon when the rain caused the calling off of the game with the First Presbyterian team. This was the latter's first appearance in the Sunday-school League and the team on the small end of the score had not been to bat in the second inning.

The West End-Saurer clash was called off in the second inning neither team having scored a tally.

Rain Checks Here.

The Spicer-Royal Giants game was called at the end of the first inning. In the first Plummer hit to Baldwin who fumbled ball, which took a bad bound. Valentine flied to Dolan. Ford hit to short and was out at first. Plummer then stealing second. Plummer scored when Compton's delay to O'Loughlin went wide. Kline walked, and when Montross misjudged Simmons' hit the latter took two bases and Kline scored. Maiden fanned, ending the round. Two runs, one hit.

In Spicer's half O'Loughlin hit first ball pitched for two sacks, and Baldwin duplicated the feat scoring O'Loughlin. Campbell hit past first, scoring Baldwin. Campbell was nipped stealing second. Scott walked after he had hit one to the lumber yard for three bases only to have it called a foul. Fleming walked and on a passed ball Scott took third. Scott scored on wild pitch. Fleming was caught off third for the final out. Two runs, three hits.

The teams lined up as follows: Spicer—O'Loughlin 3b, Baldwin ss, Campbell lf, Compton c, Scott 1b, Fleming rf, Burns 2b, Montross cf, Dolan p. Royals—Plummer 3b, Valentine lf, Ford c, Kline p, Simmons 2b, Maiden 1b, McClain ss, Coleman cf, Lee rf.

LOW SCORES RETURNED IN FOUR BALL HANDICAP

The event at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday was a four-ball handicap against par. There was a large field engaged in the play when a severe thunder storm broke over the city and drove a majority of the golfers to shelter and in consequence only a few scores were returned in the competition, three pairs finishing in each class.

In Class A, C. B. Morgan and J. E. Erickson were all even at the finish, while W. Lester Glenney and Frank O. Reinhart were 1 up and Charles A. Reed and S. T. Perrin were 1 down.

Among the Class B players that finished, George T. Rogers and Herbert S. Rogers and C. E. Lipscomb and A. W. Kleinecke were all even and Burnett C. Kenyon and T. S. Wheeler were 2 up.

Another event was a golf sweepstakes, which was won by R. C. Blancke, Jr., with a score of 103 22-81.

SCOTCH PLAINS LOST TO DANBURY PLAYERS

So fast was the playing and so quickly were batters disposed of at Scotch Plains yesterday afternoon, that the fans were treated to but one hour and fifteen minutes of baseball for their money, the game between Joe Alberts' crew and the Danbury N. Y., aggregation being decided in favor of the latter by a count of 4 to 2. Two innings were completed in the remarkable time of ten minutes and the game itself was a whirlwind affair from start to finish. Danbury had one big round and that was plenty to put it over the 'Plains boys for three runs were pulled across the plate in that session. In this session Fitzgerald led off with a hit, Jenkins got a base on balls and Shea got a free trip. Fitzgerald stole second and third and scored on McLaughlin's wild throw, while Jenkins stole second and counted on Carroll's hit, which also brought home Shea. Danbury got another counter in the ninth when Jenkins got life on DeNitzio's error, went to second on Shea's sacrifice and scored on Walsh' bingle.

Scotch Plains got the sum and substance of its tally card in the seventh inning, when Jack Walton, the Somerville player, got life at the first station on a hit, went to second on Joe Alberts' sacrifice and registered on Frentz's hit. The latter stole second and came all the way home on Gray's two bagger.

Both twirlers put up a good brand of ball but the veteran "Warry" had one of his off days, which are few and far between, and he took several aerial ascensions that might have proven disastrous had not an injection of spicy fielding come to his rescue. While he allowed but seven bingles and whiffed a trio, McLaughlin walked two and figured in a wild throw that let in a run.

LOCAL JUNIOR AGGREGATION TROUNCED ELIZABETH NINE

Playing at Elizabeth yesterday afternoon, the Shamrock A. C., of this city, defeated the Central A. C., of that place, by a score of 29 to 7. Lawton, Young and Miller were in the points for the Rocks, the former allowing but six hits and two runs during his stay on the mound, while Young, who twirled the last stanza, was hit for six safe bingles and five runs.

Lawton, Kane, McCarthy, Young and Dilts carried off the hitting laurels of the afternoon. The feature of the game was a grandstand catch by McCarthy, who played right field for the Rocks. Kane, who has been acting as manager of the local team, tendered his resignation yesterday, but will still play with the aggregation. Bill Miller has been elected as captain of the team and the Shamrocks are looking for a game for next Sunday.

TRINITY WAS IN THE LEAD WHEN THE RAINDROPS CAME

Although the ball artists of the Trinity Reformed church had another out coming to them when the storm broke forth Saturday afternoon, in their second trip to the rubber, the church players had annexed three tallies to their opponents' one and looked like sure winners had Jupiter Pluvius cancelled his engagement for the afternoon.

Two solid innings at the bat had been handed to the Watchungs, who served as the opposition, but in those sojourns at the home station but one run was registered and that came before the Trinityites woke up in the first round. Chauncey Colthar and "Dink" Beckman served as a battery for the one and one-half inning victors, while Demler, the old Manufacturers' League heaver, was the Watchung's decoration on the mound.

MONROE HAD EASY TIME DEFEATING RIVAL GAME

A team of Clinton avenue ball tossers was easy picking for the Monroe A. C. aggregational yesterday afternoon, the latter winning by the one-sided count of 33 to 13. A feature of the contest was the batting of Taynor, Bunn, Smith, Fitzgerald, McClinton and Healy, each getting four hits apiece. Honan and Bowden played good fielding games.

The Monroes will tackle the fast West End Juniors next Sunday.

BOARD OF TRADE HAS ITS POLICIES

Trustees of Civic Body Plans for Commission Gov't and Other Improvements.

FOR PUBLIC CONCERTS

Municipal Garbage Collection, Unit Value of Assessments; To Advertise In Local Papers; Changes in Public Schools Curriculum, Etc.

The trustees of the Plainfield Board of Trade at their meeting last night adopted policies for that body, advocating the commission form of government for the city and other needed improvements. William Jeffery, president of the Board of Trade, is making a careful study of the business-like plan for conducting the affairs of a municipality.

Another plank of the platform adopted favors elementary agricultural studies in the local schools and the development of the High School educational system along the practical commercial, industrial, agricultural and professional lines. Public concerts and the extension of trolley lines throughout the city are also urged.

The policy follows:

Membership not less than 500; recognition outside of Plainfield, (which has been secured); visit other Boards of Trade; visit local civic clubs; live wire committees; joint monthly meetings of all committees connected with the board; a "clean-up week;" unit value plan of assessments; commission form of government; smooth and level sidewalks and streets; paid bulletins in local newspapers (all notices and important news of the activities of the board to be printed regularly, either weekly or monthly); garbage and ashes, city disposal; slate roofs on houses along the railroad; public market; "helping hand" to city and borough officials by properly directed public sentiment; free public band concerts in public parks; public comfort stations; examination of food supplies; fire escapes on buildings deemed necessary; abundant exits from theatres and the lighting of all such exits by separate electric wiring systems; elementary agricultural studies; development of High School for practical education along commercial, industrial, agricultural and professional lines; extension of local trolleys; busy work for little folks; annual civic pagaent; all food supplies to be sold by weight and the inspection of all weights and measures by the Department of Weights and Measures; Plainfield first, last and all the time.

HELD SERVICES FOR DEPARTED MEMBERS

Services in memory of the departed members of District No. 10, Independent Order Odd Fellows, of which Plainfield is a part, were held in the rooms of Hansa Lodge in the Harmonia Building, Union Square, Elizabeth, Sunday afternoon. There were present about 300 Odd Fellows from the district. The exercises were opened by Charles J. Stamler, noble grand of Elizabethport Lodge. The memorial services were conducted by District Deputy Grand Master Charles A. Otto and Otto Froebel. The principal speaker was J. Howard Lloyd, grand guardian of the Grand Lodge, who spoke on "The Spirit of Odd Fellowship."

The departed members from Plainfield included in the list of the district are: Robert Zergibel, J. G. Albert, John T. Stafford, T. C. Smith and William H. Netherwood, of Queen City Lodge, No. 226; Elmer E. Runyon and L. C. Sheppard, of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44. The names of the departed members were read by Mrs. Sarah F. Ryan, acting secretary.

LITTLE FELLOW BADLY SCALDED BY HOT GREASE

Andrew Billing, Jr., the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Billing, of Codington avenue, who was severely scalded by hot grease on Saturday, is improving slowly under the care of Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan. The little fellow, while playing about the kitchen, accidentally ran into his mother who was carrying a pan of hot grease. The child's hands and a part of its face were severely scalded.

The physician's prompt treatment doubtless prevented serious consequences. The burns are chiefly superficial and an early recovery is expected.

COMMISSION WILL MEET.

WEST END ASS'N TO WORK WITH CHAMBER

District Body Will Be Represented at "Co-ordinating' Session Tonight.

John J. Carroll, Frank A. Weeks and Thomas F. Hylan will represent the West End Civic Association at the meeting of the "co-ordinating committee" of other civic bodies to be held in the Boice Runyon & Co., building on Park avenue, tonight. They were appointed at the monthly meeting of the association held in the Washington School last night, and were urged to lend their influence to the movements among which is an attempt for the equalization of taxes.

The association went on record last night as being in favor of any co-operative movement that will result in improvements in various parts of the city. It is understood, however, that the association will not sanction any action tending to a consolidation of all civic bodies and giving up its name.

Jacob Sacher called the attention of the association to the fact that it was not represented on the special committee on the revision of taxes appointed by Mayor Percy H. Stewart, which he said he thought was to be deplored. A motion was adopted authorizing the secretary to communicate with the Mayor for the purpose of ascertaining when property-owners could confer with the committee through the association's representatives.

The association voted to abandon the plan of having a "clean-up" week this summer, the idea being to take it up next spring. Andrew R. Parkhurst, Jr., Walter Manning, William Marshall and Everett L. Morgan were elected to membership. A. B. Fuller, secretary, resigned and William J. Boyd was elected to fill the vacancy. Joel P. Pennington resigned as chairman of the school and library committee. That vacancy will be filled later.

BROWER WILL HEAD EXPERIMENTAL WORK

Another Local Youth Signs Contract With Marconi Wireless Company.

Following the appointment of Leon Moran, of Rockview avenue, to a wireless post in San Francisco by the Marconi Company comes the announcement of a similar appointment made by the same concern to William Brower, the eighteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Brower, of 125 East Fifth street, the latter youth having been selected to engineer experimental work in the East Indies. Brower received his appointment yesterday afternoon and will leave on a Royal Mail Line steamer tomorrow morning for a contract of seventy days, which will be spent in introducing and experimenting with the wireless outfit in the Indies. It is proposed by the Marconi Company to erect several wireless stations especially equipped for long distance work in the islands of Indian Ocean and Brower will have charge of the testing work in these experimental stations.

The local operator has been interested in the science for the past eight years, taking it up when it was originally introduced and at a time when it was a fad throughout the country. His station at his home on East Fifth street is probably the most complete one owned by an amateur in the State and much of the material used in its erection is of the professional type, having been supplied by the Marconi people. He was a student at the Marconi School of Wireless Telegraphy in New York city for two months and during the past three months has been doing work for the company in its factory in New York. His first professional work as a wireless operator was done on board the Marconi pilot boat which meets all incoming steamers in New York harbor and he had charge of the apparatus on board this craft for some time prior to his appointment.

Brower's work will take him the entire length of the Pacific Coast, and while his original contract calls for but seventy days of work, he expects to be gone for at least a year. Leon Moran, who left this city two months ago, went to San Francisco in the employ of the Marconi Company as "strike-breaker" and upon the settlement of the differences existing between the company and its employes in that country, he was kept as a reserve operator and is at present awaiting a reappointment in San Francisco.

MRS. WEBB HAS PASSED AWAY

FUNERAL TO BE HERE

The Husband and Two Children Survive Her—Lived at San Antonio—Announcement of Obsequies to Be Made Later.

Mrs. Hannah Webb, wife of George E. Webb, of San Antonio, Texas, and daughter of the late Rev. Dr. and Mrs. David J. Yerkes, of this city, died yesterday at Dr. Strong's Sanitarium, Saratoga, N. Y., where she had been since the latter part of the winter under treatment. The news of Mrs. Webb's death, which reached Plainfield last night, was a great shock to her many friends here who did not know of her illness. Mrs. Webb had been suffering with nervous troubles for some time and this with other complications caused her death.

Mrs. Webb's two children, Miss Elizabeth Flanders and William Flanders, received a telegram on Saturday concerning their mother's critical condition and they were able to reach Saratoga before she passed away. The remains will be brought to the home of Mrs. Webb's sister, Mrs. Walter McGee, in North Plainfield, today, after which announcement of the funeral arrangements will be made.

Mrs. Webb was born in Plainfield her father, Dr. Yerkes, being pastor of the First Baptist church for nearly fifty years. She spent the greater part of her life here. She was married two years ago to Mr. Webb, of San Antonio, after which she went to Texas.

There survives, beside the husband, a daughter, Miss Elizabeth Flanders, and a son, William Flanders, four sisters, Mrs. Charles H. Smith, Mrs. Walter McGee and Miss Ida Yerkes of North Plainfield, and Mrs. H. Worthington Paige, of Oneonta N. Y., and one brother, Joseph B. Yerkes, of this city.

M'REYNOLDS AT ODDS WITH THE PRESIDENT

Wilson Objects to Attorney-General's Methods and Latter May Quit.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, June 10.—A Washington despatch says: "The first sign of the anticipated friction in President Wilson's cabinet has made its appearance and as a result Washington today confidently awaits the news that a member of the President's cabinet will resign." The gossip affects Attorney General McReynolds. The friction between the President and the Attorney General dates back almost to the inauguration.

Tthe President considers that the The President considers that the work of the Department of Justice should be kept entirely secret. Pitiless publicity, according to the President, is intended to apply to the operation of all of the Governmental branches except the Departments of State and Justice. The Attorney General had other ideas which he did not hesitate to express to his chief who has unhesitatingly disagreed. Nevertheless, there were a number of leaks in the Department of Justice.

EULOGIES AT BIER OF DR. WHITNEY

Centenary Institute's Pres't and Others Pay Tributes to Clergyman's Worth.

MANY MOURN HIM

Messages of Condolence From Bishop John Vincent and Rev. Dr. Noble—Rev. Dr. Anderson Has Charge of the Funeral Services.

The funeral service of Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney, for a half-century one of the prominent members of the Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, was held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the First M. E. church. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including many of the alumni of Centenary Collegiate Institute, and a large representation of ministers from the Newark Conference, who had either known or been associated with Dr. Whitney throughout his long service in the ministry and as president of Centenary Collegiate Institute.

There was a large and beautiful display of floral tributes from the institute with which Dr. Whitney was connected for twenty-six years, the various societies of the First M. E. church, the Newark Conference, relatives and personal friends. These flowers were banked about the bier and the pulpit platform, almost hiding the casket.

Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the church, was in charge of the service, and before the addresses of eulogy he read a letter from Eugene A Noble, president of Dickinson College, and Bishop John H. Vincent, of Chicago, in which the former expressed his deep regret in not being able to be present and paying a tribute to Dr. Whitney. The letter from Bishop Vincent was received by Dr. Whitney just a few days before he passed away.

During the service, William E. Searles, Jr., a close personal friend of Dr. Whitney and his family, sang with much effect, "Lead Kindly Light," and "Thou Art Near." S. Frederick Smith, of Grace church, was at the organ. The addresses were made by Rev. Dr. Jonathan Meeker, president of Centenary Collegiate Institute; Rev. Dr. A. H. Tuttle, of Summit, and Jacob Allen, of Hackettstown, a prominent Warren

PEONAGE PROBERS BEGIN THEIR WORK

Senator Martine Heads Committee Investigating West Va. Labor Conditions.

United States Senator James E. Martine has arrived in Charleston, W. Va., to participate in the investigation to be made into allegations that peonage exists in West Virginia, which begins today. The hearings of his own sub-committee, of which he is chairman, will be held in the Charleston Court House. It is expected that over 200 witnesses will be heard and that the investigations will occupy at least two weeks.

The New Jersey Senator insists that if the conditions are a tithe as nasty and the alleged brutalities of thugs employed by the operators to beat unfortunate miners only half as true as represented in petition and affidavits before the committee, he and his colleagues can more easily learn all of the exact facts at first hand.

Conditions reported to Senator Martine and his sub-committeeman are rather revolting and justice demands, he says, that the people of the country must learn the whole truth about them.

DEFENSE CLAIMS MURDERER FLED

Wrong Man Arrested for Death of Deers, Lawyer for Prisoner Asserts.

11TH HOUR SURPRISE

Victor D'Aloia, of Newark, counsel for Mateio Papalillo, of 213 West Third street, who is being tried before Supreme Court Justice J. A. Bergen and Judge James C. Connolly in Elizabeth for the murder of Thomas Deers, colored, furnished a surprise today when he announced, just before the noon recess was called, that a 'Mrs. Salvatore Ianiria,' of this city, confessed to him last Saturday that her husband was the murderer of Deers. The lawyer for the defense further claimed that the woman told him her husband had fled to Italy several weeks ago. In the face of the fact that Deers, when lying on his death bed in Muhlenberg Hospital positively identified Papalillo as his murderer, this assertion by the defense astounded the authorities. Chief Kiely and Detective-Sergeant John J. Flynn, of this city, laughed at the story and said they would have little trouble in producing witnesses to discount the startling revelation.

Dr. William H. Murray, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan and Dr. Charles B. Lufburrow, who performed an operation on Deers in an effort to save his life, were the State's chief witnesses this morning. D'Aloia in his cross examination of the physicians tried to prove that Deers' death had been caused by the severing of an artery during the operation and not by the stab wounds. He was unsuccessful in this, however. John Walton, an orderly at Muhlenberg Hospital, Chief Kiely and County Detective Gallatin, also testified.

Yesterday afternoon the widow of the murdered Deers cried aloud when placed on the stand to identify the clothes worn by her husband the day he met his ill fate. The proceedings were interrupted while she was led from the court room by an attendant.

SOMERVILLE BUDGET IS $30,000 FOR YEAR

Somerville, June 10.—The tax budget, as introduced at the last meeting, was put to second and third reading and then adopted at a meeting of the Somerville Council last night. The total of the budget is $30,000, the same as last year. Borough Collector Brokaw requested the Council to purchase an adding machine for the use of the office, but the finance committee claimed that funds were too low at present for this purpose.

A number of resolutions were passed, and these included authority of the Mayor to sign a contract with the Public Service Corporation for street lights for a term of five years. The terms are slightly lower for lights than the contract just expired, and discounts are also allowed. The borough also decided to take over the Speer sewer, on Hamilton street, at a price of $100, the present owners to relinquish all claims for this sum. A carload of tarvia was ordered purchased for the use of the streets. The fire apparatus committee was authorized to have the roofs of the engine house and also that of the Glen Rock Woolen Mill, upon which the fire alarm is located, repainted at a cost not to exceed $100, and the street committee was authorized to purchase a carload of tarvia for street repairs.

The bills for the current month amounted to over $4,000 and it was ordered that $4,500 be borrowed in anticipation of taxes to meet the current expenses. The Council accepted an invitation of Central Hook & Ladder Company to accompany it to Easton on June 21.

YOUNG WOMEN SEEN IN JAPANESE PLAY

Miss McCutchen Responsible for Clever Production at Her Parents' Home.

"On Account of a Manicured Cat," a clever adaption by Miss Margaret W. McCutchen from the story, "Little Sister Snow," was presented at Miss McCutchen's home last night, under the auspices of the Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, the proceeds being to meet the deficit of the home and foreign missionary union.

The play was in three acts, the scene of the first being a Japanese garden and that of the second and third the home of Yuki Chan. The scenery was very elaborate, that of the first act being an exact reproduction of a Japanese garden. In the decorations there was a real cherry tree, wisteria, iris and other flowers to be found in such a garden, and the same detail as to Japanese decorations were carried out in the other acts, while the members of the cast wore costumes brought from Japan by Miss Elizabeth McGee and her parents. While the whole cast was good, the acting of Miss Elizabeth McGee as "Yuki Chan," an eight-year-old child, and Miss Elizabeth Nash as "Dick Merrit," a sixteen-year-old boy, was especially meritorious. Before and between the acts there were violin solos by Thomas R. Jewett.

The cast of the playlet follows:

"Yuki Chan," Miss Elizabeth McGee; "Dick Merrit," Miss Elizabeth Nash; "Father of Yuki," Miss Mary M. Alexander; "Mother of Yuki," Mrs. Gifford Cooley; "Jinrikisha Man," Miss Gertrude King.

The play was given in the large reception hall, just suited to accommodate the large number of guests present. After the entertainment refreshments were served by the hostess. Miss Margaret McCutchen, who arranged the affair, is the vice president of the Young Women's Missionary Society. In place of programs, there was displayed a large poster, hand- painted, giving the cast and a pretty Japanese scene.

A special meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education was held last night for the purpose of completing arrangements for the High School commencement exercises which will be held in the Plainfield theatre next Friday night. Certificates for the completion of the borough High School course were granted to Henry N. Spencer, Alfred Schroeder, Clarence B. Schmidt, Clara B. In connection with the movement to eliminate all unnecessary expenses in the running of the North Plainfield schools, the Board decided not to engage a professional speaker for the theatre exercises, and the addresses of the valedictorian and salutatorian will be the only ones on the program, aside from the few remarks by the donor of the Yale cup. Another new feature of the exercises will be the combination of the Class Day exercises which have heretofore been held as a separate affair prior to the graduation.

TUTTLE FAVORS JAS. F. FIELDER

Congressman Praises Acting Governor and Will Support Him for Nomination.

OTHERS OUT FOR HIM

Leaders in the Democratic party in both Union and Somerset counties are declaring themselves in favor of acting Governor James F. Fielder for the gubernatorial nomination and the political wiseacres say that he will have these two counties solid for him at the primaries next fall.

The latest to declare his allegience to Fielder in a formal statement is the Fifth district's able and popular Congressman, William E. Tuttle, of Union county, who said today to a representative of The Plainfield Daily Press:

"I am satisfied that the rank and file of Union county Democrats look with favor upon the candidacy of Governor Fielder. He is well and favorably known here, and from those with whom I have talked I have heard only words of commendation for his administration.

"Governor Fielder's long experience in both Houses of the Legislature, his familiarity with the affairs of the State, his firm grasp of the principles of government, and his thorough understanding of the problems which now confront us make him a particularly desirable candidate at this time.

"He has impressed me as a man square, common sense, both feet on the ground kind of a man. He favors progressive legislation and always stands for needed reforms. He stood shoulder to shoulder with Woodrow Wilson during the great struggles of the past two years, and the retiring Governor in his last message said that he was a man of 'proved character, capacity, fidelity, and devotion to the public service, a type to which the people of the State desire their public men to conform.

"His ability and integrity are unquestioned. His qualifications have been proved by his conduct at Trenton during the few months he has served as Governor entitles him to the nomination, and I believe that the Democratic party owes it to itself and to the people of the State to name James F. Fielder as its standard bearer in this campaign. He can best lead in carrying out the policies to which we are committed."

William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, Democratic State committeeman for Somerset county, also has allied himself with the Fielder cohorts and is enthusiastically in fafor of the acting Governor's nomination and election.

SURPRISED BY CLUB MEMBERS ON 26TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Bailey were surprised at their home on Summit avenue, last night, by about twenty members of a card club to which they belong, the occasion being their twenty-sixth wedding anniversary. During the course of the evening, which was spent in card playing and in the rendition of a musical program, the couple were presented with a cut glass set by the members of the club.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bailey are well known to a large circle of friends in this city and the borough. Mr. Bailey is a carrier in the local postoffice and is organist in St. Joseph's church. Mrs. Bailey, who before her marriage was Miss Mary Mullen, of West Fifth street, is an active worker in the Women's League of St. Joseph's church. The couple were married in St. Mary's church, this city, twenty-six years ago yesterday by Father Smith, who was at that time the pastor of the church.

FIRE IN MARTINE BUILDING.

Reason—All the odd sizes from the Crex mills (a car-load just received; the other half of these went to our Philadelphia customers—who cleaned them out in practically a day.) For example, a rug that should have been 9 x 12 feet is finished 9 x 11½ feet. Perfect in every respect, but half a foot short one way; cannot therefore be classed as standard. So out it goes at a lessened price.

WHAT HURTS COMMUNITY.

When the Plainfield Board of Health enacted a measure licensing the keeping of chickens, a general laugh was enjoyed in the community, but there was no protest, as there should have been, because the Board only asked that the man who has a little home and raises a few chickens to provide a few eggs for his table pay but twenty-five cents to save himself from being molested by that august body. But it has remained for North Plainfield's Council to make itself still more ridiculous for that great body has actually pending an ordinance providing for the licensing of Tabby. If any mother dare harbor a kitty for her little child to play with, her lord and master must give up $2.50 a year for the privilege. Any one knows that you can buy all the cats you want, at least the common run of them, for much less than the amount of the fee to be exacted by the borough, but that seems to make no difference. If you live in North Plainfield and have a kitten in your home as a pet, you must pay for it and pay for it well.

In our esteemed contemporary's columns, Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll says that the action of the North Plainfield Council "raises the question whether a similar fee is to be exacted for rats and mice" and he asks, if not, why not? And following the same course of reasoning to other conclusions he asks when are the squirrels and the birds to be licensed. This doctor, will all come in due time. Canary birds are next on the list as a subject for taxation.

People are asking "What's the matter with Plainfield?" by which is meant the whole community. This $2.50 license fee for cats and that twenty-five cent license fee for chickens are certainly good advertisements for the place, aren't they?

GOLIATH OF THE SEAS.

The Hamburg-American Company's new liner Imperator will leave Hamburg, Germany tomorrow on her maiden voyage to New York. The big vessel, which is a triumph of marine architecture, will carry a complement of more than 4,000 passengers, among whom will be many well-known Americans. It is expected that under ordinary circumstances New York will be reached next Tuesday evening or early Wednesday morning, and when the Imperator ties up at her dock in the North River New Yorkers will have an opportunity to inspect the largest vessel in the world.

She has a gross tonnage of 50,000 (or nearly 5,000 tons greater than the Olympic) and is of the same general dimensions as the great Aquitania now nearing completion for the Cunard line. There are eleven decks on the liner. The promenade deck is a quarter of a mile long, so long in fact that a person standing at one end could not recognize a person at the other end. Rover steamboats of average size could sail lengthwise through one of the giant funnels of the Imperator.

One of the novel features of the big vessel is a roomy swimming-pool in a beautiful Pompeian hall. Among other luxuries with which the vessel has been fitted are a great entertainment hall two stories high, three electric elevators, a completely equipped gymnasium, a "cottage" cafe, a winter garden and a Ritz-Carleton restaurant. The main dining salon is 300 feet long. It is the Goliath of the seas.

REV. DR. WHITNEY.

That grand old man of Methodism, Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney, has gone to his reward but his memory will abide with us. He was about the finest and noblest type of the old time evangelical minister to be found and his virtues were many. As a scholar, as a courtly and democratic man he was beloved by his fellow townsmen. In many respects he resembled the late Dean Rodman and the late Dr. D. J. Yerkes, both of whom were the friend and the Christian councilor of the masses irrespective of denominational ties. George H. Whitney was a true Christian soldier.

It also requires that each articles that is paid for shall be designed as advertisement. The decision was rendered in the cast of the Lewis Publishing Co. and The Journal of Commerce, of New York.

ANNUAL MEETING OF GRACE CHURCH MEN'S ASSOCIATION

Encouraging reports of the work accomplished by the Men's Club of the Grace Episcopal church were submitted at the annual meeting held in the Hartridge auditorium last night and these officers were elected to carry on and further the work during the issuing term: President, R. A. Claybrook; vice president, W. W. Robison; secretary, Ralph C. Davison; treasurer, A. E. Faber, Jr. W. H. P. Veysey, the retiring president, was heralded as the "Father of the Federation of Men's Clubs," an organization that has been recently effected, at last night's meeting and in responding to the toast Mr. Veysey said that the move had been started through the co-operation received from the club members and not through individual effort.

An executive committee consisting of W. H. P. Veysey, S. W. Iredell, Seymour Perkins, E. A. Sproull and Howard Fleming was selected at last night's meeting. Following the business session the members, numbering about twenty-five enjoyed an evening of bowling followed by the serving of refreshments.

IT'S A RATTLING GOOD SHOW AT THE PROCTOR

Proctor's all-star vaudeville bill, headed by Frank Bush, whose reputation as a story-teller is country-wide, pleased the patrons at that popular playhouse yesterday afternoon and last night. The variety and general excellence of the different acts afforded an exceptionally good entertainment. Several times last night, the "S. R. O." was displayed. Mr. Bush varies his program at each show, telling different stories, and his caricatures are especially good.

The rest of the bill include Mr. and Mrs. Thomas in "The Dog and the Thief;" Nip and Tuck, comedy acrobats; Lowe & Devere, song and dance artists: Youno, comedy juggler, and Dilks & Warde, musical team.

The management being convinced that the single women singing acts are not popular with the patrons, announced today that these acts will be eliminated from the bill after this week. That the improvement in the vaudeville is appreciated, is shown by the increased attendance each day. Other improvemnts are contemplated by the management, announcement of which will be made soon.

THE FORUM.

A GREAT SONG BIRD.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

Sunday was Children's Day at the Park Avenue Baptist church, and many children were there from the Sunday-school, and many grown people. Pastor Maguire, as usual on such occasions, had requested friends who had canaries to bring them to the church, and the birds were generally heard from their cages.

Recently a beautiful canary was brought to the lady of the house, 136 East Ninth street. Frequently, in fact every morning, about 5 to 6 o'clock, that canary began to sing, and if the family was not all awake at that time they soon heard the voice of that bird, and they could hear it the great part of the day.

That canary was allowed to be brought into the large church room, and the cage was carefully hung upon the wall, near the organ, the piano, the violins with volumes of music issued from said mechanical organizations; and the children, and many adult people, all singing with their best efforts, as usual; and as that canary was a perfect stranger to that houseful of musicians, evidently that canary was somewhat nonplused for awhile, as all we heard for some fifteen minutes or so was a very modest tone of voice; but a little later on I observed that that bird had come to its wits, and I then heard four tones of voice, not very strong but shortly thereafter, when the entire musicians did their splendid work, I then heard, easily, the four tones of that canary (such as we had been accustomed to listen to at our house), above the entire musicians; and many of those present, listening to the music, looked at that little bird with amazement. Sunday afternoon we heard the same clear voice, and the same four notes of that little bird from its cage, while we were taking our dinner.

Yours respectfully,
NELSON RUNYON.

CRITICISM OF CITY.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

"Why are there so many vacant houses in Plainfield?"

We hear this question propounded from all sides, and various reasons are ascribed.

If I may venture an opinion, I shall give the following as contributing causes of the very evident slump which our city is experiencing:

(1) Very poor street lights—the disgracefully dim and scattered variety.

(2) Enormous expenditures for school purposes, applying particularly to what might be termed "unnecessary fancy trimmings of the curriculum." Also the fact that there are no separate accommodations for white and colored children is very unfavorably commented upon by a great number of residents as well as "prospectives."

(3) The tax rate, when set down in mere figures may seem reasonable, but when the practical benefits derived in return are considered, we find that we get very little aside from the education of our children (if we have any) and the privilege of owning property in the "City Beautiful."

(4) Our delinquent taxpayers are penalized at the rate of ten per cent. per annum—rather uncomfortable for the fellow already in hard luck.

(5) Water, light, ash and garbage removal, and in fact everything else under the sun we have to pay for, and pay well, too.

(6) No City Hall or Public Building.

(7) No Public Park worthy of the name. No free amusements.

(8) No Public Market.

(9) No Building Laws to prevent the erection of unsightly one-story "taxpayers" on the main business streets.

(10) Failure to effect consolidation with North Plainfield.

This is the situation as it looks from the inside. Outsiders have been known to decline Plainfield as a place of residence for other reasons, too, such as "mosquitoes" and because "Plainfield's so infernally hot in summer," but these, unlike the previously mentioned causes, are defects of nature, not of human government.

In conclusion I wish to say, that in using the words "City Beautiful" in the third of my "causes," I am perfectly sincere, and no sarcasm is intended. Plainfield is a City of Beautiful Homes, and the homes are splendidly maintained, too, as a walk or drive through street and avenue will convince anyone.

If we would only expedite the establishment of a local government that will look for and endeavor to bring about broader results—not simply strive to maintain Plainfield's prestige as an exclusive "home-made" town as it is today—we will, I think, be doing the most important, the most necessary thing towards our future growth and success.

Very truly yours,
DAVID G. THOMSON.

How many names of streets or avenues of Plainfield or North Plainfield can you find in this story.

To the first five persons sending to The American Flag Editor the most names of streets and, or, avenues, appearing in this story only, the Plainfield Daily Press will gve five American flags. Send in your answer. Win one of the flags.

Put your heart and soul into the thing you do and it will take the drudgery out of toil and make you an artist instead of a plodder. So long as a candidate makes up his mind it is going to be a great battle to win one of the valuable prizes offered by The Plainfield Daily Press so long will it be a drudgery to ask his friends to subscribe for The Daily Press on which votes will be given and votes will win the automobiles.

Try the twentieth century manner of securing subscribers. Let your face beam with enthusiasm. Have the I-know-I-will-win expression. Approach your friends in a manner which will defy them to say: "If I thought you had a chance I would subscribe."

Every candiate's chance of winning is equal so far as the contest department is concerned. The race, however, is a handicap in this way. The candidate who thinks he is going to win and tells his friends he is in to the finish naturally will secure more subscribers than the one who says "well, if I get a gold watch I will be satisfied." When the final count is made perhaps the candidate who aspired for the gold watch earlier in the contest will have no occasion to be disappointed.

Votes will be allowed on new subscriptions to The Daily Press and renewals of present subscriptions. It is not necessary for a subscriber to take two papers during the contest. Should he be paid in advance for another paper The Daily Press will be sent after the present subscription with another paper expires. Remember a renewal of an old subscriber always bears the same vote getting value as a brand new name.

In other contests a renewal would only count half as much as a new subscriber; not so in this, however. An old subscriber who has read the Daily Press for years can assist his favorite just as much as a new name. Why shouldn't he? The time to make your subscription count most is NOW. Help your favorite while the votes are highest. June 18 is the limit of the largest and best offer of the contest. Every subscription received and turned over to the contest department on or before that date will bear ten times the vote getting value as a subscripion for the same length of time secured during the past period of the contest.

A candidate can be second in his district and still win an automobile

Remember a candidate is at liberty to secure subscriptions any place in the United States.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Chauncey Olcott, in Henry Miller's splendid production of the new play, "The Isle o' Dreams," will be seen for the first time in this city at the Plainfield theatre, Wednesday evening. The new play is from the pen of Rida Johnson Young, and from all accounts stands at the head of its class as an Irish play. The characteristic atmosphere of the story is one of its chief charms. It deals with the adventures of Ivor Kelway, who was rescued from the sea while an infant by a sterling old priest, and brought up in the atmosphere of the Castle of the O'Doons, on a small island situated off the south coast of Ireland. He and Kathleen, the heiress of all the O'Doons, grow us as inseparable playfellows, and the attachment, a strong one, still exists. Kathleen's brother returns from Paris, where he has been at school on a visit to his parents, and is pursued as a French spy by the English troopers. When Kathleen asks Ivor to help her brother escape, he thinks it is her love she is pleading for, and the knowledge then comes to him that he is in love with her himself, and that their old relations of playfellows can no longer exist. He also sees with dismay the difference in social position between them, the daughter of a noble line and the poor castaway of the sea. He fights for her, however, and suffers for her, and in the end is discovered to be of noble birth himself, and ably fitted to mate even with an O'Doon, and the play ends with the faint chime of wedding-bells ringing in the imagination. The story is well wrought, and there are many delightful comedy situations of the delicate sort that are always looked for in every Oclott production. Irish songs abound in the piece, and some charming incidental music has been composed for it. The scenic and costume enhancement of the play are unusually fine, as may be expected from a Henry Miller presentation of any play. Mr. Olcott is supported by one of the strongest companies that ever surrounded him. "The Isle o' Dreams" from all accounts is very likely to duplicate the success here with which it has been meeting everywhere throughout the country.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

By far the largest arenic tournament ever staged at the circus is at Luna Park. These outdoor features are held in the center of the park and are free. Equestrienne acts are given in a large circus ring in the center of a bridge over the main lagoon; wire performers and tumblers hold sway on a broad platform stage, and still a third space is devoted to animal feats. With the cabaret and vaudeville performances in the ballroom Luna has a diversified program of entertainment for those who like to visit this electric city by the sea but do not care to indulge in the strenuous side of it. Enormous crowds have visited Luna. Last Sunday was as busy a day as the park has ever had. The throngs came early and staid late. In the reconstruction of the big enclosure Frederic Thompson designed a veritable maze of amusements and attractions. There is no set arrangement for them. Laughing devices, spectacles, thrilling rides and scenic displays are scattered everywhere so that no matter which way one gazes there is something for one's eyes to feast upon or something that appeals to one's bone. One of Luna's newest attractions is a huge animal show, with the greatest collection of wild beasts ever gathered at Coney. It is installed in the large building that was used for the "Trip to the Moon." Every conceivable kind of jungle beast is to be found there and there is an exhibition of trained animals that is both instructive and entertaining.

EULOGIES FOR DR. WHITNEY

county lawyer, and former trustees of the institute, who had known Dr. Whitney for forty years. At the conclusion of the addresses, Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, district superintendent of the Elizabeth district, Newark Conference, offered prayer.

Dr. Meeker, who spoke of Dr. Whitney as an educator, said that he would always live in the hearts of the hundreds of students who had received the impress of his influence. He said that there was something about Dr. Whitney and his personality that was indescribable. He said that the three men who had had the great influence on him during his life were John F. Pingry, founder of the Pingry School; Rev. Dr. Henry A. Butts, of Drew Seminary, and Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney.

After recalling some personal reminiscences, Dr. Meeker spoke of the sweet and gentle spirit which Dr. Whitney possessed, adding that his heart was ever burning with love and his influence and memory would live on generation after generation. He referred to three of his well-known characteristics, cheerfulness, will power and an unswerving faith in Christ, declaring that it was his strong faith in Christ that made him what he was, an ideal Christian gentleman.

Mr. Allen in his short address of eulogy, referred to Dr. Whitney from a personal view-point as he had known him for forty years, and of the strong and abiding friendship that had always existed between them. He said that Dr. Whitney was one of God's noblest characters, one who had more good qualities than any other person he had ever known. He was always the same and the fear of God was always in him.

Dr. Whitney's place in the ministerial world was the chief thought upon which Dr. Tuttle based his remarks. He said that in his death the Newark Conference had lost one of its most distinguished sons, but that his influence and spirit would live on forever, especially the impress he made on hundreds of souls.

"We will not forget him," said Dr. Tuttle. "I asked a friend a few days ago what was the best thing I could say about our departed brother, and he replied: 'Every man who knew him could swear by him.' I was his pastor for a term of years and grew to know him intimately. I know of his patience in suffering and his noble courage.

"He was an educator, and even more, a minister throughout his whole life. He was great as a preacher. His ideal was Robert Stockton but he was not like him, in fact he said that he did not want to be like him. He was a beautiful writer and had few peers in this respect."

Concluding the services, Dr. Randolph offered prayer. The remains were then taken to Newark by automobile, the burial being in Fairmount cemetery.

Among the ministers who acted as honorary pall-bearers were Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, of this city; Rev. S. T. Jackson, of Hackettstown; Rev. Chester J. Hoyt, of Verona; Rev. Warren Neff, of Hoboken; Rev. W. E. Palmer, of Perth Amboy; Rev. George Mooney, of Paterson; Dr. A. S. Kavanah, superintendent of the M. E. Hospital, Brooklyn; Rev. George Fountain, of Irvington; Rev. William Day, of Morristown; Rev. Frank Chadwick, of Mendham.

Hints For the Canner.

The first requisite for good canned and preserved fruit is sound, fresh fruit—perfect fruits, as nearly as that can be obtained.

The fruit must either be cooked in the jars or else must be put into scalding hot jars when it is boiling. This boiling and scalding are necessary if the fruit is to keep well.

If the fruit is cooked in a preserving kettle—and berries and smal fruits generally are cooked in this way—put the jars, which are absolutely clean, in a big pan, on the bottom of which is a cloth or a little straw. Partly fill the pan with water and fill each jar full of water. Put the pan over the fire and let the water come to the boiling point. Then empty the jars, carefully, to avoid scalding your fingers, into the pan and remove surplus water from the pan with a soup ladle Put the rubbers and covers of the cans in a basin of boiling water. As soon as the jars are emptied of water put in the cooked fruit, filling each jar to overflowing. Lift the rubbers and covers out of the boiling water with a perforated ladle and put them immediately on the filled jars.

It is an economy, in the long run, never to use old rubbers. This has been done without injury to the fruit, when the rubbers have been scalded But it is dangerous and the risk of having spoiled fruit on your shelves before the winter is gone is lessened when fresh, new rubbers are used.

The method of cooking the fruit in the jars calls for a hot syrup, which is poured over the uncooked fruit in the jars. The jars are set in cold water on a cloth or rack in the bottom of a pan. They are covered and put over the fire until they are cooked through. Some extra, boiling syrup must be ready to pour into the jars when the fruit is cooked, so that they are filled to overflowing. They must then be covered with covers and rubbers sterilized by boiling.

Jellies.

In making jelly use fruit that is just ripe. This sort jellies much better than that which is little over ripe, and, of course, the under-ripe sort is not fit to use. If the jelly does not jell and if it has been made according to directions, do not put it back on the fire and boil it again. Instead stand it in the sunshine for a few days, until it is thick enough.

The rule for making jelly calls for equal parts of sugar and strained fruit juice, measured in a quart measure. The juice should be boiled for twenty minutes, while the sugar is warming in the oven. The two should then be put together and boiled up once. The jelly is then ready to bottle. After it is set, cover it with melted parrafine. Be generous with the parrafine. It is not expensive, and a thick layer of it keeps the air out more certainly than a thin layer, which may be broken by an air bubble.

For canned fruit use the following amount of sugar to a quart jar of fruit; four ounces for cherries, eight for strawberries, four for raspberries, six for quinces, eight for pineapple and rhubarb, four for peaches and pears and eight for currants.

FASHION HINT

By JUDIC CHOLLET

There is no skirt smarter than the one made in sections. It is narrow without exaggeration, the cutaway edges giving just a slight suggestion of an opening at the lower edge.

In the picture it is made of serge, with the tailored finish, and it is perfectly adapted to materials of this kind and also to thin wash fabrics and is good carried out in embroidery flouncings. These flouncings this year come in a new design, very open and effective, that resembles expensive lace.

THE SECTIONAL SKIRT.

For the medium size the skirt requires four and a half yards of material twenty-seven inches wide.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes from 22 to 30 inches waist measure. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 7865, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

Some Cookery Suggestions

PUTTING UP CHERRIES.

THE thrifty housewife makes the best of a good cherry year by putting up plenty of the fruit. She will then have a surplus to last her over a season of scarcity.

Cherry Jam.—Stone the cherries and weigh, allowing an equal weight of sugar. Place in a preserving kettle and let stand in a cold place overnight. In the morning cook until the jam jellies on the spoon. Then turn into jars and put away for use.

Delicious Concoctions.

Cherry Marmalade.—To three pounds of sweet and one pound of sour cherries allow two pounds of sugar. Weigh the cherries when stemmed and pitted. Make a sirup of the sugar and add one tablespoonful of cinnamon bark and one teaspoonful of cloves tied in a cloth. Put in the sweet cherries first, adding the sour ones one-half hour later. Boil down thick. Put in jars and when cold cover with paraffin.

Cherry Jelly.—Take the unsweetened juice and mix with equal proportion of gooseberry or currant juice. This makes a delicious jelly, using cupful for cupful of sugar and the mixed juice. Cook about fifteen minutes. Then put in glasses and let cool before covering and putting away to keep.

Standard Methods.

Preserved Cherries.—Cherries may be preserved either with or without the stones. Many think the stones add to the flavor. To each pound of cherries allow one-third of a pound of sugar. Put the sugar in the preserving kettle with half a pint of water to three pounds of sugar and stir until it is dissolved. When boiling add the cherries, and cook till thick. Then put in jars.

Canned Cherries.—Stone the cherries and throw them into a kettle of boiling water, a few quarts at a time. When they are scalded skim them out, drain thoroughly and can them in a rich sirup. This is the best way of canning cherries.

AN INTERESTING COMMENCEMENT.

When one hears of a department store conducting a school for its employees one's first inclination is to shrug the shoulders, and one's first thought is that altruism is an unknown quantity in the business world and consequently the educational training of employees must be a superficial one.

As a matter of fact there was never a greater mistake. It was a liberal education in modern methods of business to attend the commencement exercises of the John Wanamaker Commercial Institute which was held in the Wanamaker Auditorium on Saturday last. Fifty-six girls and seventeen boys were graduated, some with honors. The course of study in the school embraces Spelling, Penmanship, English, Arithmetic, Correspondence, Business Methods, Business Geography, Business Law, Typewriting, Ethics, Civics, Bookkeeping, Vocal and Instrumental Music, Public Speaking, and Calisthenics. For these courses there are nine instructors with a principal in charge.

This commencement marked the close of the fourth year of the school, and every year sees greater progress, better development and increased interest. It offers an exceptional opportunity to the boys and girls who are compelled by economic conditions to do their share of the family bread-winning at the sacrifice of a necessary education. The course of study which is open to the younger employees of the John Wanamaker Store makes up for this and, in fact, it goes even farther, for the practical demands of business are considered as would be almost impossible in an ordinary school course.

The school is conducted in four good-sized, well-lighted class rooms, supply and uniform rooms, and a large gymnasium and drill floor. The Military organization is one of the most valued features of the J. W. C. I. as the school is briefly called. Colonel A. J. Schauz has brought the Regiment to a high state of efficiency In fact, it had the honor of marching in the sixth division of the Decoration Day Parade this year. The band is worthy of special comment not only for its splendid appearance in its red uniforms but for the excellence of its work. At the exercises on Saturday it contributed the most stirring music. The drills of the young men in Companies D and B were excellent The girls gave exhibitions of a Willow Wand Drill, a Dumb Bell Drill and an Indian Club Drill which was a credit to their instructor, Miss Frances Weston, who also trained the girls who took the part of fairies in the scene which the pupils gave from "Midsummer Night's Dream." This was especially pretty, the girls going through the figures with daintiness and grace

An innovation this year was the awarding of bronze medals of merit to students qualifying in Military and Physical Drill, Attendance and Discipline, School Record and Department Record. A gold medal is given every year to the pupil who ranks highest in each graduating class. It is impossible to conceive any comprehensive idea of the incentive this is to the younger members of the John Wanamaker Organization or how far reaching is its influence.

That the organization is unique is evidenced in the fact that the principal, Mr. William D. Earnest has had inquiries concerning the work from Edinburgh, Scotland, Germany, Canada, California and cor oiaropnthsothuugot Ethfognia and corporations throughout the South and Southwest Mr. Wanamaker is to be warmly congratulated on the inception of the idea and on its unqualified success.

Grandpa Bought Some Fireworks

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Their Fireworks Were Ahead Of Time.

FIRECRACKERS are out of style, so daddy told Jack and Evelyn when they begged for some with which to make lively the Fourth of July.

"We may have a few," daddy said, "but we don't want to scare the neighbors too much."

"I don't see how they could be scared," Jack urged. "They know we would be very careful."

"Ah, do they?" daddy answered, smiling. "That is very nice. Little Sammie Simpson was one of the very careful boys.

"Firecrackers were not the fashion in the town in which he lived. So the summer he went to visit his grandfather and grandmother he begged so hard to be allowed plenty of them that the old folks at last agreed.

"They had a large place, with no neighbors very close to them, and so when grandpa went to town he got some of the very largest firecrackers he could get. He also bought plenty of rockets and roman candles and colored fire for the evening.

"Grandma did not want them in the house, so grandpa put them in the shed, which was used for the storing of rubbish. Grandma felt uneasy about having them there, although it was quite a distance from the house.

"Sammie could hardly wait for the Fourth to come. He teased and teased just to be allowed to try one little cracker. So the evening before the Fourth grandpa said, 'Well, as tomorrow is the Fourth, I suppose we might try one of those rockets.'

"Grandma groaned. 'You'll be very, very careful,' she warned. 'You know it's a good while since you've sent up any rockets.'

"Grandpa laughed boyishly. 'As if I could ever forget how to send up rockets!' he answered.

"Grandpa and Sammie went out to the little shed in which the fireworks were stored, and grandpa picked up a rocket. He took it out into the yard and set it up. Now, you know, a rocket must be set into the ground very straight if you want it to sail up to the sky, perhaps grandma was right. Grandpa was a little out of practice. At any rate, when lighted that rocket sizzed and sputtered and with a sideway dive curved over and went straight into the door of the shed where the fireworks were. The floor was covered with shavings, and in a minute there was a display of fireworks such as had never been seen around there before. The fire company came to put out the fire, and there was a lively time for a little while. The shed was burned down, but no one was hurt except grandpa, who blistered his hands and face.

"The next day was the Fourth, and Sammie had no fireworks. 'And I guess I don't mind any,' he confided to grandma. 'We had plenty of fireworks last night.'"

"MAC" SAYS

International Polo.

America is ready, England is ready. Men and horses await the chirp of the referee's whistle late this afternoon that will send eight steeds crashing down the wide green field at the Meadowbrook Club, opening another era in international competition. With the English delegation ruling a slight favorite and the American quartet shattered to some extent through injuries, the teams will take the field before an international crowd estimated to reach 30,000.

Another sensation developed in the ranks of the English four yesterday afternoon when a rumor was circulated to the effect that the best man had been dropped. At first the report had it that Lord Wodehouse would play at back instead of Captain Lockett, while later on the plan was to put F. M. Freake on instead of Leslie St. George Cheape. Speculation was rife as to the cause of the change, and those in a patriotic mood were jubilant, as any break in the ranks of the English combination enhanced the chances of an American victory.

The polo experts are taking the shakeup in the American team as an evidence of added strength, but to the persons who just view things from a purely casual observation it would be difficult to agree with them. To change the team almost in its entirety at so late a date doesn't seem just the proper caper, and to argue that a brand new four will do better than the old one seems to be about as silly a stand to take as could possibly be persued.

Maybe the new polo team will make a far better showing than the old one. Maybe! But those who witnessed the last one will have to be shown. If the men were not in condition, it was too bad, yet it seems strange that the men have been practicing together for months and the fact wasn't discovered before. Captain Whitney and his men were probably all right physically but did not hitch socially.

U. S. Nearer Davis Trophy.

Youth and superior service once more triumphed in the Davis cup matches yesterday afternoon and by virtue of their possession of these assets the American tennis representatives won the right to play the German team in the second round of the cup preliminaries. McLoughlin again proved himself a master with the recquet, time and again sending the erratic, bounding, felt covered ball spinning past his opponent, and on one occasion, the speed was so great that the racquet was knocked out of the Englishman's hands.

Yale is the 1913 Champion.

By defeating the Princeton Tigers for the first time in four years in a series, the Yale baseball team won the diamond championship of Eastern Universities yesterday afternoon in the most exciting and terrific game of baseball played on the Bengal field in a decade. It is the first time since 1895 that the Blue has won from Princeton in two straight games and in order to turn the trick the Yale nine had to struggle through twelve nerve-racking innings. The final score was 5 to 4, the deciding run having been brought across the rubber when Gill threw to first instead of to home, Middlebrook scoring the winning tally on the out.

Another Cup For P. H. S.

By virtue of their tenth inning victory over the North Plainfield High School aggregation the Plainfield High School baseball players are now the proud possessors of the Collier cup, the handsomest ever offered for athletic competition in this city and the trophy will be added to their already large collection of mugs on the school shelves. The keen fight that the boroughites put up in the battle for the supreme honors on the diamond was surprising, for the Canadians were looked upon as weak rivals from the outset. Under adverse conditions, however, the N. P. H. S. nine sprang the inevitable, and with a team, one member of which had to be drafted from the grammar school, they threw a terrific scare into the local nine's camp and put up a losing fight such as has made the borough athletic teams famous in the past.

Annual Y. M. C. A. Meet.

For some unknown reason the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. officials have decided not to hold their annual athletic meet on the Fourth of July at Parker field this year and as a result Plainfield will be without a competitive field and track affair on that date.

A number of local athletes, however, are planning to take in the Safe and Sane oFurth celebration in New Brunswick on that date and will find the competition they yearn for at that place.

SENIORS AND FACULTY IN ANNUAL TILT ON THE BASEBALL DIAMOND

A dozen Plainfield High School professors have been burning the midnight oil for the past two weeks trying to discover certain unknown quantities in curvology to spring on the seniors in their annual tilt which was staged on Parker Field yesterday afternoon, and if the "old timers" performances on that occasion may be taken as a criterion of their genuine ability and what studying would do for the ball player, it might be well to suggest right here that some of the local ball nines take just about ten weeks of the midnight soot producing treatment and then we would have some half way decent diamond demonstrators. Of course, little can be garnered concerning the "profs" real ability in one short afternoon, but that was plenty long enough to discover that some of them are really good for something else besides drilling holes in fourteen carat craniums in which an injection of "intellectuality" may be made. To be sure the knowledge distributers learned more by actual example yesterday afternoon than they did during weeks of paper and pencilingit, and they round out before the contest was terminated that a bail could not pass through the batter's box in more than one straight line while traveling via the pitcher to catcher route.

At times the whizzing spheriod connected with a splinter in the hands of a senior swaismith in a way that sent it spinning along mother earth at a momentum of not less than sixty minutes in one mile, and then again some over-worked professor took a nap behind one of the bags while the little chunk of horsehide was traveling slowly but surely in his territory. Some of the teachers really pretended not to see the illusive round thing when it was headed for their territory and then again, some one who was lucky enough to plant his personality directly in the path of the on rushing missle managed to conclude the trouble maker's march to the tall timbers or cinder track.

The feminine portion of the faculty probably did as much toward making the affair interesting as did their male friends for their entreaties to the senior rooters at crucial intervals were met with an apt response (training of the school room, of course), "please don't cheer at any errors you might embarrass the poor fellow who is doing his best to demonstrate that he is a true blooded American by playing the National game." Some of the sideline players with hats trimmed with a profusion of asparagus tips and orange peels really pronounced the "profs" to be in "the pink of condition" before the contest started, but after a few innings of play the pink had faded perceptibility in many cases. Never before were bleacherites so choice in their words of approval and disapproval and throughout the while afternoon nary a time were the old familiar expressions, "he hits 'em where they ain't, or "too are to handle, get a basket," or "kill the umpire he is throwing the game," heard on the unshaded stands. Instead the newest thing in baseball was the feature, such as "isn't that ball horrible to go so fast," "doesn't the umpire look cute with that veil over his face" and "that is the cutest animal I ever saw in a cage" (referring to the catcher).

No less than twenty-seven players took part in the comedy which was politely handed to the professors with a score card reading 6 to 5 in their favor. No less than twelve batters whiffed the atmosphere at Best's benders and but six bingles were garnered from his delivery, while ten teachers swung heavilly three times in the empty air and seven times connected for saffies.

HARD HITTING HAS WON FOR PHILLIES

Sixteen Circuit Clouts to Date is Their Record—Can Hit all Pitchers.

One of the reasons why the Phillies, after reaching the top rung of the championship ladder on May 1, have managed to keep possession of it has been the ability of the players to punch out four baggers. The Quakers easily are the home run kings of the major league world, and to May 24, inclusive, had made sixteen of the sixty-eight circuit clouts manufactured in Tom Lynch's organization.

To the same date in the American League twenty-eight four bag blows had been struck, so Dooin's Darlings have to their credit one-sixth of the major league home run output of 1913.

Sherwood Magee, Fred Luderus and "Cactus" Cravath are the dangerous athletes on the Quaker combination. These three men have whaled out twelve four baggers and have broken up many a combat. Magee has five homers to his credit, of which three were secured off right handers and two off left handers. Sherwood obtained his first loop-the-loop swat on April 26th off Hub Perdue, of the Braves; his second and third off Rube Marquard, of the Giants, on May 5; his fourth off Marty O'Toole, of the Pirates, on May 12, and his fifth off Howard Camnitz, of the same combination on the following day.

Fred Luderus has poled four homers, his first hit of this kind being made at the Polo Grounds off Jeff Tesreau and the next three wallops being manufactured in Philadelphia. The pitchers Ludy maltreated at home were Steele, of St. Louis, and Harter and Brown, of Cincinnati. Luderus has had the happy faculty of making his four baggers at opportune moments, for the hits off Steele and Brown won games for the Doubtites.

Cravath, who, if he could field as well as he can hit, would stand an excellent chance of winning the car offered by Hugh Chalmers, of Detroit, for the National League's most valuable player, has three homers to his credit. He gained the first while acting as a pinch hitter, smiting the first ball served him by Christy Mathewson and promptly driving it out of the lot. Rube Marquard and Howard Camnitz are the other flingers whom Cravath has jarred for homers.

Besides Magee, Luderus and Cravath, four other Phillies Dode Paskert, Otto Knabe, Mike Doolan and Tom Seaton have hit for the circuit this year. Knabe's four-play smash kept the Phils from falling into second place and Paskert's was made on the first ball pitched in the first inning, he being the Quaker's lead off man.

No Quaker has as yet turned the trick accomplished by Joe Jackson, Lee Magee and Joe Connelly this year—that of hammering out a four-bagger when all the bases had occupants; but the season still is in its infancy, as Charles Hercules Ebbets would say. Cravath has to share with Alva Williams, of the Senators, the distinction of having smote for the circuit when acting as sub swatter and Sherwood Magee has to divide with Charley Stengel, of the Superbas, the honor of having contributed two four baggers in the same controversy. Stengel, like Magee, got his brace of four baggers off a south paw, Otto Hess, of the Braves, being the man whom the Brooklyns stung. The number of hotae made by the Phillies this year and the pitchers off whom they were made will be found below:

MAGEE—5

April 26—Off Perdue, Boston.
May 5—Off Marquard, New York.
May 12—Off O'Toole, Pittsburg.
May 13—Off Camnitz, Pittsburg.

LUDERUS—4

April 22—Off Tesreau, New York.
May 2—Off Steele, St. Louis game resulting 3 to 1 in Phillies favor, the victory being due to homer, made with man on base.
May 23—Off Harter, Cincinnati.
May 24—Off Brown, Cincinnati, game resulting 4 to 1 in Phillies favor and victory being due to homer made with man on base.

CRAVATH—3.

May 2—Off Mathewson, New York "Cactus" made this four bagger while pinch hitting for Killifer in the eighth inning and when the score was 2 to 0 in the Giant's favor. He hit the first ball pitched. Phillies eventually won out 3 to 2.
May 5—Off Marquard, New York.
May 13—Off Camnitz, Pittsburg.

KNABE—1.

May 12—Off O'Toole, Pittsburg. F. Otto chose a psychological moment for his homer, inserting it into the ninth inning when the Pirates were one run ahead and when a defeat would have tumbled the Phillies to second place. The hit tied the score and in the eleventh the Phillies won out.

PASKERT—1.

May 5—Off Harmon, St. Louis. "Dode" made this homer in the first inning and on the first ball pitched.

DOOLAN—1.

May 16—Off Toney, Chicago.

SEATON—1.

May 21—Off Harter, Cincinnati.

BRUNSWICK GOLFERS TO PLAY AT P. C. C.

Last Year's Stars Have Entered Junior Tournament to Be Held on Local Links.

New Brunswick junior golfers are taking a lively interest in the second annual golf tournament for boys which will be held under the auspices of the Metropolitan Golf Association at the Plainfield Country Club Tuesday, June 24, and Wednesday, June 25, and already a number of juvenile brassie weilders from that town have signified their intention of entering the various events. In last year's tournament Alvanson Prentiss and Jack and Richard Potter, of that town, made an excellent showing on the local links. Jack Potter put New Brunswick on the golf map by winning third place in the driving competition with an aggregate of 512 yards for three drives. Alvanson Prentiss also made a good showing by tieing Stuart Connolly, the junior champion for 1912, in the approaching and putting competition for first place. Prentiss had to content himself with second place after a very close play off with the title holder.

AMERICA'S "BIG FOUR" WHICH BEGINS THE DEFENSE OF THE INTERNATIONAL POLO CUP AT MEADOW BROOK THIS AFTERNOON

MR. HENRY PAYNE WHITNEY.

MR. DEVEREUX MILBURN.

MR. LAWRENCE WATERBURY.

MR. J. M. WATERBURY.

New York, June 10.—The international polo cup series began this afternoon at the grounds of the fashionable Meadowbrook Hunt Club at Westbury, L. I., some twenty miles from this city, and during the remainder of this week the results of the matches between the champion American quartet and the English challengers will be awaited eagerly throughout the entire world, wherever polo is played.

The American team, which regained the famous trophy from the Britishers in 1909 and successfully defended it in the matches two years later, is made up of such veterans of the game as L. E. Stoddard, Devereux Milburn, J. M. Waterbury and Malcolm Stevenson.

This year's challenging squad is composed of Captain Leslie St. George Cheape, Captain Vivian Lockett, Captain Noel Edwards and Captain R. G. Ritson, with Lord Wodehouse and Captain F. M. Freake as reserve players. For the past four weeks the Englishmen have been in this country undergoing final preparations for themselves and their ponies. The team has had a number of practice matches, and their play has been widely commented upon.

Interest in the international matches is intense wherever polo is played in this country, and the Meadowbrook club has erected stands capable of esating 40,000 spectators. Clubmen and social leaders from Philadelphia, Newport, Boston, Washington, Narragansett Pier, Chicago and San Francisco were on hand for the opening of the matches today. That the international contests have stirred up the patriotic feelings of the ordinary sport-loving individual as well as of the polo enthusiast is evidenced by the fact that accommodations were reserved by the club for thousands of general admissions at 50 cents per head. The private boxes, however, have sold for from $50 to $150 for the entire series.

Polo is a very ancient game It is not English, as many people think. It is supposed to be of Hindu origin. The game was first suggested to British officers in India by the Munipores and was introduced into England in 1870. Six years later James Gordon Bennett introduced the game into America and it has become one of the chief delights of wealthy men throughout the world.

The first of the international matches took place at Newport in 1886, when the Hurlingham team, captained by John Watson, won the cup. The cup, the gift of the Westchester Polo Club, was taken over to England, where it remained until July 5, 1909. America's first challenge for the cup was given in 1900 by a team captained by Foxhall Keene. The Americans were unsuccessful. In 1902 the Americans made another unsuccessful attempt to regain the trophy.

But in 1909, twenty-three years after the cup had been taken to Hurlingham, a Meadowbrook team, challenging with the consent of the Polo Association, brought back the trophy. The team was composed of Harry Payne Whitney, Lawrence Waterbury, J. M. Waterbury and Devereux Milburn. In 1911 the same "Big Four" successfully defended the trophy against the challenging team from England.

Ever since the matches in 1911 both countries have been getting ready for the series which began today. It is estimated that the preparations have cost a total sum not far from $1,000,000. This money has been expended for ponies, equipment, wages for innumerable stable helpers and grooms, the building of grand stands ,etc. Scores of ponies were brought for the tryouts and some of them cost as much as $6,000 a piece. The big clubs belonging to the Polo Association stood the expense on the American end. The challenging team has been largely financed by the Duke of Westminster, probably the most notable patron of the sport in the entire world.

The international cup for which the two teams are contesting is of silver, encircled with the heads of ponies rampant. The cup is three feet high and was purchased by prominent sportsmen on the eve of the first matches in 1886. The agreement stipulates that the international contests must be played according to the rules of the country in which the matches are held.

Official Lineup of International Rivals

The international fours will lineup in battle array in the following fashion:

SOMERSET BOARD GIVES PERMISSION

Union County Body May Lay Sewer Pipes in Somerset to Connect Bonnie Burn.

ALSO FOR A COLLEGE

Somerset Freeholders Plan to Send Tuberculosis Patients to the Morris County Institution Instead of Erecting a Sanitorium.

Somerville, June 11.—Director J. N. Cady and Freeholders S. P. T. Wilbur, Henry Krause, C. A. Smith and County Engineer Jacob Bauer, of the Union County Board of Freeholders, met the Somerset county board at its meeting here yesterday afternoon for the purpose of securing permission to excavate along Terrill road and Mountain avenue for a sanitary sewer to extend from Bonnie Burn Sanitorium to a point of connection with the Plainfield sewer disposal system. A resolution was adopted giving the Union county board the necessary authority.

The sewer will be run along Terrill road and Greenbrook road and the county will assume all responsibility. The proposed line to be built by the county will be about two miles long, while David T. Kenney will build about 5,000 feet on private property, it being understood that the College of Mt. St. Mary, in Somerset county, will be connected with the Plainfield system.

The special committee appointed to secure a site for a county tuberculosis sanitorium, reported that as the county would probably not have enough patients to warrant the erection of such an institution, recommended that arrangements be made with the authorities of Morris county to take care of the patients. The clerk was authorized to communicate with the Morris county board.

It was reported that State Commissioner of Roads Stevens had not yet approved or rejected the plans of County Engineer Doughty for the improvement of the road leading from Union avenue to the Johns-Manville plant, and the clerk was authorized to write Mr. Stevens to return the plans, as the freeholders will probably go ahead and improve the road without State aid. The expense according to the State plans would be between $60,000 and $70,000, while the board is willing to spend only about $30,000.

RESIGNS AS HEAD OF S. C. SEMINARY

Ill Health Compels Rev. Dr. Chambliss to Quit as President of Woman's College.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, formerly pastor of the First Baptist church, this city, but who has been president of a women's seminary at Anderson, S. C., during the past year, has been obliged to resign his position on account of ill health, and he is now planning to spend the summer in Europe. Recently, Dr. Chambliss suffered a slight stroke of paralysis, which compelled him to give up his duties as head of the women's seminary. His condition is now much improved and he believes that a trip abroad will be the means of complete restoration to health.

Dr. Chambliss resigned his pastorate at the First Baptist church about two years ago giving up active ministerial work. A little later he was elected president of the southern educational institution, which position he held until quite recently.

'THE ISLE O' DREAMS' WITH CHAUNCEY OLCOTT

One of the new features introduced by Chauncey Olcott in his new play, "The Isle o' Dreams," which he will present at the Plainfield theatre tonight is the incidental music which is played during the performance. Instead of the audience being tired out by long overtures or selections from popular musical comedies between each act, original music in keeping with the story of the play is rendered by the augmented orchestra, with the result that few people leave the theatre during the intermissions, so delightful is the musical program which is rendered.

FOUR ASSOCIATIONS JOIN GENERAL BODY

Recently Organized Co-ordinating Committee Met Last Night.

Representatives from four local civic organizations met in the Chamber of Commerce rooms last night as a co-ordinating committee and while many suggestions were received and discussed no conclusions were reached at last night's meeting, which in any way will effect the future development of Plainfield. The proposed plan of advertising the city was threshed over, every one present taking a part in either approving or disapproving the scheme, and after much agitation it was tabled.

The disposal of garbage and ashes and the recent movement to secure better lighting facilities in this city were also brought to the attention of the committee, and while nothing definite was done in these matters, the information received will be placed before the various associations represented at their regular monthly meetings.

Those present last night were Harry McMenimen, J. J. Varley, Stanley E. Gunnison, Jr., W. S. Angleman, A. C. Wilmerding, P. G. Chase, J. O. Osborne, John J. Carroll, Thomas Hylan, W. R. Way and Frank A. Weeks.

FREEHOLDERS' COMMITTEE INSPECTS ROAD WORK

The road committee of the Union County Board of Freeholders, of which S. P. T. Wilbur, of this city, is a member, made a tour of inspection of the county roads, yesterday, especially viewing some of the new ones. It inspected the work at Chestnut street and St. George's avenue, Roselle, where improvements are being made to prevent the flooding of the street in heavy rains.

The committee inspected the new Mountain avenue road, Springfield, where it crosses Flemmer avenue and the new road from Mountain avenue to Summit, and found the work progressing satisfactorily. Returning to Plainfield an inspection was made of the brick pavement at East Fifth and Richmond streets, the work having been done by the Public Service Corporation. This being a part of the county road it called for supervision by the freeholders.

HUSBAND AND WIFE ARRAIGNED

A sentence of sixty days in the county jail was suspended over Thomas Finnen and his wife, Ellen, of 78 Greenbrook road, in the North Plainfield court this morning by Recorder Gano, the two having been arrested on a charge of drunkenness by Chief Weiss and Marshal Keller. PLAN TO EMPLOY PRISON INMATES

Local Charity Organization is Interested in Jail Labor Movement.

SAVINGS TO COUNTY

Meeting in Elizabeth Tomorrow Afternoon—Plans Suggested Whereby Prisoners Will Be Made Self-supporting.

Miss Mabelle Phillips, the local agent for the Charity Organization Society, and S. T. Carter, one of the trustees, will represent the Plainfield association at a conference to be held in the lecture room of the Elizabeth public library tomorrow afternoon, to discuss the feasibility or advisability of urging upon the county the adoption of the prison labor system whereby the prisoners now confined in the county jail, losing health and vigor and contributing nothing to their own support or to the support of those dependent upon them, may be put to work on the county roads.

This matter is one that has long been agitated in this county and the movement will be started under the joint auspices of the Plainfield and Elizabeth Charity Organizations tomorrow afternoon. Social workers in all parts of the country are known to be strongly in favor of such a proposition. This is not the first step toward the adoption of such a plan, as early last summer a committee from the joint charity organizations met with the Board of Freeholders' jail commission but it did not find with favor at that time and was dropped.

The present move is to revive interest in the project and members of the Plainfield society interested in the adoption of such a plan think that the time is now ripe for such agitation as might be forthcoming in regard to this question. Henry M. Hilfers, of Newark, who is associated with the State Federation of Labor, will be one of the principal speakers at tomorrow's meeting and he will present a system by which the step may be advanced without encroaching on the rights of the labor men. No definite plan of action has as yet been mapped out but it has been suggested that the movement be given a trial with a small group of prisoners at first and gradually broaden the scope until all of the inmates of the county jail were covered. A first group consisting of those confined for non-support or some other similar charge will probably be used to experiment with and by making these prisoners do the work on the county roads it will not only save the cost of hiring laboring men but the prisoners will also be contributing to their own support.

It is proposed to turn over any surplus that may remain after the costs of each individual's maintenance is taken out to the support of those dependent upon him. The county is at present hiring laboring men to do the work at Bonnie Burn, back of Scotch Plains, and the prisoners could be used for this work, thus saving a big expense item in the county budget. Prison labor in other States, particularly in the South, has been tried out and proven a great success, and the general idea of such a system has been to place the prisoners out on the roads to do the repair or construction work.

COURT TO APPIONT THE COMMISSIONERS

Upon application of the Union County Board of Freeholders, Judge Benjamin A. Vail, of the Circuit Court, has fixed Saturday morning, June 28, at 9:30 o'clock at his chambers, 120 Broad street, Elizabeth, as the time for the appointment of commissioners in the proposed plan to widen and straighten Mountain or Westfield avenue, between Park avenue, Scotch Plains, in Fanwood township, and Morris avenue, in Springfield township.

Notice has been served on the interested property owners to appear on the above named date to show cause why said appointment should not be made.

TRINITY'S OPPONENTS.

A shattered team of ball players will represent the Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school at Mount Pleasant next Saturday afternoon, where the local boys go to play the nine of that place. Owing to the appearance of the Trinity brass band at the Doctors-Dentists game on Parker Field, a number of the players will be unable to play ball Saturday afternoon.

FLAGTOWN MAN'S ACT LANDS HIM IN JAIL

Philip Becker Enters Somerville Store and Loots Cash Drawer.

Somerville, June 11.—Philip Becker, of Flagtown, who was evidently under the influence of drink, caused quite some excitement yesterday afternoon, about 5 o'clock by entering the Sacks' fruit store, on West Main street, through a rear door and attempting to loot the money drawer. The man was chased from the place through the Sargeant lumber yard to a barn on the premises, where he took refuge in the hay mow. He was dislodged only after putting up a stiff fight and placed in the county jail by Marshal Hanlon. Only a small sum of money was found in his possession, although Mrs. Sacks claims that a bank book containing over $50 was taken. Becker works on a farm at Flagtown, and has always borne a good name. He has been in the habit of coming to Somerville quite frequently with milk. He denies taking any money, but is unable to explain his presence in the store.

FIELDER LOGICAL CANDIDATE HE SAYS

Democratic State Committeeman W. L. Saunders Tells Why He Favors Him.

Declaring that it would be unjust to deny him the nomination, William L. Saunders, the Somerset county member of the Democratic State Committee, in a statement today, asserted that Acting Governor James F. Fielder is the logical man to be the party's standard bearer in the coming gubernatorial campaign.

"It seems to me," said Dr. Saunders, "that Acting-Governor Fielder is the logical candidate of the Democratic party for the governorship. He has a long legislative record, covering the past ten years and ranging from the Lower House to the presidency of the Senate. That record is very much to his credit, not only because he has shown that he is a loyal Democrat, but because he has also shown that courage and independence which are so rare among those who hold high public office. He has been progressive without carrying progressiveness to the point of unsoundness. He has been just and liberal in recognizing the rights of the people, without letting the influence of popular clamor affect his judgment. In his home district, where he is best known, his popularity is testified to by the people of all parties.

"To deny Governor Fielder the nomination under the circumstances is to do him an injustice because he has earned this recognition by his party. It is all very well to say that he became Acting-Governor by conditions that may be called accidental, but it was not an accident that put him at the head of the Senate as its president, and it takes a big man to hold the present position that Governor Fielder occupies and do justice to the principles established by his distinguished predecessor, at the same time maintaining the integrity and independence of the office of Governor. It seems also plain to me that Governor Fielder is the strongest candidate that the party can nominate. He acts as a unifying force with the progressive as well as the so-called reactionary elements, and he appears to have the confidence of both. This is a strong point which should not be lost sight of. No ordinary man could command this respect and confidence in a more or less divided party. Democrats must not be too confident of victory in New Jersey. The signs point to a union of Republicans and Progressives, probably under Senator Colby. This is a condition not to be lightly regarded by thoughtful Democrats.

"The State is by no means sure. Antagonisms have to some extent been excited, there are many disappointed seekers after office and the period of reaction appears to be due. That the Democratic party should put forward its best man and its best efforts seems plain. There is no one in the Democratic party in New Jersey who combines so many of the elements of strength at the present moment as Governor Fielder."

JURY STILL OUT IN MURDER CASE

Men With Whom Rests Fate of Papalillo Are Reported to Be Divided.

DELIBERATIONS NOISY

Since 11:10 o'clock this morning the jury, with whom rests the fate of Mateio Papalillo, of 213 West Third street, this city, who is charged with taking the life of his neighbor, Thomas Deers, colored, on April 12, have been deliberating in the Union County Courthouse in Elizabeth. According to reports about the building and the noise of the strenuous arguments taking place within the jury room they are greatly divided over the prisoner's guilt.

The jury was locked up for the night following the summing-up yesterday afternoon by Prosecutor Alfred A. Stein for the State, and Victor D'Aloia, of Newark, counsel for the defense. This morning Supreme Court Justice James A. Bergen, who sat with Judge James C. Connolly throughout the trial, delivered the charge. He said the jurymen in their deliberations must totally disregard any testimony that might have been given substantiating a plea of self-defense, because, he said, the plea had been ignored by the defense.

Although not stating so explicitly, the Justice's charge practically told the jury to find the prisoner guilty of the crime unless they believed the story told by his lawyer that a man named Salvatore Ianiria, committed the crime and fled to Italy. Prosecutor Stein made a plea for a verdict of first degree murder consuming thirty-five minutes in his address to the jury. D'Aloia summed up in seventeen minutes.

The closing testimony of the trial yesterday afternoon was startling. Papalillo on the stand denied that he ever made a confession, had ever seen the knife used to kill Deers and emphatically asserted that he never went to Muhlenberg Hospital where he was identified by Deers as the murderer, as testified by Chief Kiely, Detective Sergeant Flynn and several doctors, nurses and hospital employes.

SUPREME CHIEF AT LOCAL CASTLE SESSION

Grand Chief Also Takes Part in Big Meeting of Freedom, K. G. E.

Supreme Chief J. M. Shappell, of Philadelphia, and Grand Chief Elvin Hoffman, of High Bridge, were the guests of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, at its meeting in the Babcock building last night. The affair was in the nature of an official visitation on the part of the officers, and in addition there were present representatives from Flemington, Trenton and Annandale Castles, there being about seventy-five members in attendance.

After the initiatory team of Freedom Castle conferred the second degree on three candidates in a highly commendatory manner, Supreme Chief Shappell made an excellent address on the progress of the order. Grand Chief Hoffman made a few remarks as did also other officers, including Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, who is a member of the supreme finance committee.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by a committee from Freedom Castle and a social hour was enjoyed, during which the members were given an opportunity to meet the supreme chief. Freedom Castle is growing rapidly in membership, there being initiations at nearly every meeting.

HURT TRYING TO STOP RUNAWAY

CONDITION CRITICAL

Victim in Brooklyn Hospital With Fractured Skull, Cuts and Bruises—Little Fellow in Runaway Unhurt When Horse Was Stopped.

Charles H. Davis, organist of the Church of the Holy Cross, in North Plainfield, is in the Cumberland Street Hospital, Brooklyn, suffering from a fractured skull and cuts and bruises, the result of an effort he made yesterday in Brooklyn to stop a runaway horse. His condition is critical and some doubts are felt concerning his recovery as he is thought to have received internal injuries.

William Wissen, of 14 Powers street, Williamsburg, took his four-year-old son George in a two-seated surrey yesterday to the Nassau Trust Building, at Broadway and Bedford avenue, Brooklyn. The honking of an auto scared the horse, which broke from a hitching post and dashed up Bedford avenue with the little fellow holding on to the front seat and screaming.

Through the crowded thoroughfare the frightened animal dashed, dodging automobiles and wagons and scattering men, women and children. Men yelled at the frightened animal and that with the screams of women only served to increase the horse's mad pace.

Two automobiles started after the horse. Another owned and driven by L. G. Burleigh, of 71 Broadway, Manhattan, was commanded by Policeman Debois and all three speeded after the runaway.

Mr. Davis was crossing Bedford avenue when he heard the commotion and saw the runaway, with the little fellow in terror crying for his papa and screaming. Without a thought for his own safety Davis made a run for the horse's head. He failed to reach the bridle and was struck down by an automobile and knocked senseless into the gutter. A bystander rushed to Davis and he was carried to a drug store. Soon afterwards he was taken to the Cumberland Street Hospital.

The horse ran a distance of a mile or more before it was finally caught by Policeman Debois, while standing on the running board of the Burleigh automobile. He held fast to the bridle and was dragged a considerable distance before he succeeded in stopping the animal. The child was lifted from the carriage. There wasn't a scratch on him, he was only scared.

Mr. Davis is the proprietor of the Charles H. Davis Company, manufacturers of varnish at Flushing and Franklin avenues, Brooklyn. He resides at West Fourth street and Arlington avenue, this city. Mrs. Davis went to Brooklyn yesterday and has been with her husband ever since the accident.

OLD SWINDLE WORKED; BOARDER MINUS VALUABLES

Albert Johnson, a boarder at the home of Mrs. Emma Segrist, of 1209 South Second street, is minus three suits of clothes and a diamond studded gold watch, as the result of a time worn "game" successfully worked on his boarding house mistress. According to the story told to the local police by Mrs. Segrist, two men came to her house Monday night for lodging, representing themselves as recently hired employes of the Sauer Motor Works. They departed ostensibly for their supposed place of business early yesterday morning, but returned several hours later, saying conditions at the factory made it impossible for them to start work before 1 o'clock. The two men returned to their room. At noon time when Johnson returned from luncheon he found his room in disorder and his clothes and watch gone. Investigation revealed that the new boarders had left for parts unknown. Mrs. Segrist was unable to give the names of the bonco artists, nor could she give a description of them.

A TIMID GIRL

By JOHN B. OVERAKER

Nellie was her name, though if she had been born in New England when they were naming children for the human virtues they would have called her Modesty. Timidity would have also described her, for she appeared to be afraid of her shadow. She was a typewriter in my private bank out in the western town of B. My institution was a small one, and I required but a small force. There was one teller, who paid and received; also a bookkeeper, a boy and my typewriter.

One day a party of robbers rode into an adjoining town, pulled up at the bank, shot the cashier dead, emptied the loose currency into bags and galloped away, all within seven minutes. Their leader was known to be a desperate youngster called Kid Malone, scarcely twenty-two years old.

When Kid Malone a few days later rode into another town and robbed another bank with only one man to assist him and in less time than before, it occurred to me that I had better be taking measures to prepare for an attack on my own institution. I called my little force together for consultation. The cashier proposed that a revolver be so fixed in the door of my private office that I could fire it immediately on the appearance of a robber and another be similarly fixed to his window. The bookkeeper should also be armed. Bob, the boy, said he intended to arm himself with hand grenades. When it came Nellie's turn to make suggestions she said she couldn't think of anything. In case a robber came she would duck under her typewriter table. But after a number of propositions, none of which seemed to be practical, she gathered her wits and surprised us all by a very sensible proposition.

"These preparations to fight desperate men frighten me. It seems to me that they should rather be met by artifice. Until this scare is over how would it do to conceal the cash in something that could be easily removed? I know you'll think it ridiculous, but I have an idea that I think I could work myself if I could only keep enough courage. How would it do to have a baby carriage standing near the back door with a lot of little pillows and blankets and quilts in it, just as though there was a baby asleep, and under the covering to keep the cash during banking hours? Then if this Kid Malone comes to rob the bank I can shriek, run to the baby carriage and wheel it away."

"That's an idea worth considering," said I.

The more I thought about Nellie's plan the more I approved of it. A baby carriage was procured, and as soon as the bank opened in the morning the bulk of the funds was put in it and kept there till after 3 o'clock, when we closed the doors. The carriage stood in a hallway, the opening to which was screened so as to conceal the bank officials when they went to it to put in or take out cash. Nellie's machine was within a few feet of the passage, and in case of trouble it would be the most natural thing in the world for her to take to flight through the exit. All I feared was that if we were attacked the girl would be so frightened that she wouldn't stop in her flight to wheel away the treasure.

We kept up our precaution for three days, and since it was quite inconvenient in doing business I was about to abandon it, but Nellie said she had dreamed that Kid Malone had appeared and somehow had got away with a lot of money. I am ashamed to confess that I was influenced by this dream, which decided me to keep up our precaution for another day.

About 11 o'clock the next morning a clatter of horses' hoofs was heard coming down the street. Nellie heard it and turned pale. She didn't wait for robbers to reach the bank. She ran for the baby carriage, and both she and it disappeared. I heard the riding party stop before the bank and sat still, intending to submit to a robbery of what few bills there were on the counters. The teller crouched down below his window, the bookkeeper ducked under his desk, and, as for Bob, he followed Nellie out through the back door.

I sat every minute expecting to see armed men come in through the front door, but nobody came. Then I heard the horses without trot away. I was wondering what it all meant when Bob came in and cried:

"Stung!"

He had been running and was out of breath. When he recovered he said that Nellie had gone from the back around to the front door, where one of the party of riders had helped her on to a horse, while another had taken the contents of the baby carriage under his arm, and, mounting, the party had ridden out of town.

I could not believe the story and hurried out to the street, where I saw the baby carriage standing on the sidewalk. A crowd was gathering, several of whom assured me that they had seen my typewriter riding away beside a man whom they recognized for Kid Malone.

I went back into the bank and told my force to keep their mouths shut. I was not entirely broken up by the loss, though I was badly crippled. Fortunately we kept only enough cash in the bank to get on with, the rest being hidden in my home.

Nellie was Kid Malone's girl, and she had secured a place in my bank on purpose to assist him to rob me.

DETECTIVES FOUND 2 RUNAWAY GIRLS

Located on Carnival Grounds at Kingston, N. Y., and Are Brought Back Home.

The Kingston, N. Y., Daily Leader of Monday contained the following news item:

Two young and prety girls from Plainfield, N. J., that were abducted from their homes in that city several weeks ago by two men were located in Kingston Saturday night by New York detectives, who took them in charge and on Sunday returned them to their parents.

The girls were with two Italians that worked as "cappers" for one of the games conducted at the Moose carnival in this city last week. The Italians were apparently tipped off by some one of the presence of the detectives in town and made their escape before the detectives had an opportunity to arrest them.

The two girls are said to belong to prominent Plainfield families. Neither one was more than sixteen years of age. They both wore short dresses and one of them in particular still retained an appearance of refinement. They both stayed about the carnival grounds all last week and were observed by quite a number of persons, who remarked on their being so much in evidence when they were not connected with any of the shows.

A man connected with one of the carnival shows said that he first observed the girls during the carnival week in Newburgh, one week ago. The girls put in their appearance there with them all the time they were in Newburgh. When the carnival shows moved to Kingston the girls and Italians came along to this city.

The two New York city detectives that apprehended the girls in this city are said to have been trailing them and their abductors ever since they left their homes in Plainfield. The detectives were in Newburgh Saturday and learned there that the Italians had brought the girls on to this city. The detectives arrived here none too soon, as the carnival shows left this city Saturday night and some difficulty might have been had in locating the girls again had the Italians been successful in getting them away.

The man connected with one of the carnival shows who observed the two girls in Newburgh, said that he had heard that the two Italians, who were young and good dressers, made the acquaintance of the two girls in that city. He said that the method employed by the men in adbucting young girls was to induce them in some way to take small quantities of cocaine or some other drug and after they had once acquired the habit they had the girls in their power.

FREAKS OF NATURE

A Tree That Throws Somersaults and a Waterfall Reversed.

A tree gone mad and a waterfall that falls up instead of down are among the strange things to be seen in Hawaii, as described by John Burroughs in the Century Magazine:

"Nature in the tropics, left to herself, is harsh, aggressive, savage; looks as though she wanted to hang you with her dangling ropes or impale you on her thorns or engulf you in her ranks of gigantic ferns. Her mood is never as placid and sane as in the north. There is a tree in the Hawaiian woods that suggests a tree gone mad. It is called the hau tree. It lies down, squirms and wriggles all over the ground like a wounded snake. It gets up and then takes to earth again. Now it wants to be a vine; now it wants to be a tree. It throws somersaults, it makes itself into loops and rings, it rolls, it reaches, it doubles upon itself. Altogether it is the craziest vegetable growth I ever saw.

"It was near Pali that I saw what I had never seen or heard of before—a waterfall reversed, going up instead of down. It suggested Stockton's story of negative gravity. A small brook comes down off the mountain and attempts to make the leap down a high precipice, but the winds catch it and carry it straight up in the air like smoke. It is translated; it becomes a mere wraith hovering above the beetling crag. Night and day this goes on, the wind snatching from the mountains in this summary way the water it has brought them."

Lucky Thirteenth.

A woman who sets particular store by the thirteenth superstition surprised her friends by accepting an invitation to a luncheon where there were to be thirteen guests.

"I will be late," she said, "for I shall make it a point to be the thirteenth person to enter the room. That is a funny thing about thirteen. Many accidents have happened to parties thirteen in number, but investigation has shown that while the other twelve persons suffered more or less the thirteenth person who joined the company always escaped unharmed."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Twentieth Century Definitions.

A witty judge of the municipal court of Boston stoutly declared that "a patriot was a man who refused to button his wife's lingerie waist."

"A martyr," he went on, "is one who attempts and fails, while a hero tries and succeeds."

"Then what is a coward?" asked a curious bystander.

"Oh, a coward," replied the judge, "is a man who remains single so he won't have to try."—Youth's Companion.

Not Unlikely.

"Well, my boy," said the visitor to Bobby, "I suppose some day you expect to step into your father's shoes?"

"Oh, I suppose so," said Bobby gloomily. "I been wearin' out everything else he wears since mother learned how to cut 'em down for me."—Harper's Weekly.

CELEBRATION OF HUGUENOT LANDING ON JUNE TWENTY-EIGHTH.

On June the 28th the people of New Rochelle, N. Y., will celebrate the 225th anniversary of the landing, in 1688 of the French Huguenots in America. The above pictures show some of the objects of interest in connection with this event. The actual coming of these early settlers from France will be reproduced. A ship, an exact imitation of the one on which they came to America so many years ago, has been built, and this will float in New Rochelle Harbor on the day of the pageant and will be escorted by scores of the young men of the city, made up to look like the Indians who surrounded the strange French ship when she approached land 225 years ago. Many men of prominence throughout the country have been invited to be present, including the President and Vice President, Secretary of War Garrison, Secretary of the Navy Daniels, the French Ambassador, J. J. Jusserand, and others

IMPORTANT MEETING OF CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE

A special meeting of the City Baseball League is scheduled for next Friday night in the rooms of the West End Athletic Association and the managers and captains of the various teams are requested to be on hand at that time as business of importance will be transacted.

Rain checks distributed at last Saturday's games are good next Saturday afternoon for admittance into either of the two games scheduled for this week. The teams that will meet Saturday afternoon are the Saurers and Spicers on the Fillmore avenue field, and the Royals and West Ends on the Clinton avenue field.

MINISTERS MAY CHALLENGE WINNER OF CHARITY GAME

Faithful practice has produced many cases of sore arms among the doctors and dentists of Plainfield, but they have all signified their intention of sticking to the grind until the hospital treasury is swelled considerably by the ball game to be played at Parker Field next Saturday afternoon. Captain Cregar, of the Doctors, claims that his team is unbeatable, while Captain Davis, of the Pills, is equally as optimistic of victory.

Tickets are now on sale and can be obtained from any local doctor, dentist or druggist. Agitation was started among the clergy of the city the first part of the week to challenge the winners of Saturday's game to decide a local champion and another game may be the outcome if the dentists succeed in defeating the doctors, who succumbed to the baseball prowess of the ministers two years ago.

WITH THE BOXERS

Tom O'Rourke has added Carl Morris, the Oklahoma "hope," to his stable of boxers.

Abe Attell has signed to box Patsy Kline, the bout to take place in New York in the near future.

WON GAME WITH ONE HIT.

Although Harold Schenck, of this city, playing on the Rutgers College baseball team in the annual commencement week diamond battle with Stevens Institute, yesterday afternoon, made two clean hits, his team was forced to accept the smaller end of a 4 to 2 score, the reverse coming in the eighth inning. After Rutgers had led for a period of seven innings by a score of 1 to 0, Captain Lansdale, of the Stevens team, came to bat in the eighth inning with the bases full and smashed a home run to deep center field, scoring three men ahead of him. This was the only hit made by the winners, but it happened in this case to be enough to win. Schenck played center field, scoring two put-outs on long flies and pounding out two of his teams four bingles.

POULTRY ASSN. ELECTS.

At the recent annual meeting of the State Branch of the American Poultry Association, held at New Brunswick Sunday, T. Clarke, of Scotch Plains, was elected secretary to serve for the ensuing year. Heller, of Bridgeton; second vice president, Fred Heler, of Pearson; treasurer, Phil Kearney, of Florham Park, and members of the executive committee, Prof. Harry R. Lewis, of the Experiment Station at New Brunswick; Rufus Delafield, South Plainfield; M. R. Jacobus, Ridgefield; J. C. Punderford, of Fraenean, and Charles D. Cleveland, of Eatontown.

Y. M. A. A. VS. PARK AVENUE.

Manager William Conger, of the Y. M. A. A. baseball team, has been successful in signing the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school League team to appear against the Y. M. A. A. combination on the Center street diamond Saturday afternoon, June 21. This is an off day for the Parks in the league schedule, there being an odd number of teams in the race and one of the five teams is forced to lay off every week-end.

ALL STARS WANT GAMES.

With a revised lineup, the All Stars baseball team is ready to meet all comers and the manager is looking for games with fast junior aggregations in this section, averaging seventeen to nineteen years. Out of town games are preferred and the team will play either Saturday or Sunday ball.

NEW ALL STAR CAPTAIN.

Hamilton, the former Shamrock third baseman, will captain the All Star baseball team during the remainder of the season. A revised lineup of the team will be announced within the next few days.

Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton Breaks Women's Record on Plainfield Country Club Links.

Mrs. H. The other players in competition were T. S. Wheeler, Burnett C. Kenkyo and R. C. Brown.

In going out, Mrs. Stockton made the first two holes in fours, the third in five, the fourth in three, the fifth in seven, the sixth in four, the seventh in seven, the eighth in four and the ninth in five, for a total of 43. On the return journey, she had three fours, three fives, two sixes and a three. Her card:

GREAT SUFFRAGIST MEETING IS PLANNED

State Men's League to Hold Rally at Asbury Park on July 26.

Plans were discussed for a monster State meeting and convention to be held at Ocean Grove under the auspices of the New Jersey Men's League for Equal Suffrage on Saturday, July 26, at a meeting of the executive committee of the local league held last night at the home of A. B. Jones, on Central avenue. Theodore Roosevelt will be asked to address the gathering, which will be held in the great auditorium of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, and other speakers of national prominence will also be present. In the morning a convention for the organization of a State league will be held at which it is expected that delegates from every county in the State will be present.

At last night's meeting it was announced that Dr. A. E. Ballard, president of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association had tendered the use of the auditorium for the meeting, and had also agreed to thoroughly advertise it. Committees were named to communicate with prospective delegates, to arrange for speakers, complete arrangements for the hall, and attend to the publicity connected with the meeting. More definite and formal announcements about the meeting will be made at a date in the near future, through Charles A. Selden, chairman of the press committee.

Those in attendance last night were Champlin L. Riley, who presided, Dr. William L. Saunders, Dr. Edward S. Krans, C. C. Wheeler, George W. V. Moy, A. B. Jones and Edward F. Feickert.

There was also a conference of the local women's league at the same time and place.

TRIUMPH FOR "C. G."

It is a source of much satisfaction to the friends of commission government to learn of the good showing made in Trenton during the first year under that rule. The decrease in expenditures as revealed in the report of the auditor was not obtained by any lowering in the standard of administration or by shutting down on needed improvements. On the contrary, the degree of efficiency, according to the report, had been materially raised. For the year previous to the adoption of the business like form of government, the expenses had increased nearly sixteen per cent. and now for the first year of the new order of things the expenses decreased .58 per cent. and this notwithstanding the expenditures incidental to a change in the form of administration of the public's affairs.

The Trenton True American, an avowed champion of the commission government plan, feels that not only the commissioners should be gratified by the auditor's report but that all believers in the scheme should be elated. The Elizabeth Journal shares the same view, while the Newark Evening News has this to say:

"Commission government has been a financial success in Trenton. The report of the expert accountants leaves no doubt on that point. Expenses have been reduced without the elimination of improvements, and the revenue deficit has been very largely decreased. As to the administrative features, the report covers only one department out of the five, but if that one may be taken as a criterion of conditions in the others, the people of the Capitol City are to be congratulated.

Trenton was the first city in the State to take advantage of the provisions of the Walsh act. The change was considered an experiment in spite of the success of commission government in many other municipalities throughout the country, but the voters were determined to escape from the evils from which they were then suffering, and were willing to run a considerable risk of jumping from the frying pan into a fire. The opponents of the change in other cities urged that the people continue to bear the ills they had until they could see "what happens to Trenton.'

"It need not be expected that these objectors will now change their song. They are not so much interested in economies in municipal rule, the reduction of the tax rate, the making of improvements on a business basis and publicity in doing business, as they are in holding on to the powers they now have. They can still bring forth many excuses, convincing to themselves, why it would be a mistake to follow the example of Trenton and the other municipalities that have been governed so satisfactorily under the new rule."

The Plainfield Board of Health might do well to see that the ordinance against expectorating is enforced on the platform of the North avenue station of the Jersey Central. Its duty is not performed by merely tacking up a few warning signs. Laws are made to be enforced and as violations are common in this particular instance it would be any easy task to cause arrests and to deter others by inflicting the penalty. Loafers are constantly hanging about the station and this filthy habit of theirs in expectorating on the pave is not only an annoyance to women patrons whose dresses are thus soiled but is a menace to public health. The Health Board should get on its job.

The Plainfield Anti-Tuberculosis Society can always find ready use for money and charitably inclined Plainfielders should bear in mind that contributions to it mean that the sum will be spent in relieving the sufferings and prolonging the lives of those poor unfortunates who are afflicted with tuberculosis or in preventing the disease being contracted by anaemic children. This paper will be glad to furnish any information desired as to the purposes and achievements of this most worthy charity.

Kaiser Wilhelm is celebrating his twenty-fifth anniversary of his reign. The "War Lord," who has proven to be one of the foremost apostles of world peace, it would naturally be expected might receive an honorary degree from one of our great universities in recognition of his efforts to promote harmony among nations but up to date all such honors are being conferred on his Ambassador to Washington. Only yesterday Princeton gave a degree to the latter.

To enable the Mothers' Association to carry out its plans for a luncheon counter at the Bryant and Lincoln Schools next fall, where the pupils would be able to buy a wholesome luncheon for three cents, it is necessary that $500 be raised by voluntary contribution. The Plainfield Daily Press, which has consented to receive contributions for this purpose, acknoweldegs the receipt of $10. Do you wish to help the cause?

Former Congressman Charles Newell Fowler took his gubernatorial boom to Trenton yesterday for exhibition purposes. Fielder was out but he found some consolation in telling "Uncle Ike" Nichols all about it. He even let it be known that it was marked "G. O. P.," but it's "dollars to doughnuts" that the Elephant will deny the paternity.

Does the defeat of Mayor Wittpenn's forces in the Jersey City commission government election yesterday put him out of the race as a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination?

Cold wave harmless: Department of Agriculture discounts alarm—Newspaper headlines.

But how about the summer resort man?

"They never come back" rule again shattered—Mark Fagan, mayor-elect of Jersey City.

BUTTFIELD PRESIDENT OF VULCAN DETINNING CO.

THREW SEVEN STREAMS.

Two fire apparatuses, the Robison and the Dixon were demonstrated for the benefit of the councilmanic fire committee in the rear of the Babcock building yesterday afternoon, the Robison engine throwing four streams of water and the Dixon two. Separate exhibitions were given by representatives from the respective companies and the committee was thus afforded an opportunity to compare the merits of the two. The Robison threw 1,020 gallons from suction while the Dixon threw 1,160 gallons.

OUR LIFE SAVERS.

Humble Heroes Who Do Brave Work Along Our Coast.

DARING DEEDS IN THE SURF.

Battle With the Giant Combers and Icy Seas When a Storm Wrecked Vessel Offers the Fearless Guards a Chance to Rescue a Human Being.

Through a bleak February night a storm was raging up the Atlantic seaboard. All along the coast the life guards were out, hunching into the gale, patrolling the beaches, alert for signs of disaster. Just before midnight one of them east of Bellport station, on Long Island, saw a schooner floundering in the gray spindrift offshore. It was the Benjamin Cromwell, and as the alarm swept down the beach the crews of three stations hurried to the scene. Their work was to take seven men from the rigging of the wrecked vessel.

All efforts through the night and the forenoon following failed. The wind was too high. Then at noon the schooner's masts, except the foremast, on which all of the crew save one had taken refuge, crashed overboard. This man went down in a welter of wreckage, and to those on shore it seemed as if he must surely be battered to death, but as the breakers raced in they saw him clinging to a plank that had been swept away with him.

A furious surf was running, and timber with which the Cromwell had been laden was pitched up on the beach. To add to the danger thick ice cakes, heaved by the breakers, lifted their jagged ends high in the air and crashed down, splintering one upon the other, and always the awful drive of snow and sleet, ripping the onrushing waves into tatters of foam and spindrift. Surely no man could live in that.

Instinctively the life savers moved nearer the edge of the surf and peered ahead for some sign of life. The beach was fringed with skim ice, sharp and pointed, that cut through rubber boots and clothing as if through parchment. Helpless to aid the man whom they knew must be plunging somewhere out in that angry water, they huddled together as men will when a lifeless body is about to be cast up before them. They heard ice and wreckage grind harshly; scattered debris washed up to their feet. Brave men all, yet they saw nothing to do. They knew not to what lengths the ocean would go before giving up its victim.

At this juncture a figure sprang from among them and, wrapping a line about his waist, ran to the edge of the surf. He was Frank Rayner of the Blue Point station, and he was about to commit what the other surfmen instinctively told themselves was suicide. The service demands courage, not foolhardiness. For a moment Keeper Rorke hesitated, undecided whether to order Rayner back to the beach or not, but he couldn't find it in his heart to do it. It was a venture too heroic, too splendid.

They watched Rayner as he stood in the whirl of icy spray awaiting his chance. He was half naked. His clothes he had thrown off as he ran. The cold, biting into his flesh, tortured him. Still the chance held off. Then it came—the bit of wreckage, the clinging sailor, crashing into the boiling breakers, and Rayner dashed forward.

Foot by foot through that roaring tumult of water, of plunging beams and timber, dodging the splintered spars that, leaping from giant combers, made as if to pin him, Rayner worked toward his man. To those on shore he was hidden the greater part of the time. Finally they saw his head bob above a big billow. Near him floated the wreckage bearing its stiff, motionless burden. The next instant Rayner vanished, swept under by a tremendous wave.

From the huddled group on shore men started forward, but Albert Latham, also of the Blue Point station, was first to plunge into the tumbling seas. Tearing through them, he reached Rayner, who, just cresting a breaker, snatched at the sailor, now unconscious. And together these heroes of the coast hauled their man through the rearing timbers and ice to the beach and to safety.

Not ten minutes later the Cromwell broke in pieces. From shore the life savers saw men fall from the rigging, five of them, who fell, one by one, like black plummets into the sea. One remained aboard. Then he went, too—a dark form clinging to the wrecked mast, now adrift. And again Rayner and Latham plunged into the surf.

Now, weakened by their efforts and the cold, they faced an even harder task. The man torn from the mast nearly drowned them with his frenzied struggling. For twenty minutes the uneven fight between the sailor and the surf on one side and the two weakened life savers on the other was waged. Then a great green comber lifted beneath them and bore all three through the foaming sea to the shore.

For weeks Latham lay abed, and Rayner never performed duty again. Subsequently commended by Washington, they considered that honor sufficient.

Such is the typical life saver, the man who patrols the coasts from Bangor to Galveston, from Seattle to Los Angeles. He's a part of a wonderful system.—New York Sun.

Never excuse a wrong action by saying that some one else does the same thing.—Franklin.

TODAY'S STORY

The Hidden Street Flag Contest applies to this story only.

But one week remains of the largest and best vote getting period of the contest.

This is no time for candidates to stop and figure "How Old is Ann." The harvest time for the contest is now. An automobile is at stake between now and June 18. Don' the timid in approaching your friends. Remember in selling them The Plainfield Daily Press you are giving them value over and over again.

The candidate expecting to be counted for first place on July 19 will do all in his power between now and June 18th at 10 p. m. The offer of votes in effect up to and including the above date is guaranteed to be the greatest offer of votes for the entire contest. Besides you have a fresh field to work in.

The division of territory is so arranged that at least one automobile must be awarded in each district. The district in which the grand prize is won will of course receive two automobiles.

There is plenty of room for new candidates as the city district contains but four real active candidates while in the outside district there are but three.

Think of all the prizes to be won. Three automobiles, four bank accounts, Vitaphones and a long list of other prizes. Can you resist nominating yourself or a friend today—at once and take advantage of the largest and best offer of the contest which is now in force. Send in the name. THE PLAINFIELD TRUST COMPANY, PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Among the banking institutions of New Jersey that have come to be recognized as the financial strongholds of the State is The Plainfield Trust Company which, since its organization in 1902 has been quietly forging ahead until now it stands in the foremost ranks. Beginning business only eleven years ago with a capital of $100,000.00, it now reports assets of over five millions of dollars, in addition to which it has in its custody trust funds amounting to more than a million and a half. These substantial results, achieved in such a comparatively short time, bear testimony to the fact that the Company has won and continues to hold the confidence of the people of the community which it serves—a confidence that is based on its strong organization, its representative directorate and its efficient management.

$50.00 VITAPHONES $50.00

JUST A LITTLE AHEAD OF THE TIMES

The transmission of sound waves through a wood arm to a stationary diaphragm introduces an original reproducing device, entirely different from anything else ever invented. It is an example of scientific principles of acoustics reduced to extreme simplicity; the adaptation of a perfect and simple mechanism to the immutable laws of nature.

Sound vibrates from 16 to 8192 times per second. Under this intense strain metal fatigues becomes tired as it were, but wood never seems to be so affected. Again, the older wood becomes the greater the resonance. It is because of that reason men pay fabulous sums for the Stradivarius violins, and the old wood pipes of cathedral organs are not to be purchased at any price. The Vitaphone stands unique as the only Talking Machine not relying upon metal vibratory parts, and which actually improves with age.

YOU CANNOT LOSE

Any candidate securing $50.00 in subscriptions and not winning another prize will receive a $20.00 Vitaphone.

Just Cosy

It's great, when winter winds are howling, to be nice and cosy. It's great to sit—Dad, Mam and Buddy—and feel gentle heat wrap you round with genial comfort.

It's GREAT to have a furnace in the cellar capable of doing it.

"Square Pot" Furnaces make cosy homes possible. They distribute heat evenly. They run steadily. They give perfect combustion and they reduce "furnace care" to a few brief moments daily.

Our sectional cut, shown here, gives the germ of the "Square Pot Idea." That corrugated square firepot increases heat radiation almost 25 per cent. and clears of ashes every time the grate is turned. That means a free fire, perfect combustion and practically no heat waste—virtues found more fully developed in Square Pot Furnaces and boilers than in others. These are things that make Square Pot Furnaces worth while. Ask your dealer to show you.

NO LIMIT TO ELECTRIC POWER

Thousands of small motors are operated by Public Service Electric Power, but this does not argue that such power is not equally efficient and equally economical for large installations.

Experience has amply demonstrated that Central Station Electric Power is superior, in many respects, to steam drive.

Public Service has on its lines more than fifty industrial plants which use from 100 H. P. to 200 H. P. each; it has twenty-five or more, in addition, which use between 200 H. P. and 300 H. P. each, and it has a number of customers who use from 1,000 H. P. to 5,000 H. P. each.

Many of these Electric Power Users discarded steam plants because they found the electric power more satisfactory and less expensive.

What electric power is doing for others it can do for you. Let our engineers convince you with facts. A word will bring them to you.

"MAC" SAYS

Old Glory Again to the Fore.

America is proud today; she has good reasons to be, as she had good reasons to be dubious yesterday, for her polo stars have met and defeated the best that John Bull could pit against them. Hard earned was the victory, but their superior team work in the end asserted itself and 25,000 spectators had the satisfaction of seeing the Stars and Stripes float out ahead of a team supposedly their masters.

The much heralded team play of the English was a minus quantity, in fact as an organization the challengers are far less formidable than we had been led to suppose if yesterday's results may be taken as a criteron.

Sportsmanship.

A better illustration of the difference between American and English sportsmanship would be hard to find than the international polo match of yesterday. Where the Englishmen played a carefully conservative well thought out scientific team work, the Americans broke loose from the very start, "got at the ball" in a spirit of "every man ahead" and every man for himself. "Play to win" seems to be every player's own motto. Long shots at the goal were taken. Most of them missed, but some of them got home.

The contest, though fiercely waged, was fought along lines of highest sportsmanship from whistle to whistle. The few penalties imposed all resulted from impetuosity in following the ball and were not caused by intentional rough riding with the idea of crippling opposing ponies.

A New Record.

J. M. "Monty" Waterbury scored the sixth goal of yesterday's match in 21 seconds and this makes a new goal hitting record for the contest. This remarkable stroke came off in the third period in which it was the only one tallied.

Driscoll Not in League.

Manager New, of the New Brunswick baseball team, recently entered in the Central New Jersey League, gave out the statement that Dave Driscoll will have nothing to do with the Brunswick aggregation. New further stated that his league team lineup would be the same that has played at Scotch Plains and Amusement Park on various occasions this year. This announcement is the cause of much joy on the part of certain fans.

Ortlieb and Bergen.

With a battery composed of "Germany" Ortlieb, recently returned from the New England League, and "Snapper" Bergen, until recently with the Pets, and at one time a member of the P. L. American League outfit, the Brunswicks should be heard from. That is if it is clear some Saturday afternoon in the future so that they can play their first game.

"Ty" Cobb Replaced.

The "Georgia Peach" has at last succumbed to the fearful challenge of Joe Jackson, of Cleveland, and has lost his proud place at the head of the batters of the American League last week. Cobb turned in a mark of .433 against Jackson's .434.

Plainfield in the Rear.

With the approach of the Fourth of July, one of the greatest holidays in the year for activity in sportdom, local track and field enthusiasts are beginning to look for a place where they will be able to find their favorite diversion. Unlike New Brunswick, Elizabeth, Dunellen and other nearby towns, Plainfield cannot boast of a Safe and Sane Fourth of July celebration in the form of a track meet.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—Will you kindly publish a list of the towns in this vicinity where amateur athletic meets will be held on July 4.—J. F.

Answer—Dunellen is planning a safe and sane Fourth of July celebration, part of which will include a field and track meet, and New Brunswick and Elizabeth are arranging for competitive affairs on a larger scale. There are several minor meets on the program for the day in South Plainfield, Union Hill and Fanwood, but none of these will be registered under the A. A. U.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Will you please publish the direct route to Lake Hopatcong? We are contemplating walking there some time in the near future. Is it too far to walk in one day?—G. H. L.

Answer—Leaving Plainfield go through Berkeley Heights, Sterling, Millington, Basking Ridge, Bernardsville, Morristown, Morris Plains and Dover. The distance is about forty miles and could be covered by foot in a day provided one was used to walking.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Kindly tell me the weather conditions at the Canal Zone in Panama at this season of the year; whether a trip there for pleasure at this time would be unbearable on account of the heat, and if the rainy season is on and, if so, if it is impossible to get around sight-seeing. When will the water be turned into the canal?—H. A. M.

Answer—It is probably hot, muggy and wet at the present time. The rainy season begins in April and continues until November. It will not be impossible, however, for you to get around sight-seeing. When the water will be turned into the canal depends upon circumstances. Some of it is in already, and the builders of the "big ditch" are anxious to let more in as soon as possible. It was announced recently that this would be done in the late summer but the work has been set back by large landslides.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What constitutes a sacrifice hit and is it counted as a time at the bat in compiling a box score?—S. A. T.

Answer—A sacrifice hit is credited to the batsman who, when no one is out, or when one man is out, advances a runner a base by a bunt hit, which results in the batter being put out before he reaches first, or would so result if it were handled without error. A sacrifice hit is also credited to a batsman when no one is out or when one man is out, sets a fly ball that is caught but results in a run being scored or would, in the judgment of the scorer so result if the ball were caught.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Will a marriage license be issued to a couple in a city other than the one in which they reside?—C. B. D.

Answer—A marriage certificate must be secured in the city, town or village where the bride-to-be resides.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Does a man who has served four years in the United States army or navy and has had an honorable discharge have to pay poll tax?—G. B.

Answer—A soldier or sailor who has had an honorable discharge is exempt from poll tax.

BASEBALL NOTES

Catcher Ed Sweeney, of the Yankees, has been off his stride of late and in consequence is being panned by the New York fans.

Harry Lumley, the old fence-busting gardener of the Brooklyn Superbas, has signed with the Scranton team, of the New York State League.

Nearly all the big league clubs in the country are trying to land Pitcher "Rube" Schauer, the star flinger of the Superior Northern League team.

The New York Americans have offered $5,000 for the immediate release of Frank Hosp, shortstop of the Venice team, of the Pacific Coast League.

Harry Lord has recovered from an injury to his arm, which put him out of the fray several days, and is now putting up a swell game for the White Sox.

The Boston Red Sox have defeated the Yankees in eighteen straight games in New York. The Yankees have not won from the Red Sox in New York since June 22, 1911.

H. Zimmerman, of the Cubs, has a rival in the way of being the "only guy of the Bronx." Dick Rudolph, of the Braves, also comes from beyond the Harlem River.

Names taken from the line-up of the Chicago Federal League team, as printed in a Chicago newspaper: O'Leary, Stanley, Knaggs, Kelding, Grich, McDonald and McGilvre.

Pitcher Tom Seaton, of the Phillies, has his turkey-trotting ball down to perfection this season. Tom had rolled up seven straight victories when the Giants landed on him for a game.

Chapman, who stands eighth, is the only Cleveland Nap among the dozen leading basestealers in the American League. Good pitching and an array of great sluggers are keeping the Naps up in the chase.

Walizer, Connors, Holecomb, Kelley and Devine, of the St. Anselms College (Manchester, N. H.) baseball nine, have quit the college team and joined the professional ranks. All five players have landed berths with minor league teams.

Not much doubt about the Athletics having the Red Sox and Washington teams' number. The series with the Red Sox stands 5 to 1 in favor of the Athletics, while the Mackmen have copped 7 of the 9 games played with Washington.

The major league clubs have started to gather the 1913 crop of minor league wonders. Detroit was one of the first of the big league clubs to get on the job, having signed Pitcher Grimes and First Baseman Burns, of the Ottumwa (Ia.) team.

Men and ponies unified in the aggregation famed as America's Big Four superbly upheld their country's flag yesterday in the international cup contest on Hempstead Plains with the invading Britons, taking the first polo game of the series by a score of 5½ to 3 goals. Bidding defiance to what seemed to be crushing bad luck on the eve of the struggle, this same old Big Four that in 1909 recaptured the international trophy and in 1911 successfully defended it came back to the field yesterday after having been sent to the stables forty-eight hours before, and by defeating the English challengers accomplished what the knowing ones earlier had agreed was highly improbable.

Neither fluke nor partial fortune was charged against the day's triumph. The secret of winning was revealed literally within a few minutes after the ball was tossed into the scrimmage. The 25,000 spectators assembled at the four sides of the Meadow Brook field to witness what was described as the most brilliant and representative event in the annals of sport in this country, read for themselves the story in the accomplishment of men put on their mettle; men throbbing with determination from helmet-pressed head to spurred heel, and—don't forget this—of game little ponies that did not flinch under the heel or tail of hand that held them.

In spite of the victory, bad luck trailed it like a Nemesis because the ranks of the Big Four are broken by the loss of one of its members. J. M. Waterbury, Jr., No. 2, had a finger broken in two places by a mallet blow, and was compelled to withdraw. His place was taken by L. E. Stoddard. Harry Payne Whitney also received a painful blow on the arm, but kept in the fray and is expected to continue as captain of the Americans.

Joy over the victory was all the more unconfined because it came a general surprise. The crowds were exultant. When the field gongs clanged their finishing call at 6:25 p. m., and the tired men and heaving ponies left the turf, the assemblage in the stands rose up and let loose deafening cheers. The glow of a wonderful sunset was heightened by the flashing of flags waved on every hand. Siren horns in the host of automobiles took up the exultant note furnished by voices. And a nice part of it was that our English cousins who were out in goodly number joined generously in the acclaim.

"It's the fastest game I ever saw," was the comment of Capt. E. D. Miller, the Duke of Westminster's representative.

"The Americans carried the game to the English," was the modest verdict of Devereux Milburn as he dismounted and gave his pony a loving pat on its velvet nose.

POLO FIELD RULES.

A foul counts minus one-half or such other penalty as the referee may decide.

Goal.

A goal is made when the ball goes over and clear of the line between the goal posts or above the top of the goal posts between the centre lines.

Safety.

Whenever a player, either accidentally or intentionally, sends the ball over the goal lines he is defending it shall be deemed a safety.

Fouls.

The following are examples of riding, etc., that are prohibited:

"NO MORE FOOTBALL" SAYS BILL RUTLEDGE

When the Holy Cross football eleven appears on the gridiron next fall it will probably be minus the services of one of the greatest tackles that ever played the pigskin game on local fields, and the team will be materially weakened by his absence. "Bill" Rutledge will be a minus quantity in local football circles next year if he carries out his present plans. Most of Bill's friends know that he recently purchased a set of sixty-dollar gold teeth, which have improved his good looks considerably and when approached by the Holy Cross manager the other day and asked to affix his John Hancock to a contract for next season Bill would not listen to the manager's entreaties, declaring that he would never again don moleskins.

What Holy Cross will do without Rutledge in the lineup remains to be seen, but all followers of the fall's sport are ready to acknowledge that the Church boys will lose a valuable cog in their gridiron machine. Bill's ability to smash holes in the enemy's defense has won many a game for the North Plainfielders and on the defense he is a terror, his tackling being hard and accurate.

FANWOOD SCHOOL TEAM LOST LAST GAME IN THE LEAGUE

Playing their last game of the season in connection with the Union County Grammar School Baseball League, the Fanwood Township School nine was defeated by the Roselle schoolboys yesterday afternoon at Scotch Plains by a count of 4 to 3. All of the seven runs recorded during the afternoon were earned by clean walloping and Bostwick, of the visitors, distinguished himself by pounding out a two base lick which helped to beat the Fanwood nine.

Wahl, at third base, was easily the star of the game, stopping several line drives that were ticketed for extra bases. DeNitzioo, appearing for the first time in Fanwood togs, did some good work for his team both in the field and at the bat. The score:

AMERICAN RACQUET WIELDERS WHO DEFEATED AUSTRALIANS AND WHO HAVE NOW SET OUT TO CONQUER THE GERMAN TENNIS TEAM

BIG LEAD CUT DOWN BY MARGARET CURTIS

Miss Margaret Curtis, the Essex County Club, holder of the national women's championship title, started her run down to the finish of the women's Eastern championship at the Brae Burn Country Club yesterday by cutting into Mrs. Ronald Barlow's lead until at the present time but five strokes separate the with 18 holes to play. Miss Curtis was around yesterday in 98, for each half of the course, while Mrs. Barlow took four more. The present Eastern title holder stands at the head of the list with a grand total of 199 for the 36 holes, while Miss Curtis is five shots away at 204. On Monday night Mrs. Barlow was nine shots ahead of the national titlist.

Indications yesterday were that the Philadelphian was being troubled in her short game while Miss Curtis was slashing them out straight after the first hole and making every shot count. The Essex player started with an 8 after a troubled winding second shot. At the fifth where she took 11 Monday, she was down in 7 yesterday. However, 3-4, 4—6 on the next four holes before the turn aided materially. Coming home she had a 7 at the sixteenth, but aside from that played perfect. She was the only player to break 100 yesterday, though Miss Francis Griscom was around in even figures and Miss Harriet Curtis in 101.

N. P. H. S. TEAM IN A TITLE CONTEST

Will Play for Somerset County Championship Tomorrow at Bound Brook.

North Plainfield and Somerville High Schools will meet in the third and deciding game for the Somerset County High School baseball championship at Bound Brook tomorrow afternoon, the latter place having been selected for the playoff because of the fact that it is neutral to both aggregations. To date each aggregation has won a game, North Plainfield having trounced the Somervillians on Hyde Oval, while the latter trimmed the boroughites by a close margin on the Somerville grounds two weeks ago.

From present appearances and from the past season's performances, it looks as though the contest was going to be one between Newton Spencer, the N. P. H. S. mainstay on the mound, and Kershaw, who last Saturday afternoon held the versatile High Bridge aggregation to one hit while sporting the Somerville High School woolens. While their is no trophy at stake in this series the rivalry between these schools has been of the keenest in every branch of sport and both nines will probably have a large delegation of fans on the neutral field tomorrow afternoon.

North Plainfield was originally scheduled to meet Flemington at the latter place this afternoon but because of the long trip entailed in reaching the rival team's field it was deemed best to cancel the engagement.

P. H. S. SEASON ENDS.

After winning the Interscholastic Championship and setting up a High School record for games won, that has seldom been equalled by a local schoolboy nine, the Plainfield High School aggregation has laid aside its woolens for the season and many of the teams have played their last game in P. H. S. togs. A large percentage of the players will be graduated this month and while there is a wealth of new material ready to step into their vacated places next spring, the veterans will be sorely missed in the lineup. A picture of the team with the Collier trophy resting in the center was taken Monday afternoon.

LOCAL MAN TRAINED WINNING POLO PONY

Richard Waring Sold the Animal to Louis Stoddard Who Rode Him Yesterday.

One of the polo ponies that took part in the international game at Meadow Brook field yesterday afternoon, which attracted so little comment from the 25,000 spectators who witnessed the affair, was the one ridden by Louis Stoddard, the first substitute, who took the place of Monte Waterbury. When Stoddard raced out on the field astride a little spirited black animal to fill Waterbury's place, who had to retire from the fray with two broken fingers in the sixth period, he was the centre of attraction, the fresh steed inspiring a new life in the Americans' playing. A Plainfielder had a more than passing interest in the work of the Stoddard animal, Richard Waring, of Park avenue, one of the interested spectators at the match, having sold the animal to Stoddard some weeks ago.

Young Waring is the proprietor of a horse ranch in Texas and has made a specialty of training polo ponies. He came to New York several weeks ago with twenty of the animals, taking two of them to the Meadowbrook field, where the English and American teams were practicing for the big meeting. One of the animals was sold to a member of the English team and the other was purchased by Stoddard with the result that it was used in yesterday's game. The training the animal had received at the hands of the Plainfield man evidenced itself prominently yesterday, the animal being in every play and one of the first to get down the field. Stoddard made many brilliant runs for the American color bearers on board the equine after his entrance into the battle but scarcely had time to absorb the spirit of swift attack which had made his predecessor, Waterbury, so formidable.

LOCAL PLAYER STARS IN U. S. TITLE PLAY

Miss Wildey Wins Laurels on the Philadelphia Cricket Club's Court.

Contesting the second day's play in the women's tennis championships of the United States, Miss Edna Wildey, of this city, and Miss Dorothy Green, her playing partner, experienced little difficulty in disposing of Miss Creswell and Mrs. Gilbert Harvey in the first round of the doubles, winning with scores of 6-1, 6-2. In the mixed doubles, the local player was not so fortunate, however, being defeated in the first round by Miss White and Robert Evans, Jr., with scores of 0-6, 12-10, 6-3. Miss Wildey topped off her afternoon's work by winning her set in the second round of the championship singles by defeating Miss Dorothy Disston, of the Philadelphia Cricket Club, with a card of 6-1, 6-1.

The matches which were played on the courts of the Philadelphia Cricket Club yesterday afternoon, were played under ideal weather conditions and the promise of some interesting matches brought out a fashionable crowd. Individually some good tennis was shown, especially on the part of Miss Wildey, but those who expected to witness some thrilling matches must have been a trifle disappointed. It was decided to play the outstanding matches in the second round of the championship singles and devote the rest of the afternoon to doubles and mixed doubles and the two scheduled matches that were played proved to be too one-sided to be really interesting.

Probably the match to produce the most interest during the whole afternoon of play came in the second set of the series when Miss Wildey and her partner were defeated in the mixed doubles. The score was run up to 12-10 in this set before the winners could secure their necessary two game advantage. They experienced little difficulty in winning the playoff however, by a score of 6-3.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

By FRANCES MARSHALL

The Traveler's Lunch.

Last summer a big family—a father and mother, one nurse, a grandmother and seven children ranging from a baby in arms to a child of fourteen—took a fourteen-hour railroad journey, starting late in the evening. Breakfast was the only meal they would have to take on the way, and the mother, father, grandmother and nurse looked forward to this meal with terror. There was to be a dining car on the train, and they expected to breakfast there, but the idea of looking after seven children and babies and choosing suitable food for them from the elaborate bill of fare was disconcerting. So at last the grown-ups decided to take the breakfast with them. Their idea was not one of economy, but of convenience. Incidentally, however, the father of the family saved a good many dollars.

The breakfast was packed in a huge hamper. Milk, in bottles, was packed in a round aluminum cooking dish, filled with ice and salt, and wrapped in newspaper and burlap. Bread and butter, a box of uncooked cereal, a fruit jar full of stewed prunes, cups, saucers and spoons, completed the children's part of the feast. For the grown-ups there was a thermos bottle of coffee, more bread and butter, some oranges, and some dainty egg sandwiches. The children thought the picnic breakfast a big success, it made the journey easier for everyone concerned, and the children had the advantage of eating the sort of food they were used to.

Lunches.

A great saving can always be effected if the meal or meals eaten on a journey are carried from home. They can be quite as pleasant, too, as picnic meals, if they are daintily packed and comfortably eaten. The reason they are so often unpleasant is that they are not nicely packed and they are eaten in a shamefaced sort of way, as if the lunchers were ashamed of bringing their own lunch. But in reality neither railroad officials or employes nor fellow travelers care one whit whether you eat your lunch from a basket or from a table in the dining car. Travelers do look at each other, to be sure, and even comment on each other, but it is simply for lack of something better to do. By the next day you and your lunch will be forgotten by everyone save yourself, wherever it was eaten.

Some Cookery Suggestions

USING LEFTOVER HAM.

WHEN there is cold ham, especially if mere fragments have been left, it is sometimes difficult to know just how to use it.

The following suggestions along this line may be of use to the housewife:

Baked Chopped Ham.—Grind the leftover ham or shoulder in a food chopper. Put in a dish a thin layer of breadcrumbs, a layer of ham, then a layer of piccalilli, and repeat until all is used up, the last layer to be breadcrumbs, and bake in oven until brown on top.

In Individual Dishes.

Ham and Eggs.—Take deep oatmeal dishes and put a little cold chopped ham in each, making a hollow in center. Drop an egg in each, season with salt and pepper and a small piece of butter on each. Bake in a moderate oven until whites are firm.

Ham in Cups.—Butter half dozen custard cups and fill with equal quantities of stale breadcrumbs and cold ham chopped fine and seasoned well. Beat three eggs and add one cupful milk and divide among the cups, adding more milk if necessary. Set cups in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven until firm in center. Turn on platters and serve with white sauce.

Odd Recipes.

Ham with Currant Jelly.—Take one-half tablespoonful butter, one-third cupful currant jelly, few grains cayenne, one-quarter cupful sherry, one cupful cold baked ham cut in small strips; put butter and currant jelly into the chafing dish and as soon as melted add cayenne, sherry and ham; simmer about five minutes.

Cold Boiled Ham.

Deviled Ham.—This is a good way to use up the fragments left from a boiled ham. Grind the pieces very fine, throwing away hard parts and most of the fat, and to each tumblerful add two hard boiled eggs, boiled a long time, so that they will be mealy and not damp. Melt a big piece of butter and season the whole liberally with pepper and mustard—with salt if needed. Chop the eggs fine, and if there seems to be too much white leave some of it out. Pack down firmly into tumblers and seal, with melted fat over the top, if you wish to keep it a while.

The Thread Was Around His Body

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Fluffy Graycat And Little Emily's Spools.

"CUDDLE down, cuddle down," said daddy as Jack and Evelyn climbed into his arms. "If you want a story I will tell you about Fluffy Graycat.

"To begin with, Fluffy Graycat was in disgrace. He had been naughty. His little mistress was learning to sew. She had a nice new workbox in which were spools and balls of cotton.

"Though Fluffy had begged and begged, little Emily would never allow Fluffy Graycat to play with these.

"'You must be a good little kitten and play with your ball,' Emily would say when Fluffy would jump up and beg for a spool to play with.

"Fluffy thought this was very selfish of Emily. 'Just as if I'd hurt her old spools!' he grumbled to himself.

"'Spools are not meant for kittens to play with,' Fluffy's mother told him. 'If you want sport come to the barn with me and watch a mouse hole.'

"But Fluffy did not wish to go out into the barn. He stayed right there on the rug, sulkily watching Emily as she threaded her needle and began to sew.

"'Emily, come here a minute!' the little girl's mother called from upstairs, and Emily ran off in answer to the call.

"Fluffy raised his head. This was the chance he had been looking for. Jumping up quickly, in a minute he had half a dozen spools on the floor.

"First he unrolled the white thread; then he tried the black; then he opened up another spool and with his little paws twisted this thread with the others until he had made a fine tangle.

"He slapped the spools about over the floor and did not at first mind, though the threads wrapped around his paws and legs. In a little bit they were so twisted about his body that he could not walk, and then he rolled over and tried to wriggle out of the tangle. But the more he wriggled, of course the more he was a prisoner.

"No one came for quite a long time. Then Emily tripped downstairs. When she saw what had happened she was at first very much provoked.

"'You naughty Fluffy Graycat!' she said. 'It serves you right for meddling with my things.'

"But Fluffy put on a very miserable face and meowed so pitifully that tender hearted little Emily knelt down and with her little scissors cut the threads that bound him.

"Up jumped Fluffy, not minding in the least the little slap which his mistress gave him as a punishment for meddling with her box. He went right off to the barn, where old Mrs. Graycat was watching a mouse hole, and when he told her what had happened you may be sure she gave her son a scolding."

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

In Summer Special Care Should Be Taken With Library.

Magazines quickly serve their day. They are read, tossed aside and forgotten in anticipation of the next month's issue. Occasionally they are preserved in the form of bound volumes. These bound volumes are interesting, and shelves of them reaching back for many years are valuable.

Serial stories can be taken out and bound. Any one who understands bookbinding can get really beautiful books in this way, but the woman who does not understand this art can cover pieces of pasteboard a little larger than the magazine page with cloth, carefully folded over and pasted down on the wrong side about the edges, the inside of the cover made neat by a square of cloth or paper pasted over the edges of the covering of the other side. Two of these covers, with half a dozen holes punched half an inch from the back edges, can be fastened together over the story by means of silk cords run through neat corresponding holes in the pages of the story.

Books demand great care in the summer. The dampness which collects in unused houses is bad for them, and so are darkness and dust, other attributes of the house vacated for the summer. Dust is avoidable in summer, for the books, if they are not protected by glass doors, can be covered with newspapers tacked over the shelves or with strips of heavy muslin. Dampness is almost unavoidable in an empty house. And darkness, unless glass doors protect the books, is also unavoidable. If the books are under glass leave the room where they are shelved as bright and light as possible.

Attractive Fans.

Attractive fans of the size liked for dances and the theater have plain sandalwood mountings and spreads of flexible soft satin in delicate tones, edged with a fine vine in handwork. Somewhat more expensive are fans of beautifully carved sandelwood with tops of silk embroidered and hand painted with a cherry blossom design.

Celluloid mounted fans come in every imaginable color, sometimes with spreads of hand painted celluloid and again topped with marabou and decorated with tiny flowers in silk. Nowadays all self respecting fans come in silk bags veiled and edged with white or black lace or with gold or silver net.

A Sash Season.

This season the sash is helping to eliminate what waist fashion has left us. It will undoubtedly be smarter to have a slightly defined waist line than one which is definitely marked, and the sash of today is so loosely bound round the figure that we get a thick, rather careless negligee effect, which is however, soft and natural.

The natural effect is the keynote of all schemes this season. In everything we wear the aim is to look natural.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

VOTES FOR PLAINFIELD WOMEN AND THE OPPOSITION THERETO.

Every really great question lines up its adherents and opponents. Ability, cleverness and zeal are brought forward for and against. No one wishes to deny or belittle these qualities in the antis however much one might wish them devoted to a better cause than the hindering of one woman by another in what should be for them both a procession where some must lead while others follow far behind, but all press forward.

Miss Bronson's cleverness is beyond question. The real kernel of the matter is that she is not in favor of true democracy. She does not wish every citizen to have a voice in government. Many men feel this same way but they do not go up and down the land disparaging male suffrage for that reason, though the argument on that ground is surely as strong against the vote of men as against that of women.

Miss Bronson vehemently relegated to the scrap heat the "absolete" nation of our forefathers that taxation was a basis for the vote, declaring that it had long since become an utterly meaningless thing and that today voting in no way depended upon the payment of taxes.

On the printed slips given out at the door after the meeting and having the name of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage together with a list of officers occurs the following:

Voting members pay yearly dues and are entitled to vote at annual meeting.

Enrolled members pay no dues and have not the privilege of voting.

Miss Bronson and the association she represents ought to get together on this. Such a discrepancy looks bad. It is liable to give one the impression that the N. J. A. O. T. W. S. in its own government still looks upon the payment of taxes as in some way directly conected with the right to vote.

Miss Bronson said that the suffrage contention is that "difference in sex is the fundamental blunder of creation."

Senator Robinson says: "I made my campaign on the strength of the fact that I was feminine. I told the voters that I came before them asking for the office because I was different and had a different viewpoint. There isn't any sex antagonism about it, nor any sex rivalry, as I see it, any more than there is in the home."

Miss Bronson said that the equal suffrage movement began with the demand for co-education, but that there is now a re-action in this matter; Miss Bronson's intention being that her hearers should infer from this state co-education has proved a failure, hence co-operation of men and women in government will prove the same.

Taking the co-education re-action problem from the school nearest at hand, the Horace Mann School, it has been found that with separate classes for girls and boys, girls are not pushed too hard in their work. "Not that they are less apt," the school authorities hasten to explain "No, on the contrary, the girls are to be congratulated in the way they stand comparison. It takes an astonishing degree of vigor to educate a boy, and inevitably in their classes the instructors energize them by all the means at hand."

Now the girls respond to this intensive energizing so readily that they thereby set a pace that the boys simply cannot keep up with, and what is to be done? Why take away the girls so that one may be able to prove the boys all that is necessary without, at the same time subjecting them to the humiliating and dangerous risk of being constantly outskipped by the girls!

A young woman whose brother attends a big co-educational university, said to the writer recently:

"Yes the men there are very disagreeable to the women, ignore them socially and show in every way that they don't want them there. But you can't blame the men, for the women carry off such a large proportion of the honors."

If Miss Bronson knows the facts as to the ability of girls and women students, her logical mind must work somerwhat on this wise: Co-education has been tested. It proves that girls are liable to excel their brothers in scholarship. The boys and girls must be separated to give the boys a chance. Therefore, co-education is a failure and it follows that woman, being more susceptible to educational influences than man, must not add her ignorance to the electorate!

Miss Bronson asks, "Can women better serve the State by engaging in the services which till now have been denied the business of man?"

Senator Robinson says: "The State isn't anything but the larger home. Both need in them two direct influences, man's and woman's."

"It is the woman's sympathy, the woman's mercy in addition to man's justice that is needed in legislative halls. Man invariably tries to make the particular case fit to the abstract rule. Woman as invariably tries to fit the rule to the particular case. Both elements and a compromise between the two methods are essential to success whether it be in the home or in public life."

Miss Bronson denied that any money from the Liquor Dealers' Association or any organization protecting the White Slave Traffic had been paid into the treasury of the Anti-Suffrage Association, claiming that each check received is carefully scanned and returned if suspected of taint.

It is not at all difficult to see that the liquor dealers and men in other nefarious lines of business are aware of this careful "scanning" and know how to circumvent it. In point of fact it is no uncommon thing for contributions to a campaign fund to be made through the agency of an intermediary so that the name of the actual contributors may be withheld, thereby making it possible to "scan" checks and at the same time claim that "no contribution from a tainted source has been paid into the treasury."

A door to door canvess of Plainfield's license zone will show that while persons engaged in legitimate business may differ widely in their views of suffrage those whose incomes are dependent upon questionable callings are solidly against votes for women. No one claims that anti suffrage has wittingly allied itself with the liquor interest or the white slave traffic but the liquor interests and the white slave traffic have very wittingly allied themselves with anti-suffrage. Men in these two lines of business know perfectly well why they do not wish women to have the freedom and the power the ballot would bring.

The activity of the liquor dealers' associations against women suffrage in Wisconsin and Michigan has only lately been shown up in these columns. These facts still tell their own story and need no repetition here.

Says a recent issue of the Detroit Journal: "The most curious sight in Detroit's political history is this: a saloon table piled high with the cartoons and literature of an anti-suffrage society composed largely of high bred and high principled women."

A letter written by the Montana Protective Association in listing woman suffrage as part of "the great reform wave that is sweeping the country," says: "We are now preparing a campaign against woman suffrage in this State, because the leaders have avowed that one of the principal reasons why they desire women to vote is that it will afford them the best means of sweeping the saloon business out of Montana."

Certainly the liquor dealers have this "campaign against woman suffrage" very much at heart—and it is highly probable that where their heart is there will their treasure be also.

Miss Bronson claims from the platform and in pamphlet published by the association opposed that:

Women are more generously protected by law in States where there is no woman suffrage. This age of protection for girls is 18 years in at least six of the nine suffrage States.

A committee of the Connecticut Legislature recently turned down unanimously a proposal to raise the age of protection to 18 years.

In New Jersey it is still sixteen years. Are our daughters thus better protected by the laws made solely by (and for) their fathers and brothers than they would be if their mothers and sisters had a hand in them?

In the census of 1910 the number of women factory workers in the suffrage States was one-half of one per cent. of the women so employed in the industrial non-suffrage States. Yet Miss Bronson taunts us with the lack of factory laws for the protection of this half of one per cent. Well, Colorado at any rate is anticipating conditions. She already has a Minimum Wage Law. And when it was argued that there was as yet no need of such a law the reply was that Colorado, to save misery and hardship later on should be ahead of the need—and she is ahead.

Miss Bronson's pamphlet also tries to show that in all the States wage-earning women are better protected by laws than wage-earning men.

Let us see. Here are sections from the Bulletin of the New York Department of Labor for March, 1911:

A federal law and laws in twenty States, the District of Columbia, Hawaii and Porto Rico limit the hours of labor in public employment to eight per day.

Private employment also enjoys protection in the matter of hours. Twelve States limit to eight in one day the working hours of miners. New Jersey is not one of these twelve. And yet certain recent events have brought to mind the fact that there are miners in New Jersey. As to now—let us taunt male suffrage with being a failure in one State because of this condition of affairs!

The Bulletin sums up:

There are on the statute books of the United States and dependencies no less than sixty-five distinct laws designed to place a limitation on the daily hours of labor of adult males in private employment.

For women only three States have eight-hour laws and two have nine-hour laws. These five States are all suffrage States.

Inform yourself on this matter in your own State. A third of New Jersey's population is made up of working women and children. Her laws protecting them are far behind those of many other States. We used to long to be as well protected as our sisters in New York. But since the cannery disclosures we have somehow felt that even such a condition left something to be desired.

Miss Bronson warns us that political equality for women would deprive them of the extension of protective legislation.

But Justice Brewer, who wrote the Oregon decision by which the U. S. Supreme Court upheld a ten-hour law for women, said: "Even though all restrictions on political, personal and contractural rights were taken away, and she (woman) stood as far as statutes are concerned upon an equal plain with him (man) her physical structure leaving in view not only her own health but the well being of the race, justifies legislation to protect her."

Plainfielders spoke of the Anti meeting the other evening as "Miss Bronson's meeting," and with reason. The "working girl" featured in it, was such a splendid specimen of the sort of person who needs the vote in direct ratio to her abhorrence of it that when she assured us that there were sixty more at home like her one could only make the mental reservation "and only one Mrs. C. B. Alexander." The thought made being in the "8 per cent. minority" quite easy to bear.

But Miss Bronson should not dare to be as clever as she can or she will defeat her own ends. One signer of the Anti slips said to me, "If I had the vote I would vote for Miss Bronson a good bit sooner than for Assemblyman Matthiews!" In such consistent quarters is Anti-Suffrage growing (as Miss B. assures us) "by leaps and bounds."

Really though the most appealing note in the whole meeting was struck by Mr. Matthiews when with deep feeling he called our attention to the courage and sacrifice of these women who have at last in spite of their sensitive natures consented to offer themselves on the altar of the opposition. One could see all the time what an effort it cost Miss Bronson and how she shrank from such publicity and how every moment she just longed to be back in her own little home where she belongs forever and ever.

An organization of Antis has been formed in Plainfield. This is fine. It will at least give some women a chance to escape following Assemblyman Matthiews' advice that they should be "taking care of their children twenty-four hours a day."

HINTS ON FASHIONS IN THE METROPOLIS

New York, June 11. The extraordinary variety of styles from which one may choose this season, whatever comes nearest to fitting the temperament as well as one's figure, is positively astonishing. Many of the styles are exceedingly charming if worn by the right persons, others are more odd than beautiful and can be worn successfully only by few women and finally there are a few styles which, even under the most favorable conditions, are simply hideous. The Oriental note is particularly conspicuous at the present time. The gorgeous effects borrowed from Persian and East Indian costumes are holding their own in the face of the approaching summer, when they might reasonably be expected to disappear.

Beads and bugles and pearls and rhinestones are used in ornamenting the most elaborate summer evening costumes quite as much as they were during the winter. Wonderful chiffons and tulles embroidered in these brilliant effects are still to be seen, while pearls are used on many of the simpler frocks.

Elaborate lingerie dresses this season are almost exclusively of embroidered batiste combined with real laces of the heavier varieties, such as coarse filet, Cluny, Venise, and Alencon. Or they are of net with shadow lace or other fine weaves combined with the embroidered batiste. English eyelet embroidery, which early in the season appeared to have suffered a set-back, has been coming into favor again in Paris and here. It is now shown more frequently in batiste than in linen and is elaborately embroidered as well as "eyeletted."

Among the most striking novelties of the season are waistcoats, which appear in many extremely odd and not always artistic variations. There is the "gilet Prud'homme," for example, which has created quite a sensation in Paris. A vest of the most ample dimensions is this particular "gilet." Arrayed in it, even a slender woman looks bulky. The waistcoat makes not the slightest pretension to fit. Made of white pique, with the usual masculine supply of pockets, and fastened with pearl buttons, it looks precisely like the generous waistcoats worn by our great-grandfathers.

Another rather interesting waistcoat has been originated by Paquin. It is not really a separate garment, but is appliqued on to the dress, or the coat itself. This fake waistcoat is grown out of all resemblance to the traditional feminine vestee. It reaches out to the shoulders at the top and extends twelve or fourteen inches below the waistline. It is generally in brilliant brocaded silk, contrasting sharply with the dark material of the suit upon which it is applied.

Much more attractive and really graceful are some of the big loose waistcoats in white corded silk, with very wide revers and collar which are worn outside the coat itself. In one of these striking costumes the waistcoat is confined by a belt, over which it blouses and below which it extends in two deep rounded points. This one does not button, the revers crossing each other and fastening under the belt. But in most instances these garments afford a chance for a good deal of originality in the selection of buttons and other ornamental trimmings.

These extremely simple white waistcoats, which are especially good with long cutaway coats that do not fasten in front, have not gained much of a following in this country as yet. They are too new. But they are sure to be adopted by young women of a certain type, the type that goes in for outdoor sports and is keen about dressing the part.

Plaiting is becoming more in vogue all the time. It is indicated on the Bulgarian or Russian blouses, where the plaits open, or at least are fluted, and appear as if they had lately been tight knife plaits.

In many evening frocks for young women flowers are worked in heavy wool, then cherries or roses done, to fall separately. The effect is pretty, but, to say the least, impractical and inconsistent. This idea was originated about a year ago. It died a natural death in autumn, and now, with the approach of the summer, has returned, the designs being much larger, and in most instances the flowers or fruit depend from the goods. White is a favorite background for these gayly colored bunches, but one sees materials in cream and other delicate tints with designs hanging.

Tan linen suits of heavy quality are made more serviceable, as well as smarter looking, when they show bindings of wide brown silk braid. One suit, with cutaway coat, shows two horizontal stripes of the braid on the skirt—one at the left side front and the other at the right side back. The coat is bound down the front and about the bottom with the braid, and the collar and cuffs are likewise bound with a braid. Large round glass buttons of brown and yellow are used for buttoning the coat and trimming the skirt.

The separate coat is to be worn this summer in many fashions. For summer wear the separate coat is such a convenience that although it may be out of evidence for a season or so it is bound to come back before long. For outing wear the blazer is still popular with young girls. Coats of sponge cloth well below the hips, cut on straight lines, buttoned with big bone buttons, with breast pocket, and long sleeves, are also worn for sports.

There are longer coats of various thin cloths for boating and walking and motoring, made double-breasted, buttoning over the chest, with long, wide sleeves, and big pockets at the sides. The old covert cloth coats made on strictly tailored lines are also in evidence, and although not so becoming as some of the more elaborate afternoon coats, are always serviceable and smart. Hip length cutaway coats of marelasse and silk poplin and other silk fabrics are worn with afternoon frocks. Linen coats are worn with separate linen skirts, for instance, a blue linen Norfolk is worn with a white linen skirt. This same fad for separate coats is demonstrated in the gowns made with black satin skirt and colored silk or satin coat which are seen in the hotels at the tea hour.

Plain linen waists are apparently to be much worn with coat suits for warm weather. One of heavy linen, is made with turnback collar and cuffs, which show a similar embroidered design—an eyelet flanked by two heavy leaves worked at intervals of about an inch in heavy embroidery cotton. The collar and cuffs are edged with narrow Irish picot lace edge. A small pocket is applied to the left front. It, like the collar and cuffs, is embroidered and edged with picot.

Some of the shoes show lingerie made of rainsook embroidered in the Philippine Islands by the native women. This lingerie is less expensive than that embroidered in France and is sheer and dainty. According to some authorities on the subject it bids fair to gain popularity among women who like hand-embroidered underwear, but do not feel able to pay the high prices charged for that of French make.

J. W. HEGEMAN IS A BENEDICT

A HOME CEREMONY

Rev. S. H. Granberry, of Newark, Officiates—Miss Grace A. Ten Eyck Maid of Honor and E. L. Alling, of Brooklyn, Best Man.

Miss Bessie Rizpah, daughter of Mrs. Richard A. TenEyck, formerly of Plainfield, but now residing in Cranford, was married last evening at her home to John Wesley Hageman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Roome Hegeman, of Sycamore avenue, North Plainfield. In the absence of Rev. William S. McCoy, rector of Holy Cross church, the ceremony was performed by Rev. Stephen H. Granberry, rector of St. Barnabus church, Newark, of which the groom was a former member.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her cousin, Charles E. Bishop, of Elizabeth, wore a gown of white satin crepe meteor trimmed with point lace and a tulle veil, fastened with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white Killarney roses and swansonia.

Miss Grace A. TenEyck, the bride's sister, was maid of honor, and wore a gown of pink crepe de chine and carried pink Killarney roses and sweet peas. Virginia Bishop, of Elizabeth, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and carried a white basket filled with pink roses. Elmore L. Alling, of Brooklyn, was best man.

A reception was held after the ceremony. The house was attractively decorated with palms, ferns, smilax and Killarney roses. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Hegeman will reside in Cranford, where the groom has just erected a new home. Mr. Hegeman has been an active worker in the Sunday-school and Church of the Holy Cross for several years, serving as a vestryman and treasurer. He is a member of the Men's Club of Grace chruch, of which he was formerly secretary, and is president of the Central New Jersey Local Assembly of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. Both the bride and groom were active members of the Park Golf Club.

SMALL BOARD BILLS AGGREGATED $5,000

Union County Attorney, 'Tis Said, Advises Payment for Defunct Body's Work.

Elizabeth, June 12.—Bills presented by the small board appointees amounting to more than $5,000 have been submitted to the Union County Board of Freeholders and the matter of paying them is now under consideration. County Attorney W. R. Codington, it is understood, will inform the board that the members of the defunct board should be paid, as under the law they were fully entitled to remuneration.

The freeholders, it is said, favor paying such members and appointees that performed some service. All of the appointees, as well as members of the defunct board have sent in their bills, but some of them, it is alleged, rendered absolutely no service whatever. The auditing committee has presented the matter to Mr. Codington and his opinion will be based on the Griffin compensation law. It is expected that litigations will follow. In Mercer county the members of the small board have been paid for their time of service.

BOUND BROOK GIRL MARRIES NEW YORKER

Miss Mildred Voorhees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Brokaw, became the bride last night of Herbert Reed Burns, of Brooklyn, at her home in Bound Brook. Rev. P. K. Culp, pastor of the Bound Brook Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony. Miss Edith Hickok Brokaw, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Russell Harris Burns, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

Following the nuptials, which were witnessed only by the immediate members of both families, an elaborate wedding reception was held. The guests present were from Bound Brook, Plainfield, Dunellen, New York and Brooklyn. The newlyweds left this morning on a honeymoon.

"TIME IS FLEETING" THE 'ACCEPTED HOUR'

Evry time the clock ticks you are losing in the game of life. The big contest of The Plainfield Daily Press is the talk of the town, but talk will not win any part of the $4,000 in prizes which The Daily Press will positively award on July 19th regardless of how many or how few subscriptions will be derived from the greatest undertaking in the line of a subscription getting campaign ever attempted in Plainfield.

Look over the list every day. Notice it decrease. Why? Beecause candidates estimate their ability too highly and after a few disappointments decide they are not capable of securing enough subscribers to The Daily Press to win one of the valuable prizes. Supppose every candidate whose name appears would take the same view? What would be the result of the contest?

Some three candidates are going to win three automobiles, two will win a bank account of $150, others will win prizes of miner value.

The efforts of the contest department seeem to amount to nought. It is the same story over and over again. "I can get a few all right but don't believe I can get enough to win an automobile so I guess you had better withdraw my name from the list."

Who Knows.

Who knows just how many subscribers it will require to win? It certainly is too much for the contest manager to figure out. Suppose a candidate did secure twenty or thirty subscribers or less during the first period and receive votes equal to two or three hundred subscribers during the last periad, which, of course, it will be impossible for any candidate to write up. What then? Suppose he (the booster period hustler) had votes enough to win the grand prize Henderson automobile value $1,585. Would this not bear out the statement made over and over again that the early starter will have the best of the contest?

By the way while it suggests itself, Mr. Wise Old Owl will begin during the latter part of the contest to try to get a line on what votes candidates have and in an effort to turn an honest dollar use his bank roll to buy up subscriptions enough to win the grand prize. Can he? The vote schedule protects the early starter. Ten for one is what efforts amount to during the period which expires on June 18th at 10 p. m., compared to the last.

No candidate will ever know the standing of another. When a subscription is turned over to the contest department a voucher will be issued good for as many votes as per the vote schedule and returned to the candidate, which can be held until the last night of the contest to be placed in a sealed envelope and handed over to the judges to count. If any person ever knows the standing of another it will be because the candidate himself divulged the information.

Send In Your Nomination.

While you are reading over this contest story, don't overlook the fact that The Plainfield Daily Press wants YOU to fill out the nomination blank on page nine and send it to the contest department. This will not obligate you in any way. If after the proposition is explained to you you cannot see success ahead don't touch it. If you can see success get in the race and make your spare time efforts realize you the greatest dividends ever.

MISS LOUISE ANDREWS DIED THIS MORNING

Miss Louise Stockton Andrews, aged twenty years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic H. Andrews, died this morning after a long illness, at the home of her parents, 818 Central avenue. Her life, though short, was filled with good works. She was a member of Class '14, Smith College, and also of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church and at one time was active in its chapel work.

Private funeral services will be held and the interment will be in Hillside cemetery on Saturday.

NO KEITH IN THAT.

The report published elsewhere that the B. F. Keith concern would be in any way interested in a moving picture show house contemplated to be established in West Front street is absurd. Anybody knowing the least thing about theatres and amusements is cognizant of the fact that Keith and Proctor have a mutual understanding.

TRADE BOARD TO ISSUE CITY BEAUTIFUL BOOKLET

Lamar Van Syckel, whose office is at 146 Park avenue, has been directed by the Board of Trade to purchase a letter-box, similar to those used on the rural free delivery routes, to be placed in his office and suitably inscribed, "Board of Trade, Plainfield, N. J., Suggestions."

The public is invited to send communications to the secretary, placing the word "suggestion" on the envelope. It is not necessary for those making suggestions to sign their names. What is wanted is suggestions and they will be welcome from those who are not members as well as the members of the board. The board will also appreciate photographs, etc., and donations of pictures will give the board material for its new book on "Plainfield, the City Beautiful."

MURDERER DIES ON COOK FARMS

Slayer of Chinaman is the Victim of Fatal Attack of Pneumonia.

LAST OF THE SPECIES

Weighed 200 Pounds—Last of Trio Brought From New Guinea—One-Waddle Cassowary Was a Large and Powerful Bird.

Contracting pneumonia during the recent rainy spell, a New Guinea One-wattle Cassowary, a savage and powerful bird similar in size and shape to the ostrich, owned by Percy H. Cook, of Scotch Plains, died last night. The creature stood six feet in height, weighed 200 pounds and was valued at $1,000. It was the last of a trio of the same species brought to this country by Mr. Cook from New Guinea. One of the others was killed by its owner last year when Mr. Cook had to battle for his own life when the bird attacked him. The other he donated to the Philadelphia Zoological Garden.

The Cassowary that died last night, while en route for this country from its native land, escaped from a cage which had been made especially for the trip and attacked a Chinese sailor. Before the bird was subdued it had stabbed the Tar many times with its sharp inside clak which was 3½ inches long. This claw which is one of the peculiarities of the species, had all the deadly properties of a stilleto.

After two years on the Cook farm, however, the bird had become tame and was a favorite pet in the neighborhood and employes of the Cook & Son poultry farm. It frequented the rooms of the Cook household much after the fashion of a huge dog. As to running, the Cassowary possessed the prowess of the fleet ostrich.

Mr. Cook naturally greatly regrets the loss of his pet and is having the bird mounted.

The Cassowary is akin to the ostrich and a rare species. The shortness of their wings totally unfits them for flying and like others of their order, the wing muscles are comparatively slight and weak, while those of their posterior limbs are robust and powerful. They have three toes the inside one being exceedingly sharp. In self defense they can kick and use this sharp toe with deadly effect. They feed on eggs, and small birds, and inhabit thick forests. Their feathers are of varied colors and beautiful. The skin of the head and superior part of the neck is naked, of a deep blue and fiery red tint, with pendent wattles similar to those of the turkey cock.

DUAL CELEBRATION FOR PYTHIAN LODGE

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, will observe its forty-first anniversary tomorrow night, in its rooms, 420 West Front street, and the affair will be of special interest for the reason that the lodge will make it a celebration for its oldest member, Bennett Britton, who on Monday will observe the one hundredth anniversary of his birtaday. Mr. Britton will be the guest of honor at tomorrow night's anniversary.

Among the visitors will be Past Grand Chancellor William B. Quick, of Somerville; Grand Chancellor Rev. Samuel Dobbins, of Camden, and other grand lodge officers. There will also be present members of Lodge of the Castle, No. 82, of Somerville, and Somerset Lodge, No. 56, of Bound Brook. The Dutch Arms Concert Band, of Trinity Reformed church, has been engaged for the occasion. All visiting knights in the city will be welcome.

After the meeting there will be a banquet and the wives of the knights will have charge of the tables. The annual memorial service of the Knights of Pythias will be held at the First Presbyterian church, Sunday night, when Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, the pastor, will preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

MISS FLORENCE CUTTING RUSSELL PERRINE'S BRIDE

Miss Florence Anna Cutting, daughter of Mrs. William Cutting, of New street, and Russell Perrine, of Webster place, were quietly married at 8 o'clock last night by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church. The ceremony was performed at the home of the officiating clergyman.

Miss Sarah Cutting, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and John S. Parsell, of Westfield, was best man. After the cermony the couple left on a wedding trip. They will reside at 39 Somerset street. Mr. Perrine is employed as a clerk by William Olmstead, the Watchung avenue newsdealer. The bride formerly was employed as a saleswoman in a local store.

AVIARY MADE NATURAL FOR COOK'S WILD BIRDS

The William Cook & Son poultry farm in Scotch Plains has added another large and beautiful aviary to its establishment, which stands adjacent to the old one which is 150 feet square in size. The new cage is 40 feet wide and 50 feet long and was made to accommodate 200 birds of various species shipped from the East Indies. The collection, a rare one, includes parrots of all sorts, cardinals, canaries and many wild birds captured in thick forests of wild countries. The aviary is made as natural to the "pre-captured" conditions of the birds as possible, containing shrubbery, high grass, a small pond and trees and plants of various descriptions.

FREEHOLDERS ASK PERMIT OF A TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE

Representatives of the Union County Board of Freeholders will appear before the North Plainfield Township Committee at its meeting this afternoon and request permission to lay sewage pipes through a portion of the township, it being part of the line to be built from Bonnie Burn Sanitorium to a point connecting with the Plainfield system. It is expected that the request will be granted.

The New York Telephone Company will also appear before the committee for the purpose of securing a franchise to operate in the township, in return for which privilege it will furnish three free telephones for the township officials.

This will be the first time on record that a political meeting takes place in the local public school buildings.

HE SEES SISTER FIRST TIME IN FORTY YEARS

John W. Jaycox, of Elkhorn, Ellsworth county, Kansas, is visiting his sister, Mrs. George W. Owen, of 321 East Fifth street, who he had not seen in forty years. Mr. Jaycox formerly lived in New York State, and served during the Civil War as a member of Co. C, 18th N. Y. Vols., being engaged in the first Battle of Bull Run. He was wounded at South Mountain, Maryland, and was eventually sent home. After that he drifted West and settled in Kansas.

In the meantime his sister located elsewhere and finally came to Plainfield. Mr. Jaycox has been a prosperous farmer and merchant in the West and recently decided to visit his sister. He has invented a collapsible barrel, which is now on exhibition at F. A. Kirch's hardware store on Park avenue, and which has attracted considerable attention.

The pupils of Mrs. Mable Whitman will give a recital at the Netherwood Reformed church tonight. Among those who will take part are Miss Rachel Winn, Miss Hazel Greggory, the Misses Pauline and Alice Zergibel, of Mt. Bethel; Miss Kathryn Reed, of Warrenville, and Miss Florence Mundy, of Springdale.

BOARD OF TRADE TO URGE NEEDED REFORM

Local Body Will Affiliate With Those of Other Towns to Remedy Nuisance.

An invitation has been received by William Jeffery, president of the Plainfield Board of Trade, inviting him to send a representative committee from the local organization to Elizabeth next Tuesday evening, where a joint meeting of the boards of nearby towns will be held to consider a method by which the annoyance caused by the opening and closing of the Newark Bay draw bridge might be eliminated. This question, which directly effects all towns along the Jersey Central Railroad, has been agitated for some time past but this is the initial attempt of the Boards of Trade to bring about a solution to the nuisance. The invitation which has been extended by President Halsey, of the Elizabeth board, and President Pierson, of the Westfield board, is probably the outcome of the rally meeting held by the local board in Sebring's auditorium last week when the co-operation of the New Jersey Trade Boards in just such matters as this one, was urged. Both Mr. Halsey and Mr. Pierson were speakers at that meeting and they have evidently taken this opportunity to enlist the services of the local civic organization in a plan to concentrate effort and to induce the War Department to devise some means of abating the nuisance.

Commuters along the Jersey Central Railroad, particularly between here and Elizabethport have been troubled for years with the delay and annoyance encountered at the Newark Bay draw. In some instances an express is stopped at the bridge to allow a small ash or mud scow to pass through and in some cases this entails a delay of from fifteen to twenty minutes. At the present time the theory of eminent domain fostered by the War Department recognizes the right of the boats over the train, because of the fact that the waterway was there years before the railroad came into existence. As a means of remedying this circumstance the boards will probably suggest that the War Department establish a decree of some kind requiring the owners of mud scows and similar vessels to do their work between certain hours in the morning and evening so as to avoid stopping the trains during rush hours.

Representing the local board at the meeting will be the railroad and transportation committee composed of Clifford M. Manning, chairman; T. O. Doane, Jr., and Fred Ivamy, and William Jeffery, A. S. Herr and Lamar Van Sickle. Mayor Stewart has also been requested to make the trip as the mayors and Boards of Trade from Newark, Elizabeth, Bound Brook, Westfield and other nearby towns will be in attendance.

DR. LAWSON TO BE TRIED ON JUNE 24

The trial of Dr. James F. Lawson, of East Third street, the colored physician who was arrested on the complaint of Miss Karin S. Anderson, also of this city, who charged him with a serious offense, was postponed until Tuesday, June 24, when the prisoner was arraigned this morning before Judge Connolly in the Court of Common Pleas at Elizabeth.

MISS NELSON'S ABSENCE DELAYS MACRORIE TRIAL

The trial of Rev. Willis S. MacRorie, of Mt. Horeb, who was indicted by the last grand jury of Union county on a serious charge is fixed to take place Monday, June 16, but according to Union County Prosecutor Alfred A. Stein, the case will probably be adjourned until a later date, because of the absence of seventeen-year-old Gertrude Nelson, the complainant. Miss Nelson, who has also been indicted for a serious offense, was arrested several days ago in Brooklyn N. Y. She is fighting extradition and it is not thought that the necessary papers can be secured in time for the trial, if held on Monday.

Miss Nelson and her mother, it is rumored, are not anxious to press the charge against the suspended minister. The girl's mother is particularly desirous, it is said, of dropping the case. It is for this reason, the authorities beleive, that Miss Nelson was taken to Brooklyn and placed in a boarding school in that city, evidently seeking to avoid detection.

PAPALILLO JURY FAIL TO AGREE

After Being Out 23 Hours Tell Court They Cannot Reach Decision.

RE-TRIAL IN THE FALL

Rumor That Jury Stood 10 to 2 for First Degree Conviction is Unconfirmed—Result Surprise to Many in Court Room.

Mateio Paplillo, of 213 West Third street, the man whom the local authorities claim confessed to the crime of murdering Thomas Deers, colored, on April 12, was saved from the electric chair for the time being when the jury at Elizabeth, after deliberating twenty-three hours, failed to agree. It is said the jury on nearly every ballot taken stood 10 to 2 for murder in the first degree. This could not be confirmed, however, because the jurors refused to discuss the case following their discharge. The jurors announced the result of their deliberations to Judges Bergen and Connolly this morning.

The failure of the jury to agree will necessitate a new trial at additional heavy expense to the county. According to Supreme Court Justice Bergen the prisoner will not be arraigned again for the crime until the fall.

To those who have closely followed the details of the case the outcome was a complete surprise. The evidence which was undoubtedly responsible for the disagreement of the jury was produced at the "eleventh hour," and consisted of the statement of the accused that he was not present at the scene of the crime. It was understood prior to that that the defense would base its case on self-defense and Papalillo furnished a sensation when he made the claim that a man named Salvatore Inairia committed the crime and fled to Italy. His lawyer claimed that this information came to him through Mrs. Inairia, who surprised him with this revelation last Saturday.

RUNAWAY NEW YORK BOYS SAID TO BE IN THIS CITY

The local police have been asked to assist in locating John Lesslaurer, seventeen years old, of 2958 Jerome avenue, New York city, and Norman Corn, twenty-one years old, whose address is unknown. Paul J. Exner, the contractor who is building the new addition to the Plainfield High School, and whose home adjoins that of the Lesslaurer boy in New York, says that he saw the missing youth in Plainfield and when approached by Mr. Exner the boy claimed that he was employed in a local garage.

Mrs. Lesslaurer came to this city yesterday to institute a search for her son and investigation revealed the fact that Lesslaurer in company with Corn applied for work at Hedden's livery stable earlier in the day. Corn is said to belong to a notorious Harlem gang and the distracted mother claims that her boy was induced to leave home by this wayward youth. Corn is said to be about six feet in heighth and has red hair, while Lesslaurer wore a gray suit when last seen with brown cap and tan shoes.

SCHOLARSHIP CONTESTS FOR MT. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE

The second annual contest of the pupils of the parish schools of the Trenton Diocese is being held this week. Only the members of the graduating classes are eligible, but, as they number over six hundred it forms a goodly company. To make it convenient for pupils from even the more distant points of the diocese to attend, the tests are held in three different centers—Trenton, South Amboy and Camden.

Father McConnell, the superintendent of parish schools, offers several scholarships as prizes, the following being the most valuable:

For young women—

(1) Mt. St. Mary's College, Plainfield, N. J., High School or College course, with board and tuition, gift of Congressman, the Hon. Thos. J. Scully.

(2) Mt. St. Mary's College, Plainfield, N. J., High School or College course, with board and tuition, gift of the Catholic women of Belmar.

For young men—

(3) Villanova College, Philadelphia, High School or College course, with board and tuition, gift of the Augustinian Fathers.

(4) St. Peter's College, Jersey City, High School or College course, tuition only, gift of the college.

(5) St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia, High School or College course, tuition only.

BEAR RELATED TO SEAL AND SEA LION. NOT DOG.

Scientist Disproves Certain Theories by Blood Tests.

Professor Edward T. Reichert of the University of Pennsylvania, who for several years has been trying to discover a method of producing life artificially, has completed his first report on the underlying methods of the formation of protoplasm.

These experiments have led him to believe that he has discovered a logical basis for the reclassification of animals according to the forms of cell life. By a study of the different blood cells Professor Reichert has found that it is impossible to mistake the blood crystals of one animal from those of another, just as it would be impossible to mistake the animals themselves.

Dr. Reichert best describes his discovery by enumerating some of the animals that he has reclassified. In the old method of classification the bear was placed in the same family as the dog, the wolf and the fox. By the new method of comparing the blood crystals of these animals Professor Reichert says he has found that the bear is closely related to the sea lion and the seal and is not related to the dog, the wolf or the fox.

In the bird world exactly the same thing has been shown. Hitherto the guinea fowl has been classed as belonging to the same family as the domestic fowl. Dr. Reichert, however, has proved to his satisfaction that the guinea fowl is related to the ostrich.

OUR WOMEN PRETTIEST.

French Artist Declares American Girls Are Worldbeaters.

Paul Helleu, the famous French artist, says American women are the most beautiful in the world. He has lately returned to Paris after a visit to America, and his ideas on the subject are decided. He is making an album of the prettiest women in Paris, New York, London and Buenos Aires.

"Among the American women," the artist said recently, "we find the greatest quality of beauty. Beauty is common to them. In every class, in society and in the factories, we find that their good looks prevail. They are as well dressed as Parisians and far healthier.

"To find a pretty woman in Paris one must go in search of her. In America she is to be seen everywhere."

FROG IS SOME BASS SINGER.

Imitates Locomotive Whistle and Has Eyes "Big as Teacups."

A giant frog in Wills creek, just east of Hyndman, Pa., has caused consternation among the trainmen on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad because of his ability to imitate the deep toned whistles on the freight engines.

The deep throated call of the frog has "called in" several flagmen, and wrecks were narrowly averted. J. W. Fleegle, who saw the big frog, declares he stands two feet high and has eyes as big as teacups.

WOMEN'S SOCIETY MET ON THE LAWN

Sixty Members of Seventh-Day Organization Attended Gathering.

Sixty members of the Society of Women's Christian Work of the Seventh-Day Baptist church attended the final meeting of the season at the home of Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, on West Seventh street, yesterday afternoon, the affair being held in the form of a lawn party. As guests of the women, a number of men who are honorary members of the society attended the meeting and enjoyed a box luncheon served at noon.

An informal program, appropriate to a gathering of this kind, was held in the morning and early part of the afternoon, and at 3 o'clock the regular monthly business meeting was held. Reports of the various committees and of the organization's members showed that the society was making great progress in all of its undertakings and it was announced that all meetings will be suspended until the first of October when the annual gathering will be held.

SUFFRAGE IS A SEX DISTURBANCE, SAYS MRS. DODGE

MRS. ARTHUR M. DODGE.

With a declaration that the woman suffrage movement is a sex disturbance and its chief reliance a sex appeal, Mrs Arthur M. Dodge, of New York, president of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, recently opened a new line of attack. Her statement, issued by the publicity agents of the association in New York, is as follows:—

"In view of what is happening in various parts of the country, it is high time for every thinking man and woman to realize that back of the woman suffrage disturbance is the question of sex, or, rather, a distortion of the sex question.

"The suffrage disturbance is, in plain words, a sex disturbance. Many women who are suffragists do not realize this, but it is a fact nevertheless, just as the impulse of some other women to take up foolish fancies and unnecessary movements is the result of that uneasiness and straining after artificial happiness and unnatural enjoyment which indicates an unsettled and unsatisfactory state of mind."

PRIMA DONNA LEARNS ENGLISH TO APPEAR IN AMERICA IN PLAY

The above is a picture of Miss Elsa Alder, the dainty Viennese prima donna who, it has been announced by Marc Klaw, a theatrical producer, will appear in America when Franz Lehar's latest operetta, "The Ideal Wife," is produced next season in New York. She will have the principal feminine role in this new play, which is to be produced in Berlin soon.

A year ago Mr. Klaw, then in Berlin, heard Miss Alder sing in one of the current musical comedies and he prevailed upon her to study English. With what success she has done this one may judge from the announcement that she is coming to America in the fall.

COST OF A COCKTAIL.

The Drink a Young Business Man Had to Have Before Lunch.

In New York city there is a man who once paid $6,000 for a cocktail. He did not know it then, and he never will know it unless he happens to read this story.

A certain prosperous manufacturing company needed a new departmental manager. The salary was $6,000 a year. The officers of the company considered a great many candidates and at last decided to offer the position to a clever young man of unusual business ability. He seemed to be exactly the man for that particular place. The president and general manager invited the young man to lunch with them at a downtown club, ostensibly to talk over a less important business matter. They wanted to "look him over" just once more.

The man met them at the appointed hour, and the president, anxious to make the occasion a pleasant one, ordered an elaborate luncheon. The waiter was a long time in bringing the first course, and the guest began to appear ill at ease. He seemed absentminded and uninterested in the conversation. He twisted about in his chair and tapped his fingers nervously upon the table. Finally he turned toward the president and said almost desperately, "Would you mind very much if I ordered a cocktail?" Then he flushed a little and offered a laughing apology for making the request.

The other men exchanged surprised and significant glances, but they called the waiter and ordered the cocktail. When it came the guest drank it eagerly. In a few moments he had become another man—the man of keen vision and quick mind, who could be so useful in their great business. There was no more preoccupation in his manner, no shifting about in his chair. He was alert, eager, clear headed.

But as the luncheon went on neither the president nor the manager mentioned the real object of the interview. Each was thinking the matter over seriously, and neither could be sure of the other's secretly formed opinion. The situation became awkward. Finally the president excused himself on the pretense of going into the library to speak to a friend who had just entered. But after speaking to his friend he went straight to the desk and wrote a message on a telegraph blank. He gave the message to a uniformed attendant and went back to the dining room.

In a few minutes a page brought a telegram to the manager, who read it hurriedly, while the president finished telling their guest about a shooting trip in Maine. This is what the telegram said:

The job is too big for a boozer. We can't run our business by cocktail power.

Working Up a Joke.

A regular amateur jester broke past the guards and got into our office yesterday. He came for the purpose of making us bite on some of his prepared catches. We hate to discourage genius, and also we weren't extremely clever, so we took the card be forced. Here's the way he did it:

"Of course you hate adulteration. I have found that many of the wines are watered. Now, what do you think of watering wine?"

"It's a gross swindle."

"Yes?"

"Yes. And what do you think of putting sand into sugar?"

"It's a grocer swindle. Ha, ha! Ha, ha, ha, h-a-a!" — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Artist's Record Rapidity.

As an instance of the amazing rapidity and ease with which a Japanese artist works Mr. M. B. Huish, in "Japan and Its Art," quotes the marvelous achievement of Fukui Kotei, who was selected to exhibit his prowess before Prince Arthur of Connaught when the prince was in Japan on the Garter mission. In one summer day, working from sunrise to sunset, he painted a picture for each of 1,224 guests to be entertained that evening! Kotei worked with two brushes.

Oiling the Swamps.

The oil that is distributed through the swamps of Panama to prevent the crops of mosquitoes which made things so unpleasant is sent on its errand in a novel fashion. At the head of every little watercourse an oil tank is placed that gives its oil drop by drop. When the sudden showers come, as they do, in bucketfuls, the water flows off the higher lands into the swamps, carrying a coating of oil where it is most needed.—Christian Science Monitor.

Contentment.

It is said that John D. Rockefeller was once asked by an ambitious young woman, a schoolteacher, for an infallible recipe for contentment. The oil king promptly and forcefully replied:

"Never borrow trouble and never lend money."

The Other Way.

"When I put on this diamond circlet upon your finger, my darling, I am in one way sealing my doom."

"Dear me! You frighten me! How so?"

"I am ringing the Nell of my dearest hopes."—Baltimore American.

MANY REDUCTIONS IN TAXES ON CENTRAL RAILROAD LAND

Trenton, June 12.—The State Board of Equalization of Taxes has handed down decisions disposing of a number of appeals of the Central Railroad from the assessments levied against various properties in Jersey City. Several substantial reductions were made.

The largest property involved was a lot and building in Communipaw avenue. The local board assessed the lot at $2,945,000 and the building at $31,800. The railroad asked that the assessment on the lot be reduced to $2,100,000 and that on the building to $31,000.

The board ordered the reeduction of the lot assessment to $2,238,450 and that on the building to $11,800, the latter figure being below the reduction asked by the railroad. This is explained by the fact that the board considered that the valuation had not been properly divided by the local assessors.

Another lot in Communipaw avenue was reduced from $165,200 to $132,160. The railroad had asked for a reduction to $80,000. Another lot on New York Bay was reduced from $323,000 to $134,000, the latter figure being the valuation placed upon the property by the railroad. A reduction from $1,400,000 to $747,820 was made on another property fronting on New York Bay, which the railroad had sought to have reduced to $500,000.

The board also reduced from $63,600 to $36,000 a property south of the Morris Canal. An assessment of $48,600 on a property in Wilson street was sustained. In this case the railroad had asked for a reduction to $37,700.

THE WILSON METHOD.

President Wilson called the lobby, fighting for its personal interests at Washington, "a lobby." These men who have gone to Washington all these years to help push personal legislation were greatly shocked. Whenever a tariff bill is pending the protected interests have always through the "Home Market Club" and special envoys made the life of a Congressman miserable. They advertise, secure letters to be written, and personally "wire pull," plead and threaten to secure what they want. They found a new man in Washington and of a different kind and who does business in a different way this year. "Publicity" is his way and he gave it to them good and strong in a frank statement, calling the attention of all the people to them. Now they dodge around Washington almost afraid to speak to senators or congressmen, and quietly sneak out of the city, both sadder and wiser men.

What a stroke that was of the President! He has relieved the senators of importunity. This is something, but it is far more important that it has also given them absolute freedom of action in the public interests only. It was a courageous act that the President did. It will be far-reaching. The Senate started out to investigate this act of the President, and it looks now as if they were in fact, investigating themselves. They are uncovering before the world their interests so that the people will know when they vote just what personal interests they have to control them. The President's act will undoubtedly cause legislation against the lobby and bring all out in the open who hereafter attempt to corrupt or interfere with legislation in any way, other than in the open.

The investigation was undoubtedly started to put President Wilson "in a hole," as they say at Washington, but it seems to have missed its mark and it begins to look as if the lobbyists and the senators against an honest reduction of the tariff were going rapidly down into the hole themselves, and pulling it in after them.

THE DROP IN SECURITIES.

The drop in the price of practically all kinds of stocks and bonds during the past month has marked a serious period in the investment holdings of many. A shrinkage in the value of investments of thirty to forty per centum. is not a pleasant thing to contemplate, and it is quite a reduction in the capital of the holder. But it should not cause anyone to sell their holdings. The decline is undoubtedly only a temporary one. So far, there have been no reductions in dividends and hence there has been no depletion of incomes. If this fortunate situation shall only continue and people hold their securities, it should not be long before the value of stocks and bonds again reach the price of last year.

The only wise course is to hold fast and not sell thus adding to the flood of securities upon the market to which is largely due the present decline in values.

THE OTHER SIDE.

Plainfield has heard much of the equal suffrage cause and by this time most citizens should be familiar with the arguments advanced in its favor for the campaign of education conducted by the Plainfield Equal Suffrage League has been a thorough one. On Saturday, we will have the opportunity of learning the other side; that is, we will be privileged to hear an argument against extending the franchise to women. A socially prominent local woman, who is active in charity work, has consented to be our contributing editor for that day and her discussion will be both timely and instructive. At a later date we hope to have one of our prominent suffrage advocates as a contributing editor.

MAKE IT UNANIMOUS.

Shall there be a union on a candidate for Governor this year between the Progressives and the Republicans? Yes, if it can be done honorably. There is but one way. The same man must be nominated in both primaries. This could easily be done if the Regulars really feel as they talk, namely, that they are ready to accept a Progressive and support him. This is the only way. Let the bosses of all parties be eliminated this year and a clear, strong independent Progressive be the candidate of both parties; in fact, why should it not be made unanimous by Progressives, Republicans and Democrats? What a fine thing that would be for the State?

Jersey City has followed the exemple of Trenton, Atlantic City, Passaic and other cities in abolishing the antiquated, extravagant, red-tape, shifting-responsibility government and has substituted the modern, progressive, economical, democratic and businesslike form known as commission rule. And next comes Camden. The election there takes place on July 1 and the probabilities are that the people of that city will have the good sense to make a change.

ASSEMBLYMEN BARRED.

Trenton, June 12.—Assistant Attorney General Nelson T. Gaskill, in an opinion today declared that the appointment of Assemblymen McDermott and Mount as members of the economy and efficiency commission to succeed former Assemblymen Stevens and Dunger to be without warrant in law. Following the decision the commission today by resolving, Stevens and Dunger not voting, concurred in the finding of the Attorney General and McDermott and Mount will not be recognized. Had the appointments which were made by Speaker Leon R. Taylor held the political complexion of the board would have been changed.

JUDGMENT IN FULL.

In the District Court, this morning, Judge Walter L. Hetfield gave a verdict in full in favor of James B. Gutridge, of Belvidere avenue, against Hart S. Farlee, the amount being due him on groceries and meat sold to the defendant. The amount was $259. The many other suits resulting after the attachment of Farlee's belongings two weeks ago were laid over until next week.

COLLEGE HEADS FOR MILITARY TRAINING

PROF. A. LAWRENCE LOWELL.

Many prominent educators have indorsed the proposed scheme of the W. Department for giving training to college students this summer at militar encampments. Here is a comment it received by Mr. Garrison, the Secretary of War:—

Abbott Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard:—"I am heartily in sympathy with this project and believe that the experience such as is offered by the Secretary of War would be of inestimable value to young men in civ..."

POLITICS IN ORDER OF SOMERSET BODY

Aimed Against Secretary, State Equalization Board Says.

Trenton, June 12.—Although convinced that the Somerset County Board of Taxation was playing politics when it included in a new set of rules a provision requiring the secretary to report daily at his office, the State Board of Equalization of Taxes has upheld the rules, with one exception, on the ground that they are a valid exercise of the powers conferred upon the local board.

The rule disapproved by the State board was that requiring that the president shall have been a member of the board for at least one year before becoming eligible for that office. The State board held that if the Legislature had thought it wise to impose such a qualification for the presidency of the board it would have done so. As it did not, the State board remarked that the members of county boards are co-equal in rights and responsibilities, and these cannot be impaired or diminished by mere rules or regulations adopted by the boards themselves.

The other rule to which exception was taken by certain taxpayers was alleged to have been passed to compel the resignation of T. G. Winsor as secretary of the board. This rule required that the secretary should report at the office of the board between the hours of 10 and 12 o'clock each day and provided that for failure to do so he might be excused by the board upon giving sufficient reason.

The rule further provided that the secretary should not absent himself from the county for more than two consecutive weeks without the consent of the board, and that he should hold himself subject to the call of the board or the president for the performance of his duties at any time.

In sustaining this rule notwithstanding its effect upon Mr. Winsor and the motives which prompted its passage, the board said:

"The present incumbent (Mr. Winsor) insisted that the object of the framers of this rule was to make it impossible for him to continue in his position. He is employed in the city of New York, and could not report daily at the office of the board without sacrificing his private position. Hence the operation of the proposed rule would require him to relinquish his public office.

"As we have said, there is no doubt that that is precisely the effect intended by the regulation under consideration. Regardless of the reason that actuated its adoption, however, the rule is clearly within the power of the county board to pass.

"The secretary of a county board of taxation is an important official, with responsible duties, which he cannot discharge efficiently without giving a considerable part of his time to the work. The county board who employs and fixes his compensation, should be the best judge of the amount of attention required for the proper performance of his duties. This board will not interfere with such a requirement when it appears on the face of it to be in the interest of efficiency in the public service."

NO TAX EXEMPTION FOR Y. M. C. A. AND GREISENHEIM

Trenton, June 12.—Holding that the amendment to the exemption clause of the tax act passed last winter is not retroactive, the State Board of Equalization of Taxes, has handed down a decision refusing to exempt the property of the Young Men's Christian associations of Newark and Orange. The associations asked for the cancellation of the taxes levied for 1912.

The decision, which disposes of both appeals, is based upon the ruling in the case of the Paterson Y. M. C. A. against the city of Paterson, which was later upheld in a similar decision involving the Y. M. C. A. of Plainfield. The board held that the amendment of which the Newark and Orange associations sought to avail themselves could not be applicable to last year's taxes.

The board has also dismissed an appeal filed by Gottfried Kruger, the purpose of which was to secure exemption of the property in Newark used in part by the Gottfried Krueger Greisenheim, an institution formed originally for the care and support of aged men and women.

The property involved was acquired by Mr. Krueger in 1904 and part of the consideration of the purchase was that he should maintain the inmates of the institution at his own expense, so long as they should survive. The board found that there was no obligation upon the part of Mr. Krueger to admit any additional persons to the home or to continue if after the death of those who were housed there when he took it over. The land on which the home stands is used in part also as a public restaurant and place of public resort.

In these circumstances the board said there could be no doubt that the property is not within the purview of any of the exempting provisions of the general tax act.

BOARD RAISES STANDARD OF LEGAL EXAMINATIONS

Trenton, June 12.—The State Board of Bar Examiners has promulgated a new set of rules governing preliminary examinations for admission to the bar. The most important of the new rules will become effective next January 1, except that persons who, in the mean time, have qualified in any subject under the present rules will be admitted to the bar examinations.

The general purpose of the rules is to raise the standard for admission to the bar by requiring that candidates shall be proficient in all subjects regarded as assential for a lawyer. In other words, eligibility for the bar will no longer be possible by obtaining exceptionally high averages in certain subjects and extremely low averages in others.

To exempt a candidate from the preliminary examinations, the board under the new rules, will accept the following:

A certificate of graduation from a college or university of satisfactory standing.

A certificate of graduation from any approved or four-year high school of this State.

Evidence of having passed the entrance examination required for admission to any reputable college or university.

A sixty-count certificate issued by competent authority of any State having reciprocity in such matters with New Jersey.

A law student's cerificate from the commission of education of New York State, or a certified copy from the clerk of the court in which the certificate has been filed.

A certificate of graduation from any public high school of another State or from any private school or academy of this or any other State whose course of study, when shown to the State commissioner of education, shall be approved by him as maintaining a four-year high school standard of study.

In giving credit for school work done, the rules provide that in rating the work in approved high schools one year shall be given fifteen counts, two years, thirty counts; three years, forty-five counts, and four years, sixty counts.

In securing equivalent for a four-year course in an approved high school, a candidate will be credited as follows:

Languages, not less than fifteen or more than thirty counts; mathematics, not less than seven and one-half or more than fifteen counts; sciences, not less than seven and one-half or more than fifteen counts; history, not less than five or more than ten counts; miscellaneous subjects, not less than seven and one-half or more than fifteen counts.

Academic counts can be earned in any subject required for any form of teachers' certificates.

OFF FOR ZURICK FOR S. S. MEETING

Boston, Mass., June 12.—Hundreds of Sunday-school workers thronged the White Star line docks today and gave an enthusiastic "bon voyage" to the steamship Canopic as she steamed away for Europe carrying the main body of the American delegates to the World's Sunday-school Convention which is to be held next month in Zurich, Switzerland. Four hundred delegates sailed on the Canopic, which was especially chartered for the trip. Nearly all of the States and several of the Canadian provinces were represented in the party.

The Canopic party, though it is the largest single party of American delegates and includes nearly all of the Sunday-school association officials, represents only a comparatively small part of the whole army of American delegates who will attend the Zurich convention. Other parties representing the United States are scheduled to sail later in the month from New York, Philadelphia and Boston, while two large parties of Canadian delegates are to depart from Montreal, the first sailing next Saturday and the second Saturday week. It is estimated that the total number of Americans at the convention will be not less than two thousand.

The convention at Zurich will be the seventh great gathering of its kind that has been held under the auspices of the World's Sunday-school Association. Marion Lawrence, of Toledo, O., who is the general secretary of the World's Association, states that all indications point to a larger attendance than at any of the previous conventions. Every country of Europe has promised a large representation.

The convention will have its formal opening on July 8. The program will have for its general theme: "The Sunday-school and the 'Great Commission,'" and for eight days Sunday-school specialists from all parts of the world will give their thought to the consideration of the problems of "The Sunday-school Conquest of the World."

One of the strong features of the convention will be the Sunday-school roll call of nations, with five-minute responses from representatives of forty countries. A choir of 300 voices under the leadership of Professor A. J. Bucher, of Cincinnati, will be another feature. For the convention concert the Tonhalle Zurich Symphony Orchestra of forty-two pieces, one of the finest in all Europe, will contribute to the program.

Americans who will appear on the program as speakers include Bishops Vincent, Neulsen and Hartzell, H. J. Heinz, of Pittsburgh; Dr. H. M. Hamill, of Nashville; Frank L. Brown, of Brooklyn; Dr. M. G Braumbaugh, of Philadelphia; Miss Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia, and E. K. Warren, of Three Oaks, Mich.

GIRL IDENTIFIES HERSELF, FORESEEING COMA ATTACK

Elizabeth, June 12.—A young woman called on Rev. John F. Wetula, curate of St. Adelbert's Polish Catholic church, recently and told him she was liable to fall unconscious in the street at any time. She said she told him that so he could identify her if she were stricken.

Tuesday Father Wetula went to the Elizabeth General Hospital and identified a young woman who had been unconscious there since Saturday as Jessie Barkowsko, the young woman who had called on him.

Father Wetula said the girl told him but little of her life history, merely saying that she had been in Baltimore and Buffalo. She also said she had a brother in Jersey City, the clergyman explained.

Nothing further has been learned about the young woman A book of Russian poetry was found among her possessions. Her condition yesterday was not improved. She remained in a state of coma and her heart action had weakened slightly. The physicians say there is no evidence of poisoning nor any sign of injury.

The woman had a Catholic prayer-book which contained the name of Fannie Griest. She was found unconscious in Broad street Saturday by a patrolman.
